SLAYERS OF FRANKS BOTH PLEAD GUILTY; JUDGE HOLDS FATE

DOES AWAY WITH JURY TRIAL

Defense Indicates It Will Try to Mitigate Penalty by Testimony of Alienists.

MOVE A SURPRISE TO STATE

Crowe Will Lay Evidence Before Judge on Wednesday and Demand Hanging.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 21.—With a suddenness and unexpectedness that startled Court, prosecutors and spectators, Nathan F. Leopold Jr. and Richard A. Loeb pleaded guilty today to kidnapping and slaying Robert Franks when they were arraigned before Chief Justice Caverly of the Criminal Court. In his hands alone, as the result of this plea, instead of in the hands of a jury, will rest the fate of the two prisoners.

The defense, by the introduction of the testimony of its alienists, will endeavor to convince the Chief Justice that the youths were insane when they committed the double crime and still are and that the ends of justice will be best served by imprisoning them for life. State's Attorney Crowe will submit the testimony of his alienists, who will contend the defendants were sane in a legal sense when they seized and slew the schoolboy, and still are, and he will demand the infliction of the death penalty.

Chief Justice Caverly will begin hearing the evidence Wednesday. The jury box will be empty.

Crowds Kept From Courtroom.

Today was set for the making of motions in the case, and the beginning of the actual trial before a jury was scheduled for Aug. 4. The expectation was that the defense would seek to postpone making motions for thirty days and perhaps ask for a change of venue. Nevertheless, the uncertainty as to what actually would be done drew a large crowd to the court building, and squads of police were stationed there to prevent those not having credentials or official duties there from entering. Another set of guards examined credentials again inside the building and all elevators were stopped a floor below Justice Caverly's courtroom. Twice more before entrance could be obtained to his room credentials were scanned, and the result of these precautions was that the spectators' space was only partly filled when the case was called.

As Leopold and Loeb were brought in newspaper cameras clicked in a volley. The prisoners, showing traces of their confinement in their pallor, smiled at their attorneys, Clarence S. Darrow and Benjamin Bacharach. Seated near the lawyers were Nathan F. Leopold Sr., his face showing the anguish he was suffering, and Foreman Leopold, his other son. Near them were Jacob Loeb, uncle of Richard, and Allen Loeb, his brother. Albert H. Loeb, Vice President of Sears, Roebuck & Co. and father of Richard, was too ill to come to Chicago from his Summer home in Charlevoix, Mich. Mrs. Loeb was at her husband's side there.

Darrow Causes a Sensation.

"Of course," Mr. Darrow began his address to the Court, while all in the room waited expectantly, "it is unnecessary to say that this case has given us many perplexities and sleepless nights. Nobody is more aware than we are of what this means and the responsibility that is upon us. We have sought to consider it from every standpoint, first, of course, from the interests of our clients, but I am sure that no one who knows the families of these defendants, or either Benjamin Bacharach or his brother, Walter Bacharach, who has been with us in this matter, or myself, will doubt for a moment that we have the deepest sympathy for every one of the three families involved.

"Of course, this case has attracted very unusual attention on account of the weird, uncanny and terrible nature of the homicide. We have meant to consider it from the standpoint of the defendants, but we must also consider it, first of all, from the standpoint of their families—and by the families I include all three—and from the standpoint of the public, who are rightfully interested in this proceeding.

"The question of getting a jury has caused long and serious consideration. A great deal of time will be consumed necessarily at a very hot season of the year. There is, in the public mind, a feeling that in some manner lawyers might succeed in getting these two defendants to an asylum and having them released. We want to state frankly here that no one in this case believes these defendants should be released.

"We believe they should be permanently isolated from society and if we as lawyers thought differently their families would not permit us to do otherwise.

"We have considered the question of a change of venue from this county, where it seems plain that we cannot get that fair trial that defendants charged with a grave crime ought to have, but we know perfectly well that the same state of feeling exists in all the other counties of the State. I have practiced law for thirty-seven years and I have never asked for but one change of venue and that was at the direct command of

Socialist Ends Hunger Strike Begun to Aid French Workers

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 21.—The strangest of hunger strikes, which started here eight days ago by the Socialist leader and engineer, M. Spinetta, to force agreement between the General Federation of Labor and workers in the glass works of Albi, came to an end today. M. Spinetta has addressed a letter to the federation saying he will resume eating, as the labor body has undertaken to settle the troubles which threatened to break up the famous cooperative glassworks established in Southern France by Jean Jaurès.

This is said to be the first time a man ever engaged in a hunger strike to make other people be reasonable, and it is apparently a more effective weapon to use in the interest of other people than in one's personal interest. There is no doubt of the sincerity of M. Spinetta in his willingness to die for the cause if necessary. He resisted efforts at forcible feeding and disregarded all the pleas of his wife, child and dearest friends not to sacrifice himself.

ADMITS SLAYING BOY, THEN DENIES CRIME

TAKEN TO STATEN ISLAND

Laborer on Road Gang Near By at the Time of the Murder Is Still Held.

Melvin Ware, 33 years old, a dishwasher in a restaurant at 257 Fulton Street, Manhattan, who was arrested in Newark on Sunday night on the charge of assaulting a 14-year-old boy, was taken to Staten Island last night for questioning about the murder of 5-year-old Francis McDonnell, who was strangled to death a week ago yesterday in the woods at Port Richmond, S. I.

Soon after his arrest in Newark, Ware told two policemen that he had murdered the McDonnell boy.

When Staten Island detectives went to Newark yesterday noon, Ware repudiated his confession. He first said that he had not made it at all. Then he admitted he had made such a statement, but said that it was not true.

Despite the repudiation of his confession, Ware was taken to Staten Island last night because he had in his pocket a rubber ball which the murdered boy's mother, Mrs. Anna McDonnell, had identified as identical with one owned by her son and because the man's face and body were covered with scratches, as if he had been dug by some one's fingernails in a struggle. Mrs. McDonnell later changed her mind about the rubber ball, and said it was not her son's.

District Attorney Albert C. Fach of Richmond County announced shortly after 11 o'clock last night, after Ware had been questioned for two hours in Police Headquarters at St. George, S. I., that Ware had refused to repeat the confession he made soon after his arrest in Newark.

Tells of Suspect's Story.

Mr. Fach made the following statement:

"In Newark, about six hours after he was arrested, Ware told a police sergeant and doorman that he killed the McDonnell boy but that he could not tell the details of how he committed the murder because they were too horrible to repeat. He then said that he was willing to go to the chair, and that he wanted to die.

"Tonight, however, Ware has denied that he was on Staten Island on Monday, July 14, the day the boy disappeared from home. He says that he was lying when he told the Newark policemen he did it, and that the reason for his making such a statement was that he had been drinking before his arrest.

"His statement that he killed the boy was heard by Detective McLaughlin and Motorcycle Patrolman Plunkett of Newark, who both are willing to swear that he made the confession and asked to be

REPUBLICANS PLAN NATION-WIDE FIGHT FOR THEIR POLICIES

Chairman Butler Says the Campaign Will Be Carried Into Every Section.

LOCAL ISSUES TO BE MET

NEW YORK DECLARED 'SAFE'

Former Representative Fred C. Hicks to Have Charge of Headquarters Here.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—William M. Butler, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, came to Washington today and conferred with President Coolidge on plans to carry the campaign into all parts of the country and meet political issues as they develop without sectional appeal.

While just what part the President will take in the speechmaking feature of the campaign is indefinite, it is known that he will make a few speeches, but he will not, according to present plans, undertake anything approaching a nation-wide tour. He has told his managers that he is opposed to an extended speaking trip but will explain his position on the issues and the conduct of Government in his Administration at historic celebrations at which he already has tentatively accepted invitations to speak.

The campaign will not be started until organization has been perfected in New York and Chicago, some time next month. In the meantime, speaking itineraries for Republican orators are being mapped out. It was asserted today that the speakers would not indulge in personalities but confine their arguments to real issues and conditions.

Predicts a 30,000,000 Vote.

In a review of the political situation Chairman Butler said that letters and telegrams received by him showed that the voters had great confidence in President Coolidge. There was a widespread interest in politics this year, Mr. Butler said, which he believed would swell the popular vote to 30,000,000 in the November elections, and from this increased vote President Coolidge would benefit.

"July forecasting is hardly an achievement," Mr. Butler said. "I will say, though, that judging from the character of the letters, telegrams and messages which I have received, as well as the interviews which I had in Chicago and in New York, there is no lack of confidence among the Republicans of the country. I have been particularly pleased in receiving a large number of communications from men and women who admit that their interest in past campaigns has only been incidental, but who are now anxious to participate in the present campaign.

"Directly following the closing of the conventions which nominated the two other Presidential candidates I was interested to know if there would be any change in the character of, or the spirit of, the messages I received. I am happy to say that in reviewing those messages, which have come from all over the country, I find that the confidence in the President and the admiration for his policies has materially increased.

"I am almost ready to make one prediction, namely, that the November election of this year will show a larger total participation than any election we have ever had. I anticipate that not less than 30,000,000 men and women will vote. The signs seem to be in the air, and I have every expectation that President Coolidge will gain by this increased total vote.

Sees a Nation-Wide Campaign.

"The Presidential campaign will be nation-wide. We do not propose to seek support in one section of the country through concentrated and obvious ef-

Davis Must Name Electors For Ticket in Pennsylvania

As President Coolidge failed to make his nominations to the Secretary of the Commonwealth within the thirty-day period, it will be incumbent upon Charles G. Dawes, Republican nominee for Vice President, to make them.

DAVIS BEGINS WORK ON HIS ACCEPTANCE

GETS FLOOD OF LETTERS

Nominee Plays a Round of Golf, Already Showing Benefit of His Outing.

BAR HARBOR, Me., July 21.—John W. Davis began today preliminary work on his speech accepting the Democratic nomination for President, which he will deliver at his former home in Clarksburg, W. Va., on Aug. 11.

Immediately after breakfast Mr. Davis went into the studio of Charles Dana Gibson on Seven Hundred Acre Island, which has been converted into an office for his use. He dictated several letters to his secretary, George Zengerle, read his correspondence which arrived this morning, and studied the various party platforms and "keynote" speeches which had been sent here at his request by Cordell Hull, former Democratic National Chairman.

These documents included the Democratic, Republican and La Follette platforms, the speeches of Senators Pat Harrison and Thomas J. Walsh at the Democratic Convention, those of Representative Theodore E. Burton and Frank W. Mondell at the Republican Convention, and the speech of William H. Johnston and the letter of Senator Robert M. La Follette at the Third Party Convention.

In an interview with reporters at the Islesboro Inn just before he went to have luncheon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Polk, Mr. Davis said he had read all the party platforms, adding, "I could pass a civil service examination on them."

Mr. Davis's acceptance speech may establish a record for brevity. It was learned that he does not intend to speak for more than forty minutes, and it was said that he would make it shorter, if it were possible to do so and discuss the issues thoroughly.

How He Will Write His Speech.

Mr. Davis, it was learned, does not intend to write his speech here. He will think it out here, however, and will be ready to put it into writing immediately after his return to New York.

In the meantime, his correspondence will furnish him with the ideas of the party leaders and others in various sections of the country.

Mr. Davis smiled when asked what method he was going to follow in writing his speech.

"I think that John Bright had the right formula," he said. "His method was to set up a number of islands and swim from island to island."

"Will your speech have a thousand islands?" he was asked, nearly that number of islands dotting the waters of Penobscot Bay.

Mr. Davis replied that it was impossible to tell the exact number at present, but indicated that it would not reach that figure. "I haven't counted them yet," he remarked.

A very large number of letters come to Mr. Davis by every mail. The inaccessibility of a 700-acre island prevents many visitors, and persons wishing to advise or consult him have been obliged to do so by correspondence.

"Most of my work this morning was in answering letters," Mr. Davis said. "I am trying to keep up with my correspondence. I no sooner get clear than another batch of mail arrives."

"Something like King Canute trying to sweep back the tide," it was suggested.

"Exactly," Mr. Davis replied.

At Luncheon and Golf.

Frank B. Noyes, publisher of The Washington Star and President of The Associated Press, and Mrs. Noyes had luncheon with Mr. Davis at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Polk. Mr. Noyes, who is cruising in Maine waters, went to the Polk home in his yacht. It was explained that Mr. Noyes was a friend of both Mr. Davis and Mr. Polk, and that his visit had no political significance.

After luncheon Mr. Davis and Mr. Polk played a round of golf on the links of the Tarratine Golf Club, named from the tribe of Tarratine Indians, the original inhabitants of the Island of Islesboro. The scores of the two players were not made public.

Mr. Davis seems to have benefited already from the rest and the cool sea air. He appears to be in perfect physical condition, with his cheeks ruddy and all lines of weariness gone from his face. He was dressed in a gray woolen jacket and knickerbockers and wore a gray cap and gray golf hose today.

"I am going to teach Frank how to play golf," he said jestingly of Mr. Polk was getting ready for you yesterday," said a reporter, who had noticed Mr. Polk practicing on the links the day before.

Mr. Davis laughed and said he had not touched a club since his arrival.

Mr. Gibson, Mr. Davis's host, has gone to a hospital at Belfast for a minor operation. Mr. Davis said he was informed that Mr. Gibson was much better and would be back at his Summer home in a day or two.

SOUND LINER BOSTON RAMMED BY TANKER; 4 PASSENGERS DEAD

Other Passengers and Crew Take to Boats and Are Being Picked Up.

BOATS HIT OFF POINT JUDITH

Heavy Fog Was Prevailing, and Liner, Struck Amidships, Began to Leak Badly.

SHIPS SPEED TO THE RESCUE

The liner Boston of the Eastern Steamship Company, bound from Boston to New York, was rammed in a dense fog in Long Island Sound at 11 o'clock last night by an oil tanker, the Swift Arrow.

The Sound steamer was disabled and began sending out SOS calls. Within an hour or so after the smash passengers and crew of the crippled vessel had been debarked into lifeboats, only the Master and the wireless operator remaining aboard.

Four passengers on the Boston are known to have been killed in the collision. Reports received at Newport said that a fifth also was killed, but this could not be verified. None of the names of the victims could be obtained.

The accident occurred two and a half miles southeast of Point Judith, R. I., a peninsula at the northwest entrance of Block Island Sound, about 10 miles from Newport, R. I.

The Swift Arrow, only slightly damaged, at once began picking up the Boston's passengers.

Radio messages between the Boston and other vessels which came sharp and clear early this morning, indicated that there were still some persons in small boats near by.

"Be careful of the small boats on the starboard side," was one warning, followed by the word "our condition fair."

A moment later the Fall River liner Priscilla asked "shall we send over boat at once?" The answer came back, "Yes," but whether this indicated that the Captain and radio officer of the Boston, who had remained aboard, would leave their ship was not clear.

The steamer C. A. Smith then sent along the advice that "reports of death are unreliable."

The revenue cutter Acushnet left Narragansett under a full head of steam to aid in the work of rescue. Two Fall River liners also were drawing near the damaged vessel, but had difficulty in locating her as her fires had been drawn and she was without steam with which to run her dynamos. She was able to show only feeble oil lights, which could not penetrate the fog, and was unable to sound her siren to aid in showing her position.

Rescue Made Difficult by Fog.

By 1:30 o'clock this morning the oil tanker, the two Fall River liners—the Commonwealth and the Priscilla—and possibly one or two other vessels all were in the vicinity of the stricken vessel.

At 3:15 o'clock this morning word was received by the Independent Wireless Telegraph Company that the Boston had been taken in tow by the Commonwealth of the Fall River Line, but the probable destination was not given in the report.

None of the big ships dared cruise about for fear of ramming a lifeboat or perhaps hitting the already crippled ship and sending her to the bottom.

The lifeboat crews rowed toward the point of the beams of the powerful searchlights that felt around in the murk. As fast as a lifeboat was

LONDON, July 21.—Strong opposition to certain features of the sanctions proposed by the First Committee of the Inter-Allied Conference in the event of Germany's default on reparations payments has developed on the part of the bankers to whom the conferees look to make the proposed loan to Germany a success. The diplomatic correspondent of The Daily Telegraph describes the situation in these words:

"Premier MacDonald conferred with the Allied chief delegates to the London conference yesterday (Monday) morning and intimated to them that bankers, and more particularly American bankers, were disinclined to take up the initial loan of £40,000,000 which is indispensable to the putting into operation of the Dawes scheme on the strength of the guarantees embodied in the protocol framed by the First Commission on Saturday.

"The Allied Ministers received this news with keen disappointment, and some feeling. After an animated discussion it was decided that Mr. Snowden and the Allied Finance Ministers should meet the American and British bankers on the subject.

Long Session With Lamont.

"From noon onward down to a late hour last night the Allied Finance Ministers discussed with Mr. Lamont, Sir Montague Norman, Sir Robert Kindersley and others the terms put forward by the bankers.

"The hitch is undoubtedly a serious one. The allied Prime Ministers will today follow the example of the Finance Ministers and confer with the bankers as to the way out. Mr. Lamont was closeted for a long while last evening with Mr. Herriot, who appealed to the American banker's well known sympathy with France, but apparetnly Mr. Lamont and his colleagues feel constrained to take a purely business view of the situation."

Hughes Warned MacDonald.

LONDON, July 21.—The following is the inner history of the crisis which has arisen in the London conference over the report of the First Committee, cabled tonight. Secretary Hughes met Prime Minister MacDonald at dinner at Ambassador Kellogg's residence last night and told him that the American and British bankers could not accept the formula agreed upon by the committee, and that no loan could be arranged on these terms. He therefore suggested that a meeting be arranged between these bankers and French representatives.

This meeting took place today at 10 Downing Street under the Presidency of Philip Snowden, British Chancellor of the Exchequer. Among those present were M. Clementel, French Minister of Finance; M. Parmentier, French financial expert; Reginald McKenna, Walter Leaf, Sir Montagus Norman, T. W. Lamont, Owen D. Young and others. The bankers told M. Clementel that neither the American nor British bankers would touch the loan unless the Reparation Commission was definitely ruled out.

This has caused consternation among the French, as it nullifies the whole work of the First Committee. It is reported tonight that the French will ask

London Times Endorses Views of Secretary Hughes

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 21.—Referring to the speech of Secretary Hughes to the London Pilgrims The London Times says editorially:

"Americans, Secretary Hughes states, believe in the Dawes plan as the opening of the path of confidence and of prosperity, and they feel deeply interested in its prompt execution. Mr. Hughes believes that all subsisting difficulties will be overcome, because failure would invite chaos. But the good-will, for which there is no substitute, is essential to enduring success.

"Economic satisfaction and a promise of release from the almost intolerable burdens which the great war has placed upon bent shoulders greatly foster good-will.

"In every effort toward it, Mr. Hughes declared, we are aided by the abiding amity of our two peoples.

"With that support, the vision to which Secretary Hughes looks forward with unshaken faith, the vision of an enduring peace and of the reign of justice throughout the world, may one day find its realization."

HUGHES'S ADDRESS TO BRITISH PILGRIMS

A STATESMAN "OFF DUTY"

But Informally and Unofficially He Cites American Efforts to Aid World Peace.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—Following is the text of the address delivered by Secretary Hughes this evening at the Pilgrims' dinner in London:

I am off duty tonight. Borrowing the phrase of a famous statesman with respect to a certain international transaction in which he took pride, I may say that there is not the slightest taint of legality in my appearance here. For want of a more accurate description, I may say that I have the privilege of being a sympathetic and unofficial observer and an altogether delighted guest.

I am a returning pilgrim who, shaking himself free of fetters, has come here to find liberty to invite his soul in choice fellowship and to do as he pleases with such conscience as a lawyer may command. In an informal way I am returning calls. We have the most agreeable memory of the visit of his Royal Highness, who, with unerring aim, attacked us at our most vulnerable point and at once captured our hearts.

Pays Tribute to Lord Balfour.

While it is not my purpose to speak of the many visitors from this realm and from other lands who have instructed us, exhorted us, charmed us; of those who find with us a happy hunting ground where they may bag the game of our affections, if not always of our aid, I should be wholly unjust to myself if I did not take this opportunity to make acknowledgment of the inestimable service to the cause of peace that was rendered by your delegation at the Washington conference, and especially by the head of the delegation, Lord Balfour.

I do not know what the future may have in store, but I do know that the peace of the world will be secure if responsible leaders work together in the spirit of that conference with the object, not to obtain some advantage at others' expense, but to lay the surest foundation of national interest in a completely fair settlement.

As critics in every country have cavilled at the settlement reached at that conference, there is a strong presumption that it was just, a presumption which analysis supports, and I trust that that conference will be the forerunner of others with like aims and imbued with the same spirit, until the world is rid of the menace of competitive armament, and the toil of the people of all countries may serve the cause of progress instead of military preparations.

President Coolidge has voiced his strong desire that this result should be attained, and that conference to that end should be held as soon as the time is opportune.

Americans "Like to Be Understood."

It is a familiar saying, and one worthy of all acceptation, that we are all eager for a better understanding. We in America especially like to be understood—with the approval of our dominant purposes, our system of government, our modes of helpfulness. So many think and speak of America simply as a political entity without thought of its component parts, the organ of its political life, the different functions of its members.

Gladstone's oft-quoted observation that "the American Constitution was the most wonderful work ever struck off at a given time by the brain and purpose of man" might be supple-

HUGHES TALKS TO PILGRIMS

"Prompt Execution" of the Dawes Plan the Great Need, He Declares.

SECRETARY GETS OVATION

Connaught, Balfour and Prince of Wales Pay Tribute to Him.

LONDON, July 21 (Associated Press).—American assistance in necessary measures for the economic rehabilitation of Europe may be counted upon, declared Charles E. Hughes, Secretary of State of the United States, in an address tonight at a dinner given by the Pilgrims.

"It does not matter that this aid is not given by the Government," Mr. Hughes continued. "I may give it as my conviction that had we attempted to make America's contribution to the recent plan of adjustment a governmental matter we should have been involved in a hopeless debate and there would have been no adequate action.

"We should have been beset with demands, objections, instructions. This is not the way to make an American contribution to economic revival.

"You have the Dawes plan and you have had the participation of American experts with the liberty of constructive effort which was essential because it was undertaken in the only way in which success was possible. When you deal with economic rehabilitation you doubtless have in mind such contribution as America may be able to give in disinterested advice, and later in participation in the absolutely essential loan.

"The important, indeed the indispensable, thing is that methods should be contrived and that your disposition should be such that assistance of that sort can be rendered."

He added that America was "deeply interested" in the prompt execution of the Dawes plan.

"My confidence that a way will be found to surmount all the existing difficulties lies in the fact that failure would invite chaos. There is no gain to any one in that. On the other hand, going forward with reasonable measures to put the plan into effect gives hope to all."

The dominant note of the address of the Secretary of State, whom the Prince of Wales referred to as visiting England "incognito," was that America's devotion to the cause of peace could be counted upon, as well as America's purpose to cooperate with Great Britain and others in every way congenial with American institutions in the interest of peace.

Mr. Hughes fed up to his specific reference to the deliberations now in progress in London in an effort to find a way to put the Dawes plan into effect by saying that he was "off duty tonight," and that his status was that of "a sympathetic and unofficial observer." He was also, the Secretary continued, returning in an informal way the visit of the Prince of Wales to the United States. He took the opportunity to reaffirm President Coolidge's desire that there should be further conferences for limitation of armaments "as soon as the time is opportune."

The American Secretary then undertook to explain the reasons that compelled the United States to make its aid in the reparations tangle available as a private matter and not through Government action. The American press, he said, expressed American sentiment from all points of view; American finance spoke for American investors who did not "look to the Government for either advice or security," and American philanthropy needed "no Government spur."

"These are the potent voices of America which do not wait for political action," Mr. Hughes said. "These are the outstretched arms of helpfulness which do not depend upon the muscular reactions of Government."

Before a Notable Assembly.

The American Secretary of State spoke before one of the most distinguished gatherings of men prominent in the public life of England and America that had ever assembled in London, and his words were enthusiastically heard by 400 members of the Pilgrims and their guests.

Tributes to Mr. Hughes were paid by the Duke of Connaught, who presided, and the Earl of Balfour, who said that the Secretary had provided a new understanding between Great Britain and the country across the Atlantic, its people and Government.

Mr. Hughes was seated at the center of the great banqueting board between the American Ambassador, Frank B. Kellogg, and the Prince of Wales. Ranged around them were almost as many Americans as British. Andrew W. Mellon, American Secretary of the Treasury, sat on the other side of the Prince, and near by were Owen D. Young and Colonel James A. Logan Jr., from the interallied conference; Colonel General Robert K. Stringer, Bishop H.

SPRING LAKE, N. J., July 21.—As the result of a struggle with a corporal of State police, LeRoy Cook, 27 years old, of 423 Main Street, Bradley Beach, is in Ann May Hospital here with two bullet wounds in the groin. Corporal Norman H. Wagner of the Point Pleasant Barracks of the New Jersey State Police was arrested and charged with assault, pending the outcome of Cook's injuries. He was released late tonight in the custody of Trooper Frank Kustrin.

Miss Hazel Phallen, 24 years old, and her brother, Bud Phallen, 25 years old, and Mrs. Ray Johnson of Avon, N. J., who, the police say, were with Cook at the time of the shooting, have disappeared and are being sought as witnesses tonight. The Phallens are said to live in Bradley Beach, but the police have been unable to learn their address.

The shooting followed an exciting chase along the country roads west of Bradley Beach, bordering along Shark River. The four, according to the Bradley Beach police, had been at the Hongkong Inn during the evening and had left at the request of the manager, after Cook had some trouble with a woman who was also at the inn.

The party left the Inn shortly after midnight and were driving along the river road when Corporal Wagner saw them and gave chase on his motorcycle. When he pulled alongside the automobile which Cook was driving, Cook, according to Corporal Wagner, said, "You'll never arrest me." Nevertheless he stopped his car and got out, leaving the couple in the machine while he approached Corporal Wagner.

Before the trooper knew what was happening, Cook struck him on the jaw, and, according to Corporal Wagner's father, kicked him in the abdomen. A struggle followed in which Wagner's gun became loosened from the holster. Seeing this, Cook, according to Wagner, made a motion as if to grab the gun, whereupon Wagner fired at Cook, shooting him twice in the groin.

In the excitement following the shooting, and while Wagner was struggling with Cook, the Phallens and Mrs. Johnson got out the other side of the automobile and made off into the woods at the other side of the road. Cook fell at the side of the road.

At the State Police Headquarters it was said that Corporal Wagner had been placed under arrest by Trooper Frank Kustrin on a technical charge of assault but that he had been released in his custody and was on patrol duty again tonight.

The Bradley Beach police know Cook and say that he has been arrested before. On March 26 the record shows that he was arrested in Ocean Grove on a charge of turning in a false fire alarm and was discharged in court. Again on May 4 he was in the custody of the police on a charge growing out of the theft of an automobile, but he was again discharged.

It was on a charge of driving a car while intoxicated that Corporal Wagner was attempting to place Cook under arrest this morning.

Swept by Whirlpool From River Into Sewer, Fights 4 Hours for His Life; Saved by Police

Falling into the East River while attempting to land from a barge on which he had been working, Joseph Lynch, 33 years old, a brick handler, of 331 East Ninety-seventh Street was caught in a whirlpool yesterday afternoon and swept into a sewer where he was imprisoned for almost four hours. Had rescue been delayed a few minutes longer, the police say, Lynch would have been suffocated. When discovered he was almost unconscious from the hot air of his prison and suffered so greatly from submersion that he was taken to Bellevue Hospital for treatment.

The mishap occurred at the foot of East Ninety-sixth Street, where the sewer, twenty feet in circumference, empties into the river. Lynch had been working with several others on a brick barge anchored at the East Ninety-sixth Street Pier, and when he fell into the water his comrades laughed. They knew he was a good swimmer, but when he did not come to the surface they became uneasy. This changed to alarm a few minutes later and one of the barge employes hurried to the East 104th Street Police Station, where he told what had happened.

The police there notified the Marine Division and soon a police launch carrying a sergeant and two patrolmen arrived at the scene. They grappled for Lynch's body for more than three hours, when suddenly they heard a faint voice seeming to issue from the shore. It was calling for help. The officers landed, raised a manhole thirty feet from the bank, removed its lid and saw Lynch. He was only semi-conscious, but was struggling against the strong back current and grasping a large bolt in the sewer wall. He was waist deep in water when a rope was lowered and he was hauled out.

Booth of the Shipping Board and numerous figures in American finance and business, including Thomas Lamont and A. C. Bedford.

The British notables included Viscount Chelmsford, John Robert Clynes, deputy leader of the Labor Government; Sir Auckland Geddes, former Ambassador at Washington; Arthur Henderson, Home Secretary; the Earl of Balfour, Sir Alfred Mond, and Lords Olivier, Parmoor, Thomson and Desborough.

After Lord Desborough had read a cablegram from Chauncey M. Depew the Duke of Connaught proposed a toast to the Secretary of State. He said that his presence in London at this time was of the greatest importance. Then he added:

"We are anxious to take advantage of the admirable report drawn up by that distinguished man, General Dawes, which we hope will be the groundwork of a lasting advance in the troublesome question besetting the world since the great war."

The Prince of Wales supported his grandmother's toast. He recalled the Pilgrims' dinner in New York in 1919, and said he hoped to set foot on American soil again this Fall to see the international polo matches. It would be a brief, flying visit, said the Prince, who evidently is receiving more invitations from America than his secretaries can handle.

"I always keep in mind the possibility of a proper tour of the United States," he continued, "and I always look forward to a tour that will enable me to get to know your great country better. But this Fall it will be impossible to accept many of the kind invitations from New York and all other parts of the country which are now reaching me."

Englishmen who admired Roosevelt were first to applaud when Mr. Hughes, emphasizing that his visit to England was unofficial, opened his address by saying:

"Borrowing the phrase of a famous statesman with respect to a certain international transaction in which he took pride, I may say that there is not the slightest taint of legality in my appearance here tonight."

The Secretary's statement was greeted with applause and laughter, and soon the story was going round the Pilgrims' board that the reference was to Roosevelt and his Panama policy.

The story told to Englishmen who did not know it was that President Roosevelt had found all his Cabinet except one member sympathetic with his Panama policy. Philander Knox alone was unresponsive. When Roosevelt asked the Attorney General for his opinion on the legality of the Washington Government's action in Panama, Mr. Knox is said to have replied:

"Mr. President, if I were you, I should not have the slightest taint of legality about the whole affair."

Following Mr. Hughes's speech, Lord Balfour's toast to the Pilgrims' Chairmen developed into a eulogy on the American Secretary of State and the message he gave the Pilgrims. Lord Balfour described his three months' work with the Secretary of State during the Washington conference, told of the confidence and trust he placed in Mr. Hughes as soon as he met him, and said he was thankful that "Englishmen could come under the influence of a personality of which he was the moving spirit of the conference that had made such great strides toward the ideal of disarmament—an ideal to which all civilized nations hold, despite the difficulties of its realization."

Lord Balfour spoke of England as occupying a middle position between America and Europe, not of Europe, but still unable to separate herself from Continental affairs as completely as the American people felt they could. He said that Mr. Hughes tonight had rendered a great service both to England and America by interpreting the psychology of one great country to another.

PARIS, July 21.—The French Bar Association is preparing unusual honors for the American Bar Association members who are now in London and for Secretary of State Hughes of the United States, who arrives here on Thursday.

The reception committee is headed by two former Presidents of the Republic, Raymond Poincaré and Alexander Millerand.

It is organizing a ceremony of welcome which will coincide with the inauguration of new court-rooms of the Tribunal of the Seine in a new wing of the Palais de Justice, which probably will take place on July 28.

On the following day President Doumergue will interrupt his Summer vacation at Rambouillet and will come to Paris to receive the representatives of the American Bar Association at the Elysée Palace.

HUGHES RESPONDS FOR AMERICAN BAR

Pays Tribute to Common Law Heritage in Addressing British Lawyers.

3,500 IN WESTMINSTER HALL.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 21.—In Westminster Hall, the home of English law, the English and Canadian bench and bar welcomed this morning their professional brethren from across seas.

Speeches of greeting were delivered by Viscount Haldane, the Lord Chancellor, and Sir James Aitkens, President of the Bar Association of Canada, saying that the American lawyers had just as great a claim to the hall of Englishmen or Canadians and Secretary Hughes and Justice Sutherland replied for the visitors.

The scene was a mixture of Old World traditions and modern matter of factness. At one end of the hall under the great stained glass Gothic window with the marble slabs that commemorate the members of both houses who fell in the war gleaming beneath it sat in wig and gown on the steep flight of stairs the members of the English bench and bar.

The whole body of the hall was filled with American and Canadian Judges and lawyers with their wives and daughters packed in as close rows as it was possible to accommodate them. Gowned and wigged barristers acted as ushers, and over all was the great chestnut open-work roof which Richard II. erected over the hall that William Rufus had built.

Brilliant Procession Enters Hall.

Just as Big Ben chimed a quarter to eleven o'clock the great assemblage of 3,500 arose. It kept silence as though in some great cathedral while the procession of English Judges entered the door at the end of the hall. First came the golden mace of the House of Lords on the shoulders of a tipstaff, then the Lord Chancellor's purse bearer and Lord Haldane himself clad in full bottomed wig and black silk gown heavily embroidered with gold lace.

The Law Lords followed in dark blue privy councillors' uniform, Lord Birkenhead with the scarlet ribbon of the Order of the Bath across his breast and a row of medals, and others with various colored insignia of the orders to which they belong.

Sir James Aikens, Lieutenant Governor of Manitoba, was ablaze with golden embroidery of first-class diplomatic dress. The Lord Chief Justice, with his collar of gold, his scarlet gown and white ermine hood; the Justice of Appeal in black and gold and other Judges in scarlet and ermine, completed the procession that showed all the pageantry of medieval times.

As they reached the dais the judges took their seats along the front and formed a brilliant border with King's Counsel and junior barristers seated in tiers above them.

Lord Haldane called on Attorney General Sir Patrick Hastings, who came forward and presented the American visitors to the Lord Chancellor. Lewis Dibdin spoke for the Law Society, of which he is President, explaining that though solicitors under the English law are divided from barristers they were united with them in the profession.

Sir James Aikens as President of the Canadian Bar Association was the first to voice the official welcome and then Lord Haldane rose to speak. As he did so the Americans in the hall below with an instinctive movement of respect rose to their feet.

Chancellor Welcomes Americans.

The Lord Chancellor motioned to them to seat themselves and began by declaring that in the hall of William Rufus the American bar had quite as much claim as the English. He told something of its history and pointed out its historic spots.

In the corner behind him to the left Coke had given justice, and to his right in the Court of Chancery Lord Bacon had sat. From the spot where he stood the sonorous tones of Chatham were once heard declaiming against tyranny in the House of Commons near by.

He spoke also of the way in which Chief Justice Marshall had carried on the great traditions of the English law in America, and extended a hearty welcome both to the American and Canadian lawyers.

Then Secretary Hughes responded for the American delegation. He was clad only in black morning dress. He was speaking merely as the leader of the American Bar, but as he stood in front of the American lawyers there was none that did not realise that the audience was listening to one of the statesmen of the age.

Mr. Hughes emphasized that there was no thought of the great issues being fought out in Downing Street, hardly a stone's throw away, in the presence of so many distinguished Americans today.

"Sitting by Old Fireside Together."

"We have no political ends to serve," he said, "no differences to compose, no policies to advance except the highest—the policy of understanding and goodwill."

Then he paid a tribute to the common law, which America has treasured as part of its birthright and heritage, and to the English judges who had done so much to develop and maintain it. He concluded with these words:

"We sit together at the fireside in the old homestead."

Mr. Justice Sutherland of the Supreme Court spoke in much the same strain and the historic occasion came to an end with the procession reforming and proceeding slowly up the steps to the House of Lords. The ceremony was over, but the Americans were loath to go. They lingered in the old hall and admired its wonderful proportions. They stood chatting about what they had heard of its history and not a few had something of a thrill as they gazed at the bronze let into the floor where Warren Hastings stood to defend his career in India and where Charles I. had heard the sentence which sent him to the block.

Hughes Hails Source of Our Law.

In his address before the British, Canadian and American lawyers in Westminster Hall in London, Secretary Hughes said, in part:

"Of all international contracts none could be happier than this. We have no political ends to serve, no differences to compose, no policies to advance, except the highest of all—the policy of understanding and good-will.

"The fact that we are here is more eloquent than anything that we can say here. We come rejoicing in an amity which both have long enjoyed, in a fixed habit of two peoples intent on cooperation in the interest of peace. We come to tighten the bonds of friendship.

"We are gratified to receive the greetings of our Canadian brethren with whom we have an invincible accord. Many, probably most of us, are bound to you by ties of blood, but even stronger is the sense of the spiritual kinship that we are all privileged to have with those who in this island developed the institutions of liberty which we have inherited, to the love of which we were so fondly cherished that they were safeguarded in an unprecedented manner.

"We come in the spirit of fraternity which has triumphed over the enmities of the forty-eight Commonwealths in our Union because it is, in truth, the spirit of the larger fellowship represented here today in which differences of particular interest and environment cannot avail to obscure the community of tradition of those who have been trained according to the standards and ideals which are the blood of the race. We come with even a larger aim than the enjoyment of fraternal association in order that by these agreeable interchanges and more intimate knowledge of each other we may promote a clearer appreciation of our privilege, opportunity and responsibility as ministers of justice in a world which needs justice and the reasonableness which makes justice possible.

Heritage of the Common Law.

"The common law was treasured as a part of our birthright and inheritance. The ten talents that we thus received have been employed so profitably that we are almost overcome by the wealth that has flowed from the investment. The Commonwealths in our Union of States, each sovereign within its sphere, are producing laws at a rate which has filled us with anxiety lest no one should be able to know the law. The fertility of the legislative soil is our despair.

"Our lady of the common law has had an embarrassing progeny. Courts are pouring out decisions in such numbers that only the makers of encyclopedias can keep track of them. With your relatively compact jurisprudence I am sure that you must have an inadequate appreciation of the possibilities of the common law and of the consequences for which you have, perhaps, the ultimate responsibility.

"I shall not quote statistics to vex your imagination. I merely wish to emphasize the fact that we represent in a peculiar sense the persuasiveness, the potency and the problems of the common law.

"It is, of course, inevitable that, with the legislatures and courts of forty-eight States constantly deciding and legislating, we should have not only multiplicity but diversities of laws which your efforts to establish uniform laws, especially in relation to the important transactions of commercial life, have modified only in a limited degree.

"But before you have recovered somewhat from your surprise at these diversities you will then have a new surprise and a far more lasting impression of the essential unity despite all these differences, a unity which makes us, in our complex and intimate relations in our vast internal commerce and network of activities, one people with a constantly increasing consciousness of solidarity, a unity which has been victorious over the bitter sectional animosities of the past and over the differences in origin in the colony settlement, in climatic conditions, and in particular interests of a unity which you will not fail to perceive has its root in the common conceptions of the fundamental principles of law and liberty.

"We have come to this shrine of the common law not to extol a body of particular rules. At the very outset it was a small body of law that we took over, most of which long ago became only of historical importance.

"Kent tells us that in the growing State of New York the progress of jurisprudence was nothing prior to 1793. There were no decisions of the court published. The common law was entering upon a new period of development and in the United States it had its special adaptations to our needs.

"There were the imperative demands of new institutions, of new relations, of distinct political conceptions. have been the ever-changing exigencies to which law must make response. Our master builders thus worked their materials into a structure distinctively American.

"We are not here to pay tribute to the corpus of the early law, still less to the formalism which has had so much to do with its development, but rather to the genius of the common law which brings us together with a definite realization of brotherhood.

Cherish Right to Law Itself.

"The fundamental conception which we especially cherish as our heritage is the right to law itself, not as the edict of arbitrary power but as the law of a free people springing from custom responsive to their sense of justice, modified and enlarged by their free will to meet conscious needs, and sustained by authority which is itself subject to the law—the law of the land.

"If, as Mr. Justice Hilliard has said, 'the life of the law has not been logic but experience,' the life of the common law has been the experience of free men. It may be, as has been pointed out by your distinguished historians of English law, that the tendency to worship the words of Magna Charta because it was possible to misunderstand it, but they are careful to observe that analysis does not destroy our reverence for it as a sacred thing.

"For it means that no one is or should be above the law. As they put it, 'the law for the great man has become the law for all men because the law of the King's Court has become the common law.'

"The spirit of the common law is opposed to those insidious encroachments upon liberty which take the form of an uncontrolled administrative authority—the modern guise of an ancient tyranny not the more welcome to intelligent free men because it may bear the label of democracy.

"It is doubtless impossible to cope with the evil incident to the complexities of our modern life and to check the multiform abuses of organized cupidity by the means which were adapted to the simpler practices of an earlier day, but we have an instinctive feeling that there is no panacea for modern ills in bureaucracy.

"There is still the need to recognise the ancient right—and it is the most precious right of democracy—the right to be governed by law and not by official will—the right to reasonable, definite and proclaimed standards which the citizen can invoke against both malevolence and caprice. We of the common law respect authority, but it is the authority of the legal order. We respect those who in station, high or humble, execute the law—because it is our law. Esteem them, but only as they speak and keep within the law.

"In the United States we put our bill of rights, the protection of individual rights which are our common inheritance, into our written constitutions and thus placed them, so sacred were these rights deemed to be, beyond the reach of the power of legislatures.

"We created a government in which the powers of the different branches were carefully limited, but this conception of limited powers is directly traceable to the principles of the common law, and its development in resistance to arbitrary power. So that in that feature of our jurisprudence which is most distinctive we are holding to our heritage.

"We have established citadels to make secure what your ancestors and ours had won. After we had done that we proceeded to expound the principles which were thus set forth in historic formulas according to the method of the common law, so that we have virtually a common consent of our constitutions, Federal and State, which expands from precedent to precedent in a constantly growing body of law.

"We have provided the constitutional guarantee that no one shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law. But this did not confine practice to archaic forms or deny the opportunity of improvement. It did not refuse to Legislatures the authority to enact reasonable measures to promote the safety, health, morals and welfare of the people, or make rational experimentation impossible, but it was intended to preserve and enforce the primary and fundamental conceptions of justice which demand notice and opportunity to be heard before a competent tribunal in advance of condemnation, and, with respect to the departments of Government, freedom from arbitrariness.

"The process of applying these formulas has proved to be an education in reasonableness after the essential method of the common law.

"The spirit of the common law demands as the correlative of the right of free speech to the suppression of law, the exposition and application of the law by an expert and independent judiciary. Not only does the common law as the guardian of liberty depend upon a fearless bench as the guardian of the law, but in the United States we have created a novel and extraordinary judicial responsibility, and our whole constitutional system depends upon the integrity and independence of our Judges.

"The relation of State and Federal power which give the national authority we need for national concerns, without interfering with the full measure of autonomy of the State in purely local concerns could not be maintained except by the judicial power authoritatively expounding the Constitution. Otherwise Federal power would be at the mercy of the State Legislatures or State legislative power would be subject to the control of the Federal Congress.

"In either case the legislative will would still be the supreme law, despite constitutional restrictions, and instead of a systematic development of constitutional law we should have the fluctuations of control dictated by political expediency.

Debt of Bench to Tradition.

"It was realised at the beginning that the courts of justice were organised with peculiar advantages to exempt them from the baleful influence of faction. We have given, as was well said by Mr. Evarts, 'a new exaltation to the power of the judiciary. We have lifted up the principle of the common law, we have exalted it to the point that judicial reason in the forum of forensic discussion shall be the final arbiter of the rights of the people against their Congress, against their magistrates and between the States and the nation—that all shall obey.'

"This delicate and difficult duty has been well discharged and notwithstanding repeated efforts to undermine this jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of the United States as the final authority in the interpretation and application of the Constitution, it retains its hold upon the confidence of the people. I believe that the attacks upon it once more renewed will again fail.

"But we owe our success in this enterprise, as well as in the general administration of the law, to the tradition of a fearless and independent bench illustrating the supremacy of law, a tradition which perhaps is the most valuable part of the inheritance we have received from our common forebears.

"Your great Judges have been our exemplars. When our Judges have attained repute in their contribution to a developing jurisprudence in a new country they have exhibited the creative genius and the statesmanlike quality of the great English kin whom they have emulated.

"Coke, Hale, Holt, Mansfield, Nottingham, Hardwicke and Elden and their worthy successors belong to us as well as to you. They have taught us, fortified us, inspired us, and such skill as we have shown in the development of our judicial institutions has come from our training in the school in which they were masters.

Independence of the Bar.

"But if we have maintained the tradition so happily received of an independent judiciary, it is only because we have also conserved the tradition of an independent bar not servile to authority but always keen for the defense of individual rights against abuses of power, intent upon giving every man his day in court and ever watchful of judicial arbiters lest they lose their footing in the slippery paths of the law.

"The Judge may exemplify the impartiality, the learning and the wisdom of the law, but the bar is the source and the guardian of the virtue of the bench.

"In this meeting we are reminded of our common professional ideals—of duty to client, of loyalty to trust, of responsibility for the administration of justice. It is sometimes said that the lawyers are far behind those who lead the army of progress, but this is because they have in their special keeping the accumulated riches of experience.

"There is one department of endeavor, however, in which we must ever be foremost, and that is in that broad field which has to do with the efficacy of the administration of the laws, the promptitude and reasonable certainty of their execution, the removal of the obstacles to justice under law, of vexatious delays and inordinate expense.

"And in all efforts to improve the laws and their adjustment to new conditions and exigencies, society needs the expert knowledge and the sympathetic understanding of the bar. This meeting of those who enjoy a common tradition and cherish a common purpose cannot fail to heighten our sense of responsibility; as we find our strict rule renewed our ardor quickens and our hearts deeply stir as we sit together at the fireside in the old homestead.

MR. DEPEW'S GREETING.

Text of His Message to the London Pilgrims for Dinner to Mr. Hughes.

This was the cable message sent yesterday by Chauncey M. Depew on behalf of the Pilgrams of the United States, of which organization he is President, to the Duke of Connaught, President of the Pilgrims Society of Great Britain:

It is a happy omen for the realization of the ideals of English-speaking peoples that at this time, the most hopeful for the world since the Treaty of Versailles, the American Secretary of State is tonight the guest of the Pilgrims Society of Great Britain under the Presidency of your Royal Highness.

Unity of thought and action among the heirs of great traditions of liberty and progress, and the possession of the same language and of a common effort for peace and its resulting benefits to law, order and trade, have had no better friend or eloquent advocate than Secretary Hughes. He has won distinction at the bar and on the bench of the highest court of our land and as head of our Department of Foreign Affairs. We send him to you as the very best of our citizenship and statesmanship.

We rejoice that the most popular fellow Pilgrim of our American society here, the Prince of Wales, is with you to help in welcoming him.

'VAMPIRE MURDERER' INDICTED IN HANOVER

Charged With 17 Killings and Suspected of 8 Others—8 Policeman Dismissed.

HANOVER, Germany, July 21—Fritz Haarmann, known as the "vampire murderer," has been charged with seventeen murders in an indictment just filed by the State's Attorney. An investigation of eight other cases has not yet been concluded, although the police believe they will be able to prove his guilt in these also, as numerous disappearances reported in various parts of Germany are being directly traced to his house where the crimes were committed.

Criminologists attached to the Prussian Ministry of the Interior are conducting an exhaustive survey of Haarmann's activities and the part the Hanover police are alleged to have played in them. Eight officials at Police Headquarters were summarily dismissed from the service because of allegations that they were involved in the Haarmann orgies.

Dr. Kopp, criminologist of the Ministry of Interior, who has been conducting a scientific investigation of Haarmann's mentality, said that "Haarmann is unquestionably strangely psychopathic and presents a bewildering combination of unnatural impulses."

Haarmann says that he was unconscious when slaying his victims. Most of the murdered men were said to have been "floaters" who were grateful for a night's lodging or a drink of brandy with which Haarmann is said to have drugged them. Haarmann admitted that he usually strangled the men while they were asleep.

BULGARIA FIGHTS PLAGUE.

Guards Borders as Cholera Spreads in Greece and Russia.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, July 21.—Energetic measures are being taken by the sanitary authorities to fight the plague on all frontiers. Official reports received from Greece show the spread of disease there.

It is also known that cholera is spreading rapidly in Russia and it may be necessary to guard the Yugoslav and Rumanian borders.

The influx of refugees from several frontiers complicates the situation. Health officers are watching the Thracian territory and already strict supervision of the borders has been inaugurated.

LOAN FORMULA IS DISLIKED

The meeting between the American and British bankers and Mr. Snowden and M. Clementel lasted until a late hour tonight, and terminated without an agreement being reached.

Hitch Regarded as Serious.

The hitch is undoubtedly a serious one. The bankers regard the protocol recommended by the First Committee as entirely unsatisfactory. They regard the political safeguards embodied in the mere association of an American with the Reparation Commission on the occasion of a German default as inadequate protection for the bankers, since they hold that this arrangement does not altogether insure an impartial majority on that body. The bankers plainly intimated their complete distrust of the Reparation Commission in its supposed judicial and arbitral capacity. And they frankly dislike Article 4 of the protocol, which appears to them in its ambiguous wording to contain a loop-hole for taking independent sanction by one power in the future.

Some of the would-be lenders are also worried over the railway problem and the Allied military demand in this regard. The difficulty is that, while all the Powers, not excluding France, would be willing to improve upon the financial guarantees already contained in the protocol, as framed, the French Government would find it extremely difficult to concede to the financiers what it had declined to concede to the other Allied Governments in lite way of political guarantees.

But the bankers are equally adamant as to the need for those additional guarantees.

The allied Premiers will confer tomorrow with the bankers and try to find a way out. Thomas W. Lamont had a long conference with Premier Herriot tonight, the French Premier appealing to Mr. Lamont's sympathies. But Mr. Lamont and his colleagues insist on taking a strictly business view of the situation.

COMPLICATIONS OVER RUHR.

Dispute Over Railroad Control May Go to Full Conference.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 21.—While the text of the report of the Interallied Conference's First Committee—that on defaults and sanctions—was published here today, little progress was made within the conference, to judge from the indications outside.

Two committees have their reports ready for presentation to the plenary conference, but the convocation of the latter will depend by difficulties before the Second Committee, which is concerned with arrangements for the restoration of the fiscal and economic unity of Germany.

Chief among these difficulties is the question of railway administration in the Ruhr. The French and Belgians want to retain a nucleus of their railway men in the Ruhr. The British contention is that when the Dawes scheme is applied the railway administration should be handed over in its entirety to the Germans. In support of the British case it is pointed out that in the Cologne area, occupied by British troops, German control has been retained and the system has worked well. The French and Belgians, however, insist upon retaining a considerable number of French and Belgian railway men, so that the control of the lines may be taken over in case of emergency. They argue that although the presence of British troops may be sufficient to maintain order in the Cologne area under all conditions, the position in the much bigger French and Belgian areas is different, also that the British troops are in general older, more seasoned and more experienced than the young conscripted soldiers of Belgium and France.

Rail Dispute Goes Back to Committee.

It is recognized on the British side that special considerations have to be taken into account in the area occupied by the French, and the subcommittee has, therefore, made a brief statement of the two rival plans and is referring the matter back to the committee, which will probably in its turn refer it directly to the full conference. The difficulty is not regarded as insuperable, but it is essentially a question of which the conference as a whole must be the judge.

While this particular subcommittee of the Second Committee was this afternoon at the point of arranging to submit its difficulties to the arbitrament of the full conference, the other subcommittee, which had to deal with the question of economic withdrawal from the Ruhr and Rhine, held prolonged and stormy sittings both morning and afternoon; and, while some progress was made, there were still left unthreshed-out various questions, chief among which are those concerned with the suppression of the "Micum" agreements for the control of mines and factories, the position of banks and, in general, the return of the control of German industry to the Germans.

There is no definite division of opinion, but delay is caused by the volume of work involved. Until the work of this subcommittee is concluded, however, and a report or recommendation has been prepared for the consideration of the plenary conference, there is likely to be a halt. With luck it may be possible to call a full session for Tuesday afternoon.

It was outside the conference that the chief interest of the day centred. King George received the French and Belgian Premiers this afternoon, and in the morning MM. Herriot and Hymans, with Ambassador Kellogg and Signor de Stefani, the Italian delegate, had an hour's conversation with the British Prime Minister at 10 Downing Street. Although no statement is forthcoming regarding this meeting, it is understood that it was of prime importance.

In the afternoon the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Philip Snowden, had a discussion at the Treasury with M. Clementel, the French Finance Minister; Signor de Stefani, the Italian Finance Minister; Sir Montague Norman, Governor of the Bank of England; Sir Robert Kindersley, Owen Young and Thomas W. Lamont.

Text of First Committee's Report.

There are points of difference not only in phraseology but in substance between the text of the report of the First Committee of the Interallied Conference as published in Paris yesterday and the text of the same report as issued by the British Foreign Office today.

The British text is as follows:

The committee have the honor to submit for the examination and decision of the conference the following unanimous recommendations regarding C and D of Paragraph 5 of the Anglo-French memorandum of 9th July, 1924:

1. The Governments represented upon the Reparation Commission, acting under Paragraph 12 of Annex II of Part VIII. of the Treaty of Versailles, will modify Annex II by the introduction of the following Paragraph 16A:

When the Reparation Commission has to decide whether Germany has made default in performance of any obligation under this part of the present treaty, as put into force on 10th January, 1920, and if subsequently in conformity with the provisions of this annex or under the plan of the experts dated 9th April, 1924, an American citizen, appointed in the manner hereinafter provided, shall take part in the discussion and record his vote as if he had been nominated under Paragraph 2 of this annex. The American citizen shall be appointed by unanimous vote of the Reparation Commission within thirty days after the adoption of this amendment. In the event of the Reparation Commission not being unanimous the appointment shall be made by the President for the time being of the Permanent Court of International Justice at The Hague. The person appointed shall hold office for five years and may be reappointed. In the event of any vacancy the same procedure shall apply to the appointment of his successor.

Provided always that if the United States of America are officially represented by a delegate on the commission any American citizen appointed under the foregoing provisions shall cease to be a member of the commission, and no fresh appointment under those provisions shall be made so long as the United States are so officially represented.

2. If the Reparation Commission shall find that Germany has made default the Governments interested, acting with the consciousness of joint trusteeship for the financial interests of themselves and of the persons who advance money upon the lines of the said plan, will confer at once on the nature of the sanctions to be applied and on the method of their rapid and effective application.

3. In order to secure the service of the loan of 500,000,000 gold marks contemplated by the Dawes report and in order to facilitate the issue of that loan to the public, the allied powers declare that in case the sanctions have to be applied in consequence of default by Germany they will safeguard any specific securities which may be pledged to the service of the loan. The allied powers further consider that the service of the loan is entitled to absolute priority in relation to any resources of Germany of which a general lien may have been given to the loan as well as in relation to any sources that may arise as a result of the application of the sanctions. The allied powers agree in addition that during the currency of the loan they will not have recourse to sanctions unless the Reparation Commission shall have declared a default, within the meaning of Section III. of Part 8 of the Dawes report, by a reasoned decision, after taking the opinion of the Agent-General for Reparation Payments and of a representative of the foreign bondholders.

4. Unless otherwise expressly stipulated in the above paragraphs, all existing rights of the signatory powers under the Treaty of Versailles are reserved with the Dawes report are reserved.

Conciliatory Spirit in Discussion.

LONDON, July 21 (Associated Press).—The French, in justification of their insistence upon maintaining the skeleton of the Franco-Belgian railway staffs in the occupied territory to insure their military communications, emphasize the difficulties they encountered in 1923 in consequence of the German railway strikes. Moreover, they declare that the French and Belgian armies, being raised under compulsory military service systems, are recruited largely from youths who have not had the technical railroad experience found among the British soldiers, who are recruited through voluntary enlistment and often are much older men.

All sides are understood to be discussing the railway problem in a spirit of utmost conciliation.

The Franco-Belgian view, it is learned, is that it is necessary now to settle only the broad, general principle and that the French communication safeguards, as military questions, strictly speaking are outside the purview of the present conference and should be reserved for consideration at a later parley.

The British experts on their part are said to appreciate that the Franco-Belgian interests are entirely justified in seeking every necessary safeguard for their communications since the military occupation of the Ruhr will continue for the time being after the economic evacuation of that area. But the British are slow in modifying their view that these safeguards can be adequately provided under the Interallied Railway Commission created by the Treaty of Versailles.

The German Government has communicated to the British Foreign Office its latest views on the Dawes report and the question of German representation at the conference. The German views will be presented at the next plenary session of the conference.

There is some apprehension in conference circles over reports from Berlin regarding German opinion of the method by which the work here is proceeding, but as yet there is no intimation of when the Germans will be called in. The conferees are closely watching the reaction in the United States regarding the opinion in Germany. But the main interest centres around the reaction in financial circles through the provisions set forth for the protection of investors in the German loan.

It was learned tonight that a plenary session would not be held tomorrow and that probably the report of the committee on default and sanctions would not be considered at any plenary meeting until sufficient time had elapsed to ascertain just how it had been received. It was even intimated that should the bankers withhold their assent to its provisions it might be modified. This, however, met with an emphatic negative from the French delegation.

While British and American bankers are being relied upon to take up the bulk of the proposed German loan, it became known tonight that hopes are entertained that some portion of it will be subscribed on the Continent. The conviction is that the more widely this investment is distributed the more active interest will the world have in the economic restoration which it is so confidently hoped it will bring about.

There is little doubt among the delegates that the problems before the two committees dealing with the restoration of Germany's economic unity and the disposition of German deliveries in kind will ultimately resolve themselves into equable understandings. There is said to be no disagreement in principle in either of these committees.

WAR'S ANNIVERSARY TO SEE PEACE DRIVE

Supporters Ask 100,000 Pastors to Observe Tenth July 27 Since Conflict Began.

SERMON DATA SENT OUT

Material on "How the Churches Are Waging Peace" Prepared by Organizations Here.

To assist them in preparing sermons and addresses appropriate to the tenth anniversary of the outbreak of the World War on Sunday, July 27, more than 100,000 ministers throughout the United States will receive this week copies of resolutions and statements by religious denominations and church leaders on the subject of international organization against war.

This material, in the form of a printed broadside, headed, "How the Churches Are Waging Peace," has been prepared by three of the leading organizations dedicated to world peace and is being distributed from the joint headquarters, in the offices of the World Alliance for International Friendship Through the Churches, at 70 Fifth Avenue, New York. The participating organizations are the World Peace Foundation of Boston, the Church Peace Union and the World Alliance for International Friendship Through the Churches.

The letter accompanying this broadside says in part:

"July 28 and 27 mark the tenth anniversary of the beginning of the war which plunged the world into such misery and woe that even after the cessation of hostilities more than six years have passed and still there is hatred, confusion and in many nations excessive armament and preparations for more war to come.

"The annual expenditure for armaments today is approximately $2,000,000,000. The League of Nations, which is the only international organization working for peace, is costing annually approximately $4,500,000. In other words, after the war and its experiences the world seems to have learned as little that the peace instrument set up by the nations after the war could be run for 650 years for what the nations are expending in armaments for one year.

"It seems to us that the peace-loving people of our nation should consider this question and its implications at this time. Other organizations are thinking and acting toward this end.

"The religious leaders of the nation have a great responsibility to face as well as an unique opportunity in presenting the Christian ideal. The only opposition to the war system that can make effective real peace is that which substitutes reason, justice and good-will for the use of aggressive force."

The letter is signed by President William P. Merrill and Secretaries Henry A. Atkinson, Frederick Lynch and Linley V. Gordon for the Church Peace Union and World Alliance and by President W. H. P. Faunce of Brown University, President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard University and Secretary Edward Cummings for the World Peace Foundation.

mented by the statement that it seems to be also the most mystifying.

After all, the matter is not so very complex. The sentiment of our people is expressed by our press, which gives every point of view of our composite population, the fidelity of the general picture making up for inaccuracies in the detail of the drawing. American finance speaks decisively for those who represent the American investor, who does not look to Government for either advice or security. American philanthropy is eloquent in activities which need no Government spur. American existence and competence are always ready with their response. These are the patent voices of America which do not wait for political action, although to some extent they may find echo in such action. These are the outstretched arms of helpfulness which do not depend upon the muscular reactions of government.

When Government acts it must act according to orders of its structure. So that when you ask: What will America say? What will America do? You must further ask yourself: To what America do you put the question? Is it to American sentiment as voiced by the press, by public men, by critics, by scholars? Is it the America of finance? Is it the America of experience in some particular line of effort? Is it the America of philanthrophy? Or is it the American Government.

A better understanding is not simply a more complete appreciation of history of social conditions, of special problems, but of organs and functions. It does not make for better understanding to arouse expectations which cannot be satisfied or to demand that something be done in one way which must be done, if at all, in another way.

How Our Government Functions.

It is an oft-repeated observation and one which needs emphasis and explication in the aid of a better understanding, that the American Government is one of checks and balances. No legislative majority or coalition or parliamentary leader holds with us the powers of the Executive. The President, great as are his powers, at the same time more and less than those of any parliamentary leader, is still the Constitutional Executive, who cannot pledge the Government beyond the limits of his Constitutional authority. He is the Executive; the Congress and the leaders in Congress cannot execute for him.

But if he needs money he must have the Congress supply it; if he needs legislation he must look to the Congress for it. If he would bind his country to international obligations he must have the assent of two-thirds of the Senate. In most exigencies, if the Government is to act, it must act through co-ordination of its branches, each having its declared powers.

It must be quite apparent to you that in the international field our capacity for Governmental action of a sustained character depends upon a predominant sentiment which brings the authorities of government into union of effort.

There is no promise of helpfulness abroad in division at home. Nor is it to our interest to adopt a policy by which we would create or intensify divisions at home without healing divisions abroad. Of course there are differences of opinion to be reconciled as to matters of foreign policy—which are usually settled by some dominant conception of national interest.

How America Looks at Europe.

But there is a distinction between your situation and that of other European nations in relation to European questions and our situation. You are conscious of certain definite British interests prevailing; the problems of empire are never absent from the thought of your statesmen. With other European nations there are national interests clearly perceived, often strongly supported, a keen racial consciousness, questions that have their roots in old antagonisms and diverse policies.

We, too, have our interests, but in the field of European controversies they are so much more remote than yours, not as direct as yours, and, with respect to such controversies, we have a different tradition.

When American interests are directly involved and clearly perceived by our people, we are capable of unity of sentiment and action, and in such a case our constitutional methods are no hindrance to efficiency, as we showed in the great war.

But when as a nation we are relatively disinterested, the very fact of that disinterestedness which may excite your appeal gives opportunity with us for the most acute divisions of sentiment among a people drawn from many races and countries, who are still bound by ties of sentiment and interest to many lands.

There is no promise of helpfulness in introducing into our policies and into the debates of our legislative halls the conflicts of interests of European powers. That would mean that we should render ourselves unable to do what could otherwise easily be done; and that incapacity would also produce paralysis in our domestic affairs as the energy needed for domestic problems would be exhausted in futile discussions.

There are two classes of persons who give us most of our troubles—those who insist on impossibilities and those who want nothing done at all. The former, as has well been said, see everything but the difficulties; the latter see nothing else.

We have two courses in the United States. We can enter upon a field of controversy involving our historic traditions,

LA FOLLETTE MEN PLAN A BLACKLIST

Aim to Defeat for Congress All Considered to Be the Foes of Labor.

VOTES ON BILLS COMPILED

Longworth and Garrett Said to Be Marked—Rail Labor Campaign Bureau Opens.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—A drive against candidates for the Senate and the House whose records are thought to show them in opposition to the legislative demands of organized labor is to be part of the La Follette campaign.

Ways and means to advance this purpose were considered at a meeting here today of officers of the railroad brotherhoods and representatives of the Conference for Progressive Political Action.

The unions, including the Federation of Labor, have asked for legislation limiting the use of the injunction in labor disputes and demanded the exemption of organized workers from the operation of the anti-trust laws, the abolition of the Railroad Labor Board, the repeal of the Esch-Cummins Transportation act and the enactment of farm relief legislation along the lines of the McNary-Haugen bill.

Those Senators and Representatives in the House who opposed these measures were marked for attack by the La Follette organization. It was decided today to "blacklist" Senators and members of the House who have been renominated and all other candidates for Congress whose utterances or platforms are taken as unfriendly to organized labor.

Longworth and Garrett Opposed.

Several leaders of both parties in Congress will have the opposition of the Independent party. Among them are Representative Longworth, Republican, of Ohio, and Representative Garrett, Democrat, of Tennessee, who were regarded as hostile to the bill for the abolition of the Railroad Labor Board. This measure was drawn, it is understood, by officers of the railroad brotherhoods, which are supporting La Follette.

The backbone of the La Follette organization is the labor and farmer groups, and an endeavor will be made to convince these classes that only by pooling their interests in united endeavor can they hope to obtain the legislation that each is demanding.

A bureau operating under the Conference for Political Action has collected data, showing how each member of the Senate and the House was recorded in the votes of the last session of Congress on the various labor and farm bills. This record will be the basis of the "black list" which will be placed in the hands of State organizations.

They believe that the presence in the field of independent candidates for President and Vice President, with a nation-wide organization behind them, will inevitably result in the election of a considerable number of Congressmen friendly to the labor program.

As a general proposition, the independent organization will support Senators who were recognized as members of the Progressive bloc. For example, it will endorse Senator Brookhart of Iowa, who is a candidate for re-election as a Republican, and Senator Magnus Johnson, Farmer-Labor, who faces Republican opposition in Minnesota.

The chances are that the independents will keep out of Idaho so far as Senator Borah is concerned. Independent leaders assert that Senator Borah will support B. F. Samuels, the Farmer-Labor candidate for Governor. They are hopeful that Mr. Borah will come out for La Follette and Wheeler, but if he does not, they will be content with the help that he gives their candidate for the Governorship.

La Follette Seeks Campaign Chiefs.

WASHINGTON, July 21 (Associated Press).—Senator La Follette, Independent Presidential candidate, and his running mate, Senator Wheeler, devoted their energies today mainly to the task of selecting five members of the committee which will have charge of their campaign. Five other members are to be chosen by officials of the Conference for Progressive Political Action, while Representative Nelson of Wisconsin will be committee Chairman.

The complete personnel of the committee had not been determined tonight, but it was said the membership probably would be announced tomorrow. A meeting of the committee will be held here as soon as possible, perhaps late this week.

Sheppard Opens Chicago Bureau.

CHICAGO, July 21.—L. E. Sheppard of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, President of the Order of Railroad Conductors, arrived today to assume charge of a national headquarters of the Railroad Brotherhoods' campaign in behalf of Senator La Follette.

Virtually the entire effort of the brotherhoods in the campaign will be directed through Mr. Sheppard, according to present plans. He will arrange periodic conferences with other railroad labor chiefs.

Mr. Sheppard's work, under present plans, will be coordinated with that of Bert M. Jewell, head of the Railway Employes' Department of the American Federation of Labor, who expects to maintain a campaign headquarters in Washington.

It was explained today by Representative John M. Nelson of Wisconsin, national manager of the La Follette campaign, following his return from Washington, that Mr. Sheppard would direct primarily the work of getting votes among the railroad workers for the La Follette ticket, while Mr. Jewell's activities, and such other cooperation as may be offered by the American Federation of Labor, will be in the direction of the campaign for Congress and the State offices.

Assisting Mr. Sheppard in the Chicago headquarters will be Charles McGowan, National Vice President of the Railway Employes' Department of the American Federation of Labor.

The alliance of the officers of the Railway Employes' Department with the La Follette campaign has encouraged in many quarters the suggestion brought back from Washington by observers of the recent conference there, that the American Federation of Labor will eventually declare for the support of the La Follette ticket.

While this suggestion has no official confirmation, it is pointed out that the officers of an organization affiliated with the Federation would be rendering themselves subject to disciplining by the parent organization should their political activities encounter the disapproval of the national organization.

La Follette supporters throughout the Middle West were outspoken today in their predictions that high officers of the Federation soon would formally align their support behind the candidacy of the Wisconsin Senator and his colleague and running mate from Montana.

ORGANIZE FOR LA FOLLETTE.

Pennsylvania Branch Will Support Only a Presidential Ticket.

Special to The New York Times.

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 21.—A Pennsylvania branch of the National Conference for Progressive Political Action was formed here today and it selected an executive council which will act as a State campaign committee in behalf of the La Follette and Wheeler ticket.

Charles Kutz, Altoona, Chairman of the Farmer-Labor Party, was elected Chairman of the council and Charles O. Oyler of Harrisburg of the machinists' organization secretary.

The Presidential campaign for La Follette will be carried into every county of the State, but the council will support Congressmen of the old parties and will not in all probability have a State ticket.

Under the State law Senator La Follette must select his electors and nomination papers for them must be filed not later than Sept. 5. The council will have charge of the circulating of the papers which must contain 5,611 signatures.

The council will probably select a party name for convenience, as it considers the conference appellation too unwieldy. A special committee of twelve, consisting of some of the same persons later placed on the Executive Council, recommended that the Farmer-Labor Party name be adopted, but that was voted down.

The council decided tonight to meet at the call of the Chairman later when a name will be agreed upon.

One hundred men and two women attended the meeting which was in session all day. Representatives of the Railroad brotherhoods, textile workers, miners and other trade unions and a few farmers were present and the Farmer-Labor, Progressive and Socialist Parties were represented. The Socialist and Progressive Parties in the State will endorse the La Follette ticket.

La Follette Can Run in Maryland.

BALTIMORE, July 21.—There are no technicalities in the Maryland election law that will prevent placing the name of Robert M. La Follette on the ballot in this State as an independent candidate for President at the election this Fall, according to an announcement today by Assistant Attorney General Willis R. Jones.

$2,000 BET ON LA FOLLETTE

Against $20,000 That He Will Get More Popular Votes Than Davis.

A wager of $2,000 to $20,000 that La Follette will receive a greater popular vote than John W. Davis in the November election was one of the few election bets reported in the financial district yesterday.

President Coolidge continues to be the Wall Street favorite at odds of 3 to 1, with considerable money available at that price. It was said that $5,000 Davis money was available, but at odds of 4 to 1. Several small bets were made at 3½ to 1 on Coolidge.

JONES SUCCEEDS WALSH.

Massachusetts Senator Quits Senatorial Campaign Committee.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—Senator Walsh of Massachusetts resigned today as Chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee and was succeeded by Senator Jones of New Mexico.

"In accordance with precedent I am relinquishing my duties as Chairman of the Senatorial Committee," Senator Walsh said "as it is the practice for a Senator to serve in this capacity for only one Congressional election.

"The chief function of the committee is to keep in touch with and render assistance to Democratic Senatorial candidates. Senator Jones is not a candidate for re-election this year and is in position to give considerable time and attention to the campaign. He can be relied upon to make an active and successful campaign."

SEES END OF PROHIBITION.

Association Statement Predicts Combination of Two Big Parties.

A statement predicting that a combination of Democrats and Republicans would bring an end to prohibition was issued yesterday by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment at the Hotel Cadillac by Charles S. Wood, Eastern manager. The statement follows:

"Wayne B. Wheeler's repeated claims of 'dry' victories at the recent conventions of the Republican and Democratic parties," he said, "should be taken by the public with several grains of salt. The clever counsel for the Anti-Saloon League evidently believes that all that is necessary to make his statements true is to repeat them often enough.

"We shall shortly get rid of the blight of prohibition, just as it was imposed upon us, by a combination of Democrats and Republicans. The sensible and liberal minded men of both parties will unite to restore individual freedom and respect for law and to save the country from the growing public demoralization which threatens the peace and happiness of every citizen."

REPUBLICANS PLAN NATION-WIDE FIGHT

fort, and to try to gain it in another section by silence and evasion of issues. We have a party platform and a Presidential ticket that make it possible to conduct a campaign everywhere in the open, as energetically in one part of the country as in another, and to present our cause with the utmost frankness.

"The Republican managers are fully alive to the problems which are considered local to certain sections of the country, and we are prepared to meet them, but we will not meet them in any sectional way. The economic or social distress of any part of the country is a matter of national concern, and that is the principle upon which we will conduct our campaign.

"The suggestion that the campaign must be centred here or there to assure success, or that we must bombard any particular State or group of States, can only come from political parties or candidates that lack national appeal and viewpoint. I know it must be resented by the States in question."

Fred C. Hicks, who represented the First New York District in the House for several years, will be in charge of the Republican campaign headquarters in New York.

Hicks in Charge in New York.

Mr. Hicks had a long conference with President Coolidge and later saw Chairman Butler. With the latter he went over the situation in the East and left tonight for New York to take up his work and arrange the details of organization.

Mr. Hicks expressed the opinion while here that New York and New Jersey would be carried by Mr. Coolidge. He said he was familiar with the trend in those two States, which, he believed, will continue, as at present, favorable to the Republican Party, assuring victory by a satisfactory majority in November.

Isaac Siegel, who represented the Twentieth New York District in the House, was another caller at the White House, who gave the President encouraging news about conditions in New York.

"In my opinion, there is no doubt about the result in November," Mr. Siegel said. "President Coolidge will carry New York State, as every business man will vote the Republican ticket to prevent a change in economic conditions, and because of the fear that the third party movement may throw the election into the House.

"The attitude of the Democrats on the Klan is going to injure the Democratic Party greatly in my State. Furthermore, Smith admirers are not going to vote the Democratic ticket. Conservatives of all parties are afraid of the election going into the House and the possibility of a Radical becoming President. They are going to do what they did in 1896—make certain that this does not happen by voting for Coolidge."

SOCIALISTS LIKELY TO BACK WHEELER

Executive Committee Will Meet Here Today to Act on Second Place on La Follette Ticket.

BALLOT PLACE A PROBLEM

Several States Present Difficulties —Hope to Reach an Agreement Here With Third Party.

A committee of fifteen of the Socialist Party, appointed at the Socialist National Convention in Cleveland to determine the relations of their party to the La Follette party, will meet in this city today and tomorrow to settle that and other questions incidental to the coming Presidential campaign.

This committee, recognized as the Executive Committee of the Socialist National Committee, recommended to the Cleveland convention the Socialist endorsement of La Follette, who when the Socialist National Convention was held had just been nominated by the convention held in Cleveland under the auspices of the Conference for Progressive Political Action. Perhaps the most important business of the committee at its meeting today will be to take action on the nomination of Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana for second place on the third party ticket.

The committee of fifteen comes equipped with plenary power to act in this matter. The general expectation throughout Socialist circles yesterday was that the endorsement of Senator Wheeler would be voted with no more opposition than the two votes cast in the committee against endorsement of La Follette on the ground that endorsement by Socialists of non-Socialists for political office was too radical a departure from party traditions.

The committee of fifteen is composed of Morris Hillquit, Representative Victor Berger of Wisconsin, Judge Jacob Panken of New York, Cameron H. King of California, Joseph W. Sharts of Ohio, G. A. Hoehn of Missouri, Lena M. Lewis of California, Emma Henry of Indiana, Joseph E. Cohen of Pennsylvania, James H. Maurer of Pennsylvania, G. J. Hagen of Wisconsin, James Oneal of New York, George E. Roewer Jr. of Massachusetts, John Collins of Illinois and George H. Goebel of New Jersey.

Mass Meeting Tonight.

The meetings will begin this afternoon at the People's House, 7 East Fifteenth Street. The delegates probably will meet behind closed doors, but there will be at least one public session, a mass meeting this evening in the large auditorium at the People's House, which may be the formal opening of the La Follette campaign, so far as the Socialists are concerned.

Another problem to be considered will be ways and means to get the names of their candidates and electors on the official ballot in different States. In some States this promises considerable difficulty. In this State there are other obstacles also to be surmounted. The La Follette ticket was put in the field through a convention held under the auspices of the Conference for Progressive Political Action, in which the strongest element, perhaps, was made up of representatives of the great railroad brotherhoods, who are fighting for Government ownership of the railroads. The Socialists found the door readily opened by that organization when they indicated their desire to support a ticket headed by Senator La Follette and were admitted on terms of equality with other organizations which merged, formed the nucleus of the third party strength.

In this State the branch of the Conference for Progressive Political Action in which State branches of the railroad brotherhoods, as well as other labor unions—some of which are affiliated with the American Federation of Labor—form the dominant element, is not on speaking terms politically with the Socialists, and have not been for a year. On July 30 last year, at a conclave held in Albany, the Socialists were accused of attempting to gain control and were formally read out of the State Conference for Progressive Political Action amid bitter denunciation from many brotherhood men, who declared that under no circumstances would they permit their unions to become the tail of Morris Hillquit's Socialist kite.

Hope to Reach Agreement.

Socialists who were willing to talk yesterday admitted that the relations between their party and the Conference for Progressive Political Action in this State were all in a snarl and that there would have to be considerable ironing out before even a modus vivendi to hold good during the Presidential campaign could be reached. Some Socialist leaders even go so far enough to characterize the New York branch of the conference as an annex to Tammany Hall.

"We will try our best to arrive at some method of cooperation with the conference," said James Oneal, Socialist editor, yesterday. "The difficulties which arose at the Albany conference were based on a misunderstanding brought about by outside mischief makers for political reasons. Had any opportunity for an explanation been afforded there never would have been a break, and I for one believe that with the national brotherhoods prime factors in the third party movement our relations will be satisfactorily adjusted before the campaign gets under way."

Mr. Oneal also expressed the opinion that in the end the American Federation of Labor would be driven into inevitable indorsement of the La Follette ticket.

"If the Executive Council should determine to indorse Senator La Follette and his ticket, I feel sure that Mr. Gompers will go along and that there will be little or no friction within the American Federation of Labor over the indorsement, although some leaders, like Mr. Gompers, may be fundamentally opposed to such a move on general principles," said Mr. Oneal. "With the reactionary stand taken by the two older parties in their platforms in relation to labor and the character of their candidates, I cannot see that there is anything else for the Federation to do than to indorse the third party."

Seek Place on Ballot.

There will be a conference in this city within a week or so by third party leaders to devise a way to get the names of their candidates on the official ballot. The third party as such can take no part in the Fall primaries, although one of its component parts, the Socialists, being a recognized party already entitled to a place on the ballot, can and will nominate candidates at the primaries.

It was learned yesterday that the third party probably would put a candidate for Governor and other State officers in the field. This would be for the purpose of paving the way this year for giving the third party a regular standing and a place on the general ballot at future elections. Whether a party shall receive recognition as a party is a matter governed in this State by the size of its vote for Governor in the next preceding State election.

J. A. H. Hopkins, Executive Chairman of the Committee of Forty-eight and an important cog in the third party machinery, said yesterday that while the third party would have until Oct. 7 to file petitions for its candidates, the work of obtaining signatures for electors and prospective candidates for State offices would be begun at an early date. Mr. Hopkins, Darwin J. Meserole of Brooklyn, Gilbert E. Roe, former law partner of Senator La Follette and prospective director of his campaign in the East; Norman Thomas, Oswald Garrison Villard and Morris Hillquit are among those who will attend a conference to be held soon.

One concern of the conference will be to determine on a name for the third party in this State and an emblem. It was indicated yesterday that the third party in this State might be called the Progressive Party. Many of the third party organizations established through the efforts of the Committee of Forty-eight in other States have adopted that title. It was said last night that a third party headquarters under the management of Mr. Roe would be in operation in this city within a few days.

The Socialists at present are busy with preparations for their State Convention, which will be held at Finnish Hall, Fifth Avenue and 125th Street, on Saturday. Following the lead of the National Convention, the Socialist State Convention will adopt a plank condemning the Ku Klux Klan by name, a step that neither of the two older parties would take.

SAYS WHEELER CAUSES NO DEMOCRATIC WORRY

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 21.—Democratic success in industrial and other large labor centres, gained by a healthy cut into the Republican columns by Senator La Follette's Independent candidacy is seen by George E. Brennan, Illinois National Committeeman. Mr. Brennan expresses himself as "tickled to death" with Mr. La Follette's candidacy and pictures the La Follette popular vote drawn from a split Republican party while Democracy presents a united front for Davis and Bryan.

"The addition of Senator Burton K. Wheeler, a Democrat from Montana, to the La Follette ticket doesn't worry any Democrats," Mr. Brennan said today. "Nobody knows anything about him except that he was indicted in Federal Court for something or other. I'm tickled to death with the La Follette candidacy."

Mr. Brennan, chary about making any sort of forecasts, said that if the Conference for Progressive Political Action put candidates for State offices on the Illinois ballot, Judge Norman Jones's chances for election as Governor of Illinois would be enhanced.

The labor vote in the Fall election, which has caused a lot of speculation among political wiseacres, does not seem to be worrying Mr. Brennan.

"Anybody in politics, except some newspaper writers," he said, "knows that labor, except in New York is Republican. If the La Follette people are going to carry organized labor as strongly as they say they will, that will weaken the Republican and not the Democratic vote. Show me any large industrial centre employing labor and I'll show you a Republican city."

FIRPO QUESTIONED AT ELLIS ISLAND

Finally Admitted Despite Flaw in Passport—Girl on Ship Also Questioned.

As Luis Angel Firpo was being led down the gangplank from the steamship American Legion to the General Putnam for Ellis Island yesterday, immigration officials also took into custody two other members of the Firpo party and a woman who said she was Miss Blanca Lourdes, who had sailed from Buenos Aires on her way to Cuba.

The two men were Eduardo Carbone, secretary to the prizefighter, and Julio J. Bacqueriza, trainer of Firpo and also manager of Miguel Perrara, another of the Firpo party. Firpo and his aids were detained by the immigration authorities because of irregularities in their passports. Firpo's passport had been improperly visaed, but he finally was admitted because the flaw was slight. The other men will appear before the Special Board of Inquiry today.

Miss Lourdes was taken to Ellis Island because of her passport visa. Just what irregularity was found could not be learned, the proceedings of the Special Board of Inquiry being secret, but after a meeting Henry H. Curran, Commissioner of Immigration, announced that she would have to spend the night on the island. He said the hearing on her case would be deferred until after the vessel on which she has booked her passage for Cuba sails tomorrow.

This was taken to mean that if she sails as planned, nothing more will be done about her case, but if she intends to remain in the United States she will do so on the sufferance of the Special Board of Inquiry or the Department of Labor, should an appeal be taken to Washington.

LONDON, July 21.—More than 100 American and Continental delegates to the International Advertising Convention at Wembley arrived at Kingstown tonight on a short visit to the Irish Free State. They were met by a large number of members of the Irish Publicity Club, and were entertained at dinner at the Metropole Restaurant, where President Cosgrave presided over a large company, which included several other members of the Free State Government. Tomorrow the delegates, who will be accompanied by President Cosgrave, will leave Dublin for Killarney.

sent to the electric chair. Moreover, the Newark police point out that the confession was not made until six hours after he was arrested, so that if he had been drinking before his arrest he had had plenty of time to sleep it off before he made the statement. The policeman who arrested him said he was not drunk at the time."

Mr. Fach also said that Ware had not been able to give a satisfactory explanation for the scratches on his face and body.

Tells of Finding Ball.

Ware then repeated to reporters the same statement he had made to District Attorney Fach. He said that he was born in Greensboro, N. C., and had come to New York about a year ago, working in several New York and Newark restaurants and lunchrooms as dishwasher and counter man.

On July 14, the day of the McDonnell murder, Ware said he worked from 6 A. M. to 5 P. M. in the Fulton Street restaurant, after which he went to his room in East Twenty-third Street, Manhattan. He denied that he was on Staten Island that day or at any other time until yesterday.

The man admitted the charge on which he was arrested in Newark. He said that he went to Newark Saturday night and slept in a cheap lodging house. On Sunday afternoon, he said, he went to a moving picture theatre and met a fourteen-year-old boy. At that time, he said, he was sober. After the show, he said, he took some drinks and met the same boy again.

Ware said that it was while he and this boy were walking through deserted alleyways toward the railroad yards, where they were arrested on Sunday night, that he picked up the rubber ball which was at first believed to have been the McDonnell's boy's property.

After being taken to a police station in Newark, Ware said, the liquor he had drunk began to affect him, and the idea occurred to him that he could avoid the consequences of his offense in Newark by making a false confession to the Staten Island murder. He said that he thought that if he made a confession he would be taken to Staten Island, and that if he was not convicted there he would not be sent back to Newark to stand trial for the other offense.

Ware said that he then sent for the doorman, who brought in some other policemen, to whom he related his false confession. He said that he was able to embroider his "confession" with realistic details regarding the scene of the crime as a result of what he had read in the newspapers.

Asked about the scratches on his body, Ware said that he received them last Saturday, after the murder, but did not give any further explanation.

Must Face Newark Charge.

District Attorney Fach said that he still regarded Ware as a suspect, and would hold him overnight so that Mrs. McDonnell and others who saw a strange man loitering in the neighborhood shortly before Francis disappeared might try to identify Ware as the man. If no case against Ware is established, Mr. Fach said, the man will be taken back to Newark to face the charge against him there. This will be done under an agreement with Prosecutor John E. Bigelow of Essex County, who gave special permission for the temporary removal of Ware out of his jurisdiction.

The Staten Island authorities are holding Archille Esposito, 25 years old, a laborer, of 51 Grove Street, Port Richmond, S. I., on the charge of suspicion of homicide. The charge was contained in a short affidavit sworn to by a detective, so that Esposito could be held forty-eight hours for investigation.

The police admitted that their case against Esposito was no stronger than the one against Ware. Esposito was arrested early yesterday as he entered his boarding house after having been out at a party. Detectives had been looking for him since learning that he was released from Sing Sing only three months ago after serving five years.

Esposito has been working in a road gang near the McDonnell home since he got out of Sing Sing. The police say that he quit work at 4 o'clock on the afternoon of July 14. It was about that time that Francis was last seen.

Albert McDonnell Jr., 6-year-old brother of Francis, identified Esposito yesterday as the man he saw going into the woods with his brother, but the police think that the child's age makes his identification unreliable. Mrs. McDonnell and neighbors who saw a strange man in the vicinity said that Esposito was not the man.

Aside from Albert McDonnell's doubtful identification and the circumstantial evidence about Esposito's habits and movements, the police said they had very little against him. One of the puzzling features of Esposito's connection with the case, the police said, was that Mrs. Mary Gunte and her two small daughters, who board at the same house as Esposito, said that they had heard that Esposito had spoken about a missing child about 6 o'clock on the evening of the McDonnell boy's death, before his absence had become generally known.

The police were informed that Esposito went to his boarding house about 6 P. M. that day and said he had seen a woman looking very worried because her little boy was missing. According to the police Mrs. McDonnell did not begin to worry about her son's disappearance until 8 or 9 o'clock at night.

Another fact which the police learned about Esposito was that he was making plans to sail for Italy soon, to rejoin his wife, who went back to Italy. Esposito denied that he had committed the murder or had told of seeing a woman searching for her lost boy.

The police said last night that Esposito's overalls, which he wore at work on the day of the murder, are missing from his room and that a search will be made for them today in the woods where the crime was committed. Esposito, according to the police, drew $250 from a Port Richmond savings bank, closing his account, last Wednesday, the day after the body was discovered.

One part of the story told by Albert McDonnell has been verified by the detectives. He said that the man he saw go into the woods with his brother had given Francis some money. At first Albert said it was a dollar. Later he said that it was a round piece, larger than a nickel or dime. The police said that they had found a cigarette box containing a quarter not far from the place where Francis was strangled to death.

Round-up of Tramps.

It was learned yesterday that the murder of the McDonnell boy, a policeman's son, had resulted in police orders to round-up some of the tramps who make a practice of annoying children and women in the public parks throughout the city, as well as in isolated sections like the Staten Island woods. There have often been complaints of men of various ages chasing children and otherwise making a nuisance of themselves in Central Park, Morningside Park and other public playgrounds.

Magistrate H. Stanley Renaud, who sent two vagrants to the workhouse for thirty days each yesterday, announced that he intended to impose the same penalty on all men of this type who come before him. One of the prisoners sentenced by Magistrate Renaud in the West Side Court was John Hoffman, 50 years old, of 236 Waverly Place, who had been arrested by a detective in a Coney Island train on Saturday night because of his peculiar fascination for a newspaper story of the McDonnell murder. Hoffman borrowed a paper from the detective and showed so much excitement on reading the story that the detective questioned him.

Hoffman's replies caused the detective to suspect he might know something about the murder. He was arrested and questioned by Staten Island detectives, but proved an alibi. He was then charged with vagrancy.

Louis Frisi, 35 years old, who said he had no home, was arrested in the New York Central Railroad yards at 110th Street yesterday. He was also questioned about the Staten Island murder, but was able to prove that he was elsewhere at the time. The same disposition was then made of his case as was made of Hoffman's.

EVENTS MAY FORCE SMITH TO RUN AGAIN

HEARST'S DARE A FACTOR

Democrats Figure That Publisher's Selection of Lunn Will Drive Governor Into the Field.

Reports which reached Democratic circles in this city yesterday from Washington to the effect that the platform of La Follette's party in this State would include a wine and beer plank, made party leaders doubly insistent that Governor Alfred E. Smith must disregard any inconvenience to himself and again become the Democratic candidate for Governor this Fall.

The leaders who have talked with the Governor are well aware that it would be a personal sacrifice for him to take such a step. He said repeatedly while the Legislature was in session that this would be his last year in Albany, and that he was eager to see his term ended in order that he might return to private life and build up his fortunes. His last two years at Albany have involved heavy expenditures, and he is not a rich man.

The summons to Lieut. Gov. Lunn to become candidate for Governor, contained in an editorial in The New York American, signed by W. R. Hearst, is depended upon by the Democratic Party leaders more than any other thing to induce the Governor to become a candidate for another term. The editorial contained a direct challenge to the Governor to run for re-election, and the Democratic leaders do not believe that Governor Smith will take a dare from Mr. Hearst.

Forced Before by Hearst Menace.

George W. Olvany, new leader of Tammany Hall, was not at the Wigwam yesterday, but is expected at his desk today. Other Democratic leaders who were at Tammany Hall yesterday were in virtual agreement on one thing. Nothing, they declared, could be better calculated to drive Governor Smith into running for Governor again than the Hearst editorial. In support of their statement they pointed to the fact that it was the menace of Mr. Hearst becoming the party nominee for Governor two years ago that induced Governor Smith to turn his back on a high salaried position as executive head of the United States Trucking Corporation and re-enter political life at a time when nothing else could have induced him to do so.

The New York Democrats this year would find it awkward to put a wet or liberal prohibition plank in their State platform, in view of the fact that the national platform of their party is virtually silent on the subject, and that John W. Davis and Charles W. Bryan, Democratic candidates for President and Vice President, are both pronounced drys. With Governor Smith a candidate for Governor no liberal plank would be required, as the Democratic leaders see it, to keep the wets in line for the Democratic candidates and insure the best possible support for the national ticket in this important State.

Lunn Supported Volstead Act.

With Lieut. Gov. Lunn, who, while a member of Congress, was the only Democratic Representative from this State to support the Volstead act, running for Governor, as Hearst would have him do, and the State platform following the lead of the National Convention and omitting a liberal liquor plank, the leaders foresee wholesale desertion by good organization Democrats from the Democratic ticket this Fall, in the event that the La Follette State platform should contain a wine and beer plank.

In connection with this, it was recalled yesterday that if Tammany leader Charles F. Murphy had been alive at the time of the Democratic National Convention, he probably would have assumed the lead in a fight for a liberal prohibition plank in the Democratic national platform. Mr. Murphy, as early as last November, in an interview given at French Lick Springs, came out in favor of such a plank as the means of bringing about a national referendum on the liquor question, which would take it out of politics forever, by showing either that the country was dry or else that the country was for a modification of the Volstead law, in which event, as Mr. Murphy saw it, the large majority of Senators and Representatives who are personally wet and politically dry would have plucked up sufficient courage on the strength of the liberal majority at the polls, to amend the Volstead law in a way that would have legalized the traffic in light wines and beer.

What Murphy Would Have Done.

Mr. Murphy was never keen for bringing in the Klan issue and it was said yesterday that had he lived to take part in the convention he would never have stood for a resolution denouncing the Klan by name as long as there was any danger that it would be defeated on the floor of the convention. The presentation of his plank for a wet and dry referendum, it was said, in all likelihood would have blanketed the Klan propaganda and averted the action taken in the convention on the Klan.

In connection with this it was learned yesterday that the Socialist and probably the La Follette State platform will contain a plank denouncing the Klan by name. This is regarded by the Democratic leaders as another ground on which Governor Smith must be induced to run again to avoid defection from the Democratic candidates on the part of many thousands of voters in Tammany's own household who were angered when the National Convention defeated a similar Klan proposal.

They feel that with Governor Smith as a candidate for Governor any platform declaration on the Klan would be superfluous.

Only Governor Smith, they also say, could hold in line a large proportion of the labor vote, generally cast for Democratic candidates in this State, but wobbly this year in view of the platform offered by the La Follette party.

SOUND LINER BOSTON RAMMED BY TANKER

descried a ship's boat would put out and help its crew bring it to the side of one of the rescuing vessels.

Early reports failed to tell how many of the passengers and crew had been rescued, but it was believed that with the sea fairly calm there would be no difficulty in getting all safely aboard one of the succoring ships.

Was Running Close to Capacity.

Efforts to learn from Eastern Steamship Company officials at Boston the number of passengers carried when the liner left that port last night were unsuccessful. It was said only that she has been running close to her capacity of about 1,000 persons, and carried a crew of 180 men.

Vice President John W. Brophy of the Eastern Steamship Line announced in Boston last night that he was without advices himself as to the accident. The Captain of the liner is A. W. Call, one of the senior skippers of the fleet. With Captain Call on this trip was Port Captain Charles T. Snow, Commodore of the Eastern Steamship fleets.

There was no information available in Newport as to where the survivors would be landed.

The extent of the damage to the Boston was not known even to her officers, who said they expected the arrival of three tugs from Newport to assist in keeping the ship afloat. The tugs reported that they hoped to arrive by 2:45 A. M.

The Boston left Boston for New York last night. Her course took her through the Cape Cod Canal in the early evening, thence down Buzzard's Bay into Narragansett Bay and Block Island Sound.

The Boston Navy Yard was one of the first points to pick up the distress signals. Fragmentary messages were garnered at Newport and soon the Independent Wireless Telegraph Company at Easthampton, L. I., had intercepted a message telling of the death of four passengers in the smash.

The message gave no details as to how the passengers met death. Whether they were in their berths or whether they were standing on some part of the deck that smashed in was not learned. In view of the fog, however, it was conjectured that many aboard would have retired early.

Immediately upon receipt of the wireless distress signals, the air was cleared and operators at Naval stations and other important receiving points were alert to catch every word as to the nature of the vessel's distress and the kind of help needed.

Preparations were made at the Boston Navy Yard to send assistance if it was needed, and several vessels were got in readiness to dash from the Naval station at New London. Then came word that the oil tanker and the Fall River liners already were on hand. Ships in trouble in the Sound often put into New London and preparations were made in that city to receive the Boston if it should be decided to tow her there.

No advice had come three hours after the accident as to whether the Boston could be kept afloat. The wireless operator who had remained on board with the Captain was communicating steadily with shore points through the Acushnet, which was drawing alongside. The Naval Communications office in the Whitehall Building here also was keeping in touch with the ship, but had received no advices as to what would be the destination of the oil tanker once the shipwrecked passengers had been taken aboard her.

Three Naval Tugs Go to Scene.

If the fog should lift with daylight and the Sound was smooth it was believed the rescued might be transhipped to one of the Fall River Liners or perhaps to the revenue cutter and taken to the nearest convenient shore point.

Early reports of the accident said that the Boston had been rammed by the Priscilla of the Fall River Line. Later the ramming ship proved to have been the Swift Arrow, and it then developed that the Priscilla had been confused with the tanker when she sent word that she was rushing toward the rammed vessel.

Soon after the Priscilla drew near, it was learned that the Boston was leaking badly. Then came word that the tanker was standing by and whistling insistently for help.

Upon receipt of this word it was decided to rush help from Newport and three naval tugs, the Teal, the Rail and the Bobolink, were despatched from there.

The liner Boston of the Eastern Steamship Company made her first voyage from Boston to New York on June 4, while her sister ship, the New York, was still under construction.

The Boston represented the latest ideas in shipbuilding for coastwise traffic. She was designed by Theodore Ferris and built by the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Company. Like the New York, she is 502 feet long, of steel construction, twin screw, turbine driven and oil burning. Her tonnage is 5,100 gross.

The Boston is sponson-sided, with complete double bottoms. She has seven transverse water-tight bulkheads carried up to the main deck. She is plated with light steel between the main and hurricane decks and the saloon deck amidships and from the stem aft sixty feet.

She has accommodations for 500 passengers, with 345 staterooms and additional berths. She has large public rooms, including main deck dining saloons, dance hall, music room, smoking lounge, verandah café and other facilities. During her trial trip in Chesapeake Bay she averaged twenty-one knots.

The Boston replaced the steamship Northland, while the New York later replaced the steamer Calvin Austin. Boston and New York have been regarded as successors to the old twin ships Harvard and Yale on the New York-Boston route.

The Swift Arrow is a single screw steamer, built in 1921 for the Swiftsure Oil Transportation Company. She is 8,207 gross tonnage, 404 feet 4 inches long, 60 feet 2 inches beam, and 27 feet 7 inches depth of hold.

LONDON, July 21.—The decision of the Dean and Chapter of Westminster Abbey not to allow a memorial of Lord Byron to be placed in the Abbey because he was a "dissolute person" is the subject of several letters to The London Times. H. S. Perris, Secretary of the Sulgrave Institution, writes:

"It may be news to the general public that three times within the last ten years the severe Dean and his colleagues have refused to allow a memorial to George Washington to be placed in the Abbey. In view of the discussion which will probably be aroused by the Dean's action, I thought it would be of general interest that this fact should now be made known."

WIDER REVOLUTION PLANNED IN BRAZIL

Manifesto of Sao Paulo Rebels Asserts They Have Agents in Five Other States.

BUENOS AIRES, July 21 (Associated Press).—The Federal assault against Sao Paulo, the Brazilian metropolis held by the insurrectionists, may have already begun, according to indications contained in official dispatches from Rio de Janeiro. A recent communiqué issued by the Government referred to an airplane reconnaissance for "operations that are now proceeding."

The rebels, numbering approximately 16,000, are said to be confident of the outcome. It is declared that the revolutionary forces hold all the strategic points in and about Sao Paulo, and also have artillery placed on what are known as the English Bluffs, which command the roads leading to the city.

While groups of wounded men have been arriving in Santos, advices corroborate the indications contained in the official communication that there was no general fighting last week, the rebels having been busily engaged in preparing defenses while awaiting the expected major action by the Federals.

The postponement of the assault on the city by the Government troops is said to have been influenced by the foreign consuls, who protested against the bombardment. The Federals had hoped, it was said, to reach an agreement with the insurrectionists whereby the shelling and partial destruction of Sao Paulo could be avoided.

The Montevideo correspondent of La Nacion today obtained a copy of O Estado de São Paulo, the most important newspaper in São Paulo State. It contains details of the initial skirmishes of the revolution. It says that after three days of firing, and when the revolutionists had entrenched in several buildings with the expectancy of an attack by Government troops, the latter suddenly went away and disappeared from the city.

The revolutionists then occupied all of the Federal and State departments unchallenged, the State President retiring to parts unknown. The same issue of the newspaper prints the manifesto given out by the directors of the insurrection, explaining the movement.

Declares Revolt to be General.

The document says that this revolution is not an isolated one, but of patriotic nature, and of a high social and political significance of nation-wide character.

It is added that the revolution was planned many months ago and should have started simultaneously in São Paulo, Paraná, Santa Catalina, Rio Grande do Sul, Minas Geraes and Matto Grosso. Unforeseen circumstances, however, prevented the simultaneous start, but, the newspaper says, that has not affected the firmness of the movement.

The manifesto of the rebels declares that "this is an act of patriotism destined to completely modify the situation of the Government of the republic" in which a revolutionary program has been necessary. It declares that the national army cannot accept the Bernardes Government.

Among the objectives to be pursued, says the manifesto, is the ousting of the present Government of the republic, which is considered as "belonging in the same cast of despotic, incompetent and annihilating Governments of the past."

Rebels Said to Be Well Equipped.

La Nacion's Montevideo correspondent learns from an authoritative source, through private correspondence from Santos which eluded the rigorous censorship and was brought by the steamer Sierra Cordoba, which left that port July 17, that the rebel forces number approximately 16,000.

These are said to be composed of 4,000 infantry and 1,600 cavalry belonging to the São Paulo garrison, which have been trained by the French military mission, and also forces from nearby municipalities. The insurrectionist troops are declared to be perfectly armed and munitioned for three months. The revolutionists, according to the information, demand the resignation of President Bernardes.

La Nacion is in receipt of the usual midnight official bulletin issued by the Brazilian Government, which says:

"The situation of the rebels is becoming more and more precarious. They are being unable to replenish their provisions, which are already scarce in the city. The number of fugitives captured by local authorities is growing daily. Seditious forces attempted to obstruct the movement of the loyal troops yesterday. They sent two attacks against our centre, which were successfully repulsed.

"A patriotic battalion, which was organised under the name of 'Arturo Bernardes' a few days ago, today marched past the Government Palace. President Bernardes offered to present the battalion with a banner. He made an address in which he warmly encouraged the volunteers. They departed, cheering the legal authorities of the republic."

The Italian Consul at São Paulo has issued a formal statement denying the reports that some Italian residents of the city have joined the revolutionary movement, according to the correspondent of La Nacion at Santos. The Italian Consul warned his countrymen against intrigues with irresponsible persons who "are making offers to induce us to abandon the strict neutrality we are maintaining."

Britain to Act If Necessary.

LONDON, July 21.—Replying in the House of Commons to questions about the revolution in São Paulo, Brazil, Premier MacDonald said a British warship would be sent to Brazil if such a step were considered necessary.

SLAYERS OF FRANKS BOTH PLEAD GUILTY

my client and against my judgment and I know perfectly well that here in Chicago we can get as fair a trial as anywhere.

"The people are as liberal and as broad as anywhere and perhaps are in no different attitude from what we could expect. So we make no such motion.

Admits Truth of Confessions.

"As to motions against these two indictments, we have examined them carefully. We can find no substantial thing to criticise. If we could, we have practiced law long enough to know that it could be of no avail, because new ones could be drawn—and quite aside from that we don't think we could attack either one of these.

"We know, your Honor, the facts in this case are substantially as have been published in the newspapers and what purports to be their confession, and we can see we have no duty to the defendants or their families or society except to see that they are safely and permanently excluded from the public.

"Of course, after that is done we want to do the best we can for them within those limits.

"After long reflection and thorough discussion, so long as that is the only issue in the case, we have determined to make a motion in this court for each of the defendants in each of the cases to withdraw our plea of not guilty and enter a plea of guilty.

"Your Honor, we dislike to throw this burden upon this court or any court. We know its seriousness and its gravity, but a court can no more shirk responsibility than attorneys. While we wish it could be otherwise, we feel that it must be as we have chosen.

"The statute provides that evidence may be offered in mitigation of the punishment, and we shall ask at such time as the Court may direct that we may be permitted to offer evidence as to the mental condition of these young men, to show the degree of responsibility they had and also to offer evidence as to the youth of these defendants and the fact of a plea of guilty as further mitigation of the penalties in this case."

"With that we throw ourselves upon the mercy of this Court, and this Court alone."

Prisoners Plead "Guilty."

"Does that go for both the cases?" asked State's Attorney Crowe.

"Both cases," Mr. Darrow replied.

Chief Justice Caverly didn't permit the least bit of surprise to filter through his voice as he announced in even tones:

"Nathan Leopold Jr., will you please rise?" then said Justice Caverly.

Simultaneously the two dark-haired nineteen-year-old youths rose. The shorter raised his hand, a bit like a school boy ready with an answer to a question, to indicate that he was Leopold.

"If your plea is guilty, and the plea of guilty is entered in this case," Judge Caverly said, "the Court may sentence you to death." He paused. "The Court may sentence you to the penitentiary for the term of your natural life"—another pause—"the Court may sentence you to the penitentiary for a term of years not less than fourteen.

"Now, realising the consequences of your plea, do you still desire to plead guilty?"

"I do," replied Leopold.

"Let the plea of guilty be entered, Mr. Clerk, in indictment No. 33,623, charging Nathan Leopold Jr. with murder," said the Justice.

Leopold stepped back one pace, and Loeb forward one pace. Tears coursed down his uncle's face as Loeb answered the same questions, "Yes, Sir," and the Justice directed:

"Mr. Clerk, let the records show that Richard Loeb has pleaded guilty in indictment No. 33,623. Also, both defendants having been warned by the court."

These proceedings were repeated on the kidnapping indictment. Then the boys took their seats and were swallowed up in the crowd of attorneys, newspaper men, bailiffs and the few privileged spectators. Mr. Bachrach then stated that the defense had employed a number of alienists to consider the mentality of the boys and he asked the State to take cognizance of their evidence. The alienists, he said, differed in their opinions and he suggested that defense alienists confer with those of the State in reaching a decision as to the full mental responsibility of the defendants. He was aware that under the law neither the State's attorney nor a Judge was required to listen to a defendant's evidence having to do with his sanity when a plea of guilty was entered but, he pointed out, there were many reasons in this case why such evidence should be admitted.

"Are you people trying to plead these two defendants insane and guilty both?" demanded Mr. Crowe. "If you are, I ask your honor to call a jury."

Mr. Bachrach denied any such intention and gave his reasons for urging a conference of State and defense alienists. He said they would confer privately to avoid the spectacle ordinarily created by such testimony, which usually was turned into a vaudeville show.

The State's Attorney would make no statement as to whether he would hinder such a proceeding or not. He said he would give an answer in good time.

Justice Caverly then set the hearing for Wednesday morning and court adjourned.

Led back to their cells in the county jail, Leopold and Loeb's attitude was one of released tension. They laughed and talked eagerly with reporters, but refrained from discussing their trial. Leopold scorned the suggestion that either he or Loeb had been nervous, but both admitted they were glad the first day was over. They were curious about the ticking telegraph instruments in the court. They wanted to know how big a crowd waited outside and whether the headlines that told of them would be as big as the ones that announced the World War armistice.

"There certainly was a commotion when Mr. Darrow moved to plead guilty," remarked Loeb. "What is that the Judge will say when it's all over," he wanted to know—"the Court finds you—"

"Shut up," Leopold shouted.

Crowe To Present All His Evidence.

Mr. Crowe stated tonight that every bit of evidence that had been gathered by his investigators during the two months that had elapsed since the body of Robert Franks was found in a culvert would be put before Justice Caverly in the same manner it would be presented to a jury. Seventy-six witnesses will take the witness stand and exhibits, charts, plates and photographs—everything the State has in the line of evidence—will be laid before the Court.

Mr. Crowe is determined to do all in his power to show the death penalty is deserved and should be the sentence.

"The fact that the two murderers have thrown themselves upon the mercy of the Court does not in any way alleviate the enormity of the crime they committed," Mr. Crowe said. "As I informed the Court this morning, the State is going to prove not only that these boys are guilty but that they are absolutely sane and should be hanged. Such is my present position.

"The State will present its entire case in the same manner we would have presented it to a jury in the box. Every exhibit—the typewriter, chisel, kidnapers' letter to Mr. Franks, the bloody clothing, the automobile they used, Leopold's eyeglasses, their confessions—will be laid before Justice Caverly, who in this case is the sole judge of the facts as well as of the evidence.

"The defense is not permitted to introduce any insanity testimony because the law states that a plea of guilty to a fact automatically shows them to be sane. An insane man is not allowed to plead guilty to a fact.

"The defense may show certain circumstances which might have been a motive for the murder. As a hypothetical proposition they could show that Franks brought on a conflict upon himself and they killed him in self-defense. They might show, by the same token, that they killed the lad on the impulse of the moment in a state of uncontrollable passion.

"But for the defense to attempt to introduce alienists to testify regarding the mental condition of the two slayers would be going clearly outside the rules of evidence. There can be no insanity for a person who pleads guilty.

"Leopold and Loeb are now subject to being called by the prosecution, the defense or the court to testify. They are witnesses for themselves to show certain things which might lighten the punishment or they can be witnesses for the State to help prove they committed the crime as the State contends.

"There are only four punishments which the court can put on the defendants—death, life term in the penitentiary, a term of fourteen years or a term of any number of years between. It is clearly within his discretion.

"But there is but one punishment which will satisfy the prosecution. All our efforts will tend toward that one goal. They have thrown themselves upon the mercy of the Court and we will demand they be hanged."

Flee Perturbs Mr. Franks.

Jacob Franks, father of the slain boy, did not appear at the hearing but was represented by Samuel A. Ettelson, former State Senator, an intimate friend of the Franks family, who has interested himself in the case since the day Robert disappeared. When he heard of the surprise move of the defense in switching the pleas of Leopold and Loeb from not guilty to guilty, he at once summoned his car and drove in haste to the State's Attorney's office. On learning that both Mr. Crowe and Mr. Ettelson were absent, he asked reporters what had happened. When the procedure that had been followed was explained to him, he said:

"Well, I hope this guilty plea does not mean those boys will escape actual criminal prosecution, that the whole thing will be left to a Court Sanity Commission."

He was assured such was not the case.

"Well, then it means something, perhaps, that they admit their guilt," he said, apparently considerably relieved in mind. "Now, if ever there was a case on earth demanding the death penalty, it is this one. I've been of the opinion from the start that these boys should be put to death. No fouler or more brutal or more unnecessary murder was ever committed."

He branded as "all nonsense" this "talk of insanity."

POLICE NOW ACCUSED IN DEATH OF IMBRIE

Persia Presents a Formal Apology Through Washington Legation—Crime Condemned in Parliament.

TEHERAN, Persia, July 20 (Associated Press).—Developments in the investigation into the killing of Major Robert Imbrie, American Vice Consul, held to indicate that parts, at least, of the Persian Government's protective forces failed in their duty of defending his life when he and Melin Seymour were attacked by a fanatical mob last Friday, have caused anxiety here and the diplomatic body is addressing a serious note to the Persian Government, it was stated today.

The assault occurred in a crowded thoroughfare, and although it is declared that numbers of armed police and soldiers were present it does not appear that a shot was fired in defense of the victims. It is even alleged that soldiers formed a part of the mob. The autopsy on the body of Major Imbrie confirmed the report that there was a sabre cut on his head, and those acquainted with the equipment of the defensive forces say that only the military police carry sabres.

The Mejlis, the Persian Parliament, in open session expressed its sorrow and profound horror at the crime and urged the Government to pursue the investigation relentlessly. Many arrests have been made among civilians.

The latest details of the killing of the Vice Consul show that the attack by the mob occurred about 11 A. M., on Friday, when the American official and Seymour were driving past a fountain which is reverenced by masses of Persians daily and which at the moment was surrounded by a throng of worshippers.

The Americans alighted from their carriages a short distance away and Major Imbrie held up a camera to photograph the scene. The crowd objected and surged toward the Americans, who, seeing the menacing attitude of the throng, jumped into their carriage and drove away. The crowd followed, shouting imprecations and accusing the two Americans of being Bahais (members of a universay religious movement which originated in Persia three-quarters of a century ago) and of poisoning the water of the fountain.

The carriage got away quickly, but the uproar spread rapidly and at the entrance to the Cossack Barracks the carriage was overtaken by a man on a motorcycle and forced to halt. The crowd quickly came up to the carriage, and it is alleged that some of the soldiers also interfered to prevent the Americans' escape.

Vice Consul Imbrie was dragged out on one side of the carriage by the mob and Seymour on the other. Mr. Imbrie valiantly defended himself with his cane until he was struck on the head by a military sword. He attempted to rise but was knocked down again by a huge stone which broke his jaw. Meanwhile, Seymour was struck from all sides and dragged into the Cossack parade ground.

A detachment of police finally succeeded in getting both the injured men into an automobile and took them to the police hospital. The crowd followed and broke into the building, smashing doors and windows, and committed further assaults on Major Imbrie, who died at 3 o'clock that afternoon.

Persia's Apology Delivered.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—The apology of the Persian Government for the death of Major Robert Whitney Imbrie, American Vice Consul, who was beaten to death by a Teheran mob, was delivered to the State Department today by Mr. Bagher M. Kazemi, Counselor and Chargé d'Affaires of the Persian Legation.

He called at noon on Acting Secretary of State Grew and read an official communication from his Government as follows:

"The Persian Government assures the United States Government that it will do everything in its power to fulfill its duties in a diplomatic sense. The Persian Government is appalled by the disaster and promises every aid to apprehend the slayers of Major Imbrie."

The State Department today also received a cablegram from Joseph S. Kornfeld, American Minister at Teheran, stating that Khalosi Zodeh, a leading Mullah, with 200 persons suspected of participating in the crime, had been arrested.

Minister Kornfeld reported further that the Persian Prime Minister, the Minister for Foreign Affairs and representatives of the Crown Prince had called at the American Legation to express their condolences. The American Minister has asked the Persian authorities for a precise statement of the facts concerning Major Imbrie's death.

Major Imbrie was buried on July 19, the American Minister stated, with full military honors. The Diplomatic Corps, consisting of the diplomatic representatives at the Persian capital of various foreign Governments, has made a strong protest against the crime to the Persian Government. The condition of Mr. Melin Seymour is much improved.

State Department officials declined to comment on reports that the mob which attacked Major Imbrie and Mr. Seymour contained soldiers and police and that Major Imbrie had a sabre cut on the head which apparently was made by a soldier or policeman, since they only were armed with sabres. The officials stated that information on these particulars was indefinite, but they hoped these and other points would be cleared when a full statement was received from the Persian Government.

Imbrie on Bolsheviki Death List.

(Copyright, 1924, by the Chicago Tribune Co.)

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 21.—Major Robert Imbrie some time ago informed Admiral Bristol, American High Commissioner at Constantinople, that he had been on the Bolsheviki death list for six years.

He was particularly bitter against Bolshevism because, as Vice Consul at Petrograd in 1918, he had witnessed innumerable Bolshevist atrocities. After he fled from Russia he directed American military intelligence work from Viborf and personally made five trips into Russia disguised as a peasant. Later he found his name on the list of men who must be assassinated at all costs.

"When I was the diplomatic agent in Angora in 1922, the Russian Ambassador received orders to kill or kidnap me," Major Imbrie said several months ago. "The Ambassador offered the Turkish officials at Angora unlimited money if they winked their eyes while the Bolsheviki tried to get me.

"My friend, Premier Raoul Bey, heard of the intrigue and arrested some of the Bolsheviki gunmen who had been brought to Angora to try to kill me. Turkish troops kept guard over me every hour of the day until I left Angora eight months later."

When Major Imbrie was the American Consul at Riga and was watching the Bolsheviki, he was asked by representatives of the American Relief Administration officially to raise the American flag over a new American warehouse there. He cabled to Washington for permission to do this.

"Impossible because no precedent exists," the State Department replied.

Major Imbrie officially raised the Stars and Stripes over the warehouse and then cabled Washington:

"I have established a precedent today."

Major Imbrie was with General Wrangel, the Russian White General, during the latter's retreat. At that time he again incurred the hatred of the Bolsheviki and when he was in Constantinople he had to take precautions against murder.

Telegrams from Teheran say that it was a Bolsheviki mob that finally killed him.

LEVIATHAN HERE WITH SCREEN STARS

FORM A LINE ON THE PIER

Shake Hands Until Custom Officials Interfere—Prisoner in $20,000 Theft Arrives.

Five hundred men and women fought to clasp the hands of Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford last night when they stepped from the gangplank of the Leviathan of the United States Lines upon the arrival of the vessel at her berth in the Hudson River at Forty-sixth Street. The crowd had lined the pier as the Leviathan was being docked, wildly waving hats and handkerchiefs in greeting to the two motion picture stars, standing in the glare of powerful electric lights, which were aiding the longshoremen who took the hawsers from the ship's crew.

As the gangplank was shifted into place and the passengers on the Leviathan descended to the pier, the friends of "Doug" and Mary pushed aside 600 other visitors in their enthusiasm to reach the couple, who had spent six months on a trip through every country in Europe except Russia. As customs officers and policemen led "Doug" and Mary to the "F" section on the pier to examine their luggage the crowd broke through the lines formed by the steamship company employes on the pier, and packed around the couple so closely that Fairbanks had to fight to keep Mary from being crushed.

The Fairbanks smile was in evidence from the time he was descried on the deck of the vessel by a pretty girl on the pier. Mary also appeared to be enjoying the unexpected reception, but when the pressure of the crowd on the pier began to assume alarming prospects Fairbanks appealed to the enthusiasts to be more gentle and at least give Mary and himself some breathing space.

Finally a disorderly sort of a line was formed, and Fairbanks and Miss Pickford shook hands in turn with about two hundred of their admirers. Then customs officials, anxious to get through with the inspection of the Fairbanks-Pickford baggage, called a halt about twenty minutes after the handshaking began.

A wall of customs officers and pier employes was formed in front of the couple and the enthusiasts were held off in this manner until the inspection of their baggage was completed. After this "Doug" and Mary were ushered into a taxicab and drove off amid cheers and hat waving.

During the inspection of their luggage Fairbanks said that he and his wife expected to stay in this city for three or four days and then go to the Pacific Coast. He said that he had no new pictures in mind, but that Miss Pickford had three pictures which she intended to take under advisement. Fairbanks added that in Europe he and Miss Pickford viewed many pictures, the most outstanding being the Nebelinge and another Swedish picture, which he said, while excellent in their presentation, struck him and Miss Pickford "as rather heavy."

Another passenger on the Leviathan who aroused much interest on the part of his fellow passengers and the crew on the journey across the ocean was Paul Cannilieri, known to the police of both countries as "The Jockey." He was brought back in irons by Detective Sergeants Charles Kane and Bernard Dietsch in connection with the theft of about $80,000 in gems in the hold-up in the residence of Albert R. Shattuck, banker, in Washington Square north, a few years ago.

Cannilieri was arrested in Paris recently at the request of the New York police. It is alleged that he was one of the six thieves, led by a former butler in the Shattuck home, who imprisoned Mr. and Mrs. Shattuck and the servants in a wine vault in the cellar and fled with the gems.

Three of the robbers now are serving terms of sixty years in Sing Sing. Two are in prison in France on other charges. Cannilieri, it is expected, will be arraigned in General Sessions in a few days on an indictment returned soon after the hold-up. He was locked up at Police Headquarters last night and will be taken to District Attorney Banton's office this morning.

Among the arrivals on the Leviathan was the Duchess de Richelieu. She was one of the committee of women who tried in vain to save Walter Muir, an American youth, from being hanged in Canada. She was unaware that the death sentence had been carried out until informed by a friend, and expressed keen disappointment.

The Maharajah of Jind and the Maharanee, a strikingly beautiful woman, with a diamond glittering in her nose, were among the passengers. Four women servants cared for their two small children, while their retinue included valets and men and women attendants, all garbed in beautiful silks.

The Maharajah said that he was on a trip around the world for his health, having started from India several months ago. He said the party would stop at the Waldorf-Astoria for an indefinite period.

Others arriving on the Leviathan were Sir Paul Vinodograff and Mrs. Vinodograff, Russian exiles; the Rev. Dr. H. Emerson Fosdick of the First Presbyterian Church of this city; Walter Hagan, golf champion; Miss Gloria Swanson, actress, and fifty of the American athletes who participated in the Olympic Games in France.

Dr. Fosdick said he had been acting as exchange lecturer in England, Scotland and Wales in the two months he had been away. He said that he had made a careful inquiry during his stay in Europe on the status of the League of Nations and that he had become convinced that the principles of the League were proving beneficial to mankind and that America would have to get into the League.

Floyd Gibbons, correspondent for The Chicago Tribune during the World War, also arrived. He had with him an American flag which he carried on a trip through the Sahara Desert a year ago.

ROBBER'S SLAYER PRAISED.

Jack Sheppard Is Thanked by Prosecutor for Service to Public.

Jack Sheppard, who shot and killed one of the two robbers who attempted to hold him up with a gun in the vestibule of his home at 3,190 Hull Avenue, the Bronx, early Sunday morning, was congratulated yesterday for his bravery by District Attorney John E. McGeehan of the Bronx. The man who was killed was Vincent Di Martino of 803 Crescent Avenue. The other escaped.

One of the robbers had his gun pressed against Sheppard's chest as he pulled the trigger, but the gun missed fire.

When Sheppard presented himself to the District Attorney Mr. McGeehan exonerated him of all blame. "You did a good job in ridding the community of that man," the District Attorney said.

DE VALERA LOSES IN LEGAL SKIRMISH

Justice Burr Decides He Hasn't Power to Prevent Free State Sueing Foe in Ireland.

RIGHT TO SUE UNDENIABLE

Supreme Court Justice Burr handed down an opinion yesterday denying the application of counsel for Eamonn de Valera and Stephen M. O'Mara to restrain the Irish Free State from prosecuting an action brought in Ireland to recover $2,500,000 which the defendants collected in this country for the Irish cause before the Free State was established and deposited in New York banks and trust companies, where it now is. The defendants asked for the injunction on the ground that the Irish Government is prosecuting a similar action here and the defendants should not be compelled to defend both cases.

The defendants applied to Justice Wagner recently for the dismissal of the recovery action here. Decision has not yet been made, and for this reason the injunction against the trial in Ireland was asked.

Justice Burr states in his opinion that the suit in Ireland, set for trial today, is brought to compel de Valera and O'Mara to account as trustees of the fund. He goes on:

"A plaintiff is entitled to all the remedies provided by law for the collection of a debt, and need not be satisfied until it has such a judgment as will bind the defendants. This court has no power to restrain or enjoin the High Court of Justice in Ireland from proceeding with the trial of the action there pending. It has no power, and being mindful of comity required, ought not attempt to trammel or restrain the Irish Free State, which is a sovereign and friendly nation recognized by our Government, from taking such measures, and prosecuting such actions in its courts as it may deem necessary for the protection of its own interests and the welfare of its own people.

"The plaintiff has a right to sue in Ireland, and the action here is necessary because of the presence of the funds in the defendant banks, while the Irish action might be deemed necessary because the defendant trustees are there. There is nothing before me to warrant the assumption in the moving papers that the Irish Free State intends, or desires, or has the power to use the courts and judiciary of the country to work injustice to either of the defendant trustees in that action."

Justice Burr also heard an application by the Irish Free State to restrain the payment of funds recently granted to the defendants out of the money deposited here to enable them to defend the case pending an appeal from that decision. The Court decided because of the "novelty and importance of the questions involved" that the stay should be granted until the appeal is heard.

DUBLIN THRONGS CHEER RETURN OF DE VALERA

In First Speech Since Release He Says He Never Bore Arms Except to Defend Constitution.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, July 21.—With Dublin pretty full of Americans just now, there was a great display of republican spirit in the city tonight when a very large crowd thronged the Mansion House inside and outside on the occasion of the first public address of de Valera since his release.

Driving through the throng in an automobile, he was loudly cheered, and when the enthusiasm subsided inside the building he declared the republicans were no longer the rear guard, but were now the main body of the nation, and asked who now dared "to stand up and bend the knee" to a foreign power.

He contended he was a moderate man and said he never took up arms except in defense of the Irish Constitution, and accused Lloyd George of lacking the courage to go the distance necessary to secure a neighborly arrangement and securing a politicians' instead of a statesmen's settlement.

De Valera repeated that he never took up arms except in defense of the Irish Constitution and charged his opponents with sweeping away that Constitution, suppressing the Republican High Court and forcing the issue to a military decision. He admitted that he and his followers had suffered military defeat but said he would never have signed the cease-fire order were it not that they had gained a political victory.

The Republicans had no reason to change and would not change, he said. He ridiculed the Free State national loan and said the Republicans could get a loan of fifty million pounds in a week, because they were building on the solid rock of Irish independence.

"We are not robbers," he said, "and we are not murderers. We will do our utmost to create friendly relations with our neighbors, whether they are English, French, American, Scottish or Welsh. This is not a time for words, but for acts, and what we are most in need of is unity in defense of the cause of Irish liberty."

De Valera also addressed an overflow meeting outside the Mansion House.

TWO BANDITS GET $17,000.

Unmasked Men Take Payroll From Manager in Bethlehem, Pa.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., July 21.—Two unmasked highwaymen today robbed B. T. P. Tauss, manager of the General Cigar Company, of the semi-monthly payroll, amounting to $17,000 and escaped.

Tauss, accompanied by an employe, had driven in his automobile several blocks from a bank when two strangers, with drawn revolvers, stepped on the running board of the machine and ordered him to keep on moving fast. Tauss was obliged to drive up the Philadelphia Pike and turn in the Hellertown Road, where another car was waiting.

The money was transferred by the highwaymen into another satchel, after which the bandits drove toward Hellertown. Half an hour later Tauss appeared at Police Headquarters and related his story of the hold-up. The bandits answer the description of the two men who several months ago robbed the Saucon Valley Trust Company at Hellertown.

MRS. HERBERT IS RELEASED.

Court Says She Was Unlawfully Held In Auto Death Case.

Special to The New York Times.

NYACK, July 21.—Mrs. William Herbert, wife of the New York manufacturer, who has been missing ever since an automobile killed 7-year-old Edward Faccioli here May 23, was released today after being held as a material witness in the case of Bradford Case, a taxicab driver, whose car collided with Herbert's. Case is charged with manslaughter.

Mrs. Herbert said she did not know where her husband was. County Judge Patterson said she had been held "unlawfully and illegally."

From the Founder's Writings

There Are But Three Persons Who Have the Right to lay us aside—the doctor, the clergyman and the undertaker. In every man there is that which does not grow old if he did but know it.

To suffer oneself to being talked into feeling old, and therefore to lay aside one's occupation and to settle down into ease and inactivity, is in many observable instances to hasten the years and to hurry forward the end of life.

Rust is a greater destroyer than the moths.

Do not step out of the ranks of interest in the events of the day and hour.

Go straight on in your own way, and the nobodies, the mere talkers, will get out of your way.

Keep the "boy feeling" you have always had and live as Gladstone did, with a hope of a hundred years.

AU QUATRIEME

Normandy Peasant Kerchiefs

Au Quatrieme has just received from abroad some very amusing Normandy peasant kerchiefs—charming old hand-blocked ones of muslin, and a few of silk—which would be delightful to use on a candle-stand, an old chest or dresser—perhaps with a bit of pewter or a pair of lustres—or as table covers. Their freedom and spontaneity of color and pattern are endlessly fascinating and gay. Many are primly sprigged and bordered with intricate leaf and flower arrangements of a naïve charm, suggestive of those in the paintings of the Italian primitives. Others translate with patient fidelity the designs found in old Persian and Indian stuffs.

The combinations of clear Chinese yellows and lacquer reds, cerise with vivid greens and cornflower blues, and more demure mauves and snuff-color, primrose, beige and gray are inexpressibly engaging.

SPECIALIZED SERVICE—STREET FLOOR—NEW BUILDING

NEW JERSEY JOINS IN FIGHT ON TYPHOID

BROOK WILL BE DRAINED

Bathing Will Be Forbidden Near Englewood Ferry—Five More Cases Are Discovered.

With five more cases of typhoid fever traced to polluted waters at the Palisades Interstate Park, opposite the Dyckman Street ferry, further precautions were taken yesterday to prevent the spread of the disease which now has made ill seventy-seven persons, four of whom have died.

The new cases, like most of those previously reported, were children between the ages of 10 and 15 years. All had visited Englewood Cliffs and all had drunk the water of the brook or bathed in the river there.

Acting upon the telegram of Frank J. Monaghan, New York City Health Commissioner, Dr. Jacob Price, director of the State Health Department of New Jersey, sent Dr. David C. Bowen, of his staff, to the park yesterday to take necessary sanitary precautions. At the same time, as a result of his conference with Dr. Monaghan and Dr. Louis I. Harris, in charge of the bureau of infectious diseases, Major William A. Welsh, chief engineer of the park, issued orders that no bathing in the river would be permitted from a point one and a half miles north of the Englewood ferry to a point a half mile south of the ferry. Steps also were taken to drain the brook and clean it of all litter and to bury every apont of water coming from it. By today it is also expected that circulars in three languages will be ready for distribution at the ferry warning passengers of the danger to health, and that signs will be ready indicating what water could be used.

"Dr. Price replied to Dr. Monaghan's telegram yesterday," Dr. Harris said, "and indicated every desire to meet the suggestions made by this department for the protection of the health of New York City residents."

At the Palisades Amusement Park officials were kept busy yesterday answering inquries as to whether the water in the bathing pool there was polluted. They replied that the water was purified by ultra violet rays and changed every day.

VORONOFF GETS MONKEYS.

Six for Him and Six for the Pasteur Institute Reach Bordeaux.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 21.—A dozen monkeys that will be sacrificed to science and the revitalization of men, have arrived in Bordeaux from French West Africa. Six of the animals are to be sent to Dr. Voronoff and six to the Pasteur Institute in this city. The capture of the monkeys is particularly interesting as it shows that the officials of French West Africa are carrying out strictly the regulations which they drew up several months ago for the protection of our far distant and unfortunate cousins. The regulation forbade the capture of monkeys except under a permit signed by the Governor General, and then only under supervision and with nets and traps that cannot injure the animals. It is expressly forbidden to kill monkeys except in self defense. The request to make captures must carry proof that the animals are needed for scientific medical purposes, and state the number required.

The present shipment was captured under the supervision of a civil service agent, M. Godefrois, who has just been assigned to this duty. The official also has the duty of seeing that the natives do not export the skins of the animals. While it is strictly forbidden to kill monkeys, practically the only manner of enforcing the law is to make the killing useless by making it profitless.

It also is interesting in this connection that Dr. Voronoff is responsible for the elimination of monkey fur from women's costumes. It was when the tremendous potential value of the animals to human life was demonstrated by Dr. Voronoff that the Governor General of West Africa took measures to stop their slaughter. Now it is doubtful if monkey fur can ever come back as a "garniture" for costumes, as the principal French source of supply has been definitely cut off and it is probable that other Governments in the near future will take similar measures to protect the monkeys.

373,000 IN FASCISTI MILITIA.

Commanders Report to Mussolini and Approve Reorganization.

ROME, July 21 (Associated Press).—The Fascist National Militia includes 373,000 men, of whom 223,000 are of first and 150,000 are of second call, it was announced today after conference between Premier Mussolini and the commanders of all of the zones of the Fascist Militia, each of whom made a detailed report to the Premier on the moral and material efficiency of his zone.

All of the commanders gave their unqualified approval of plans outlined by the Premier for the reorganization of the militia, which will be presented in the near future for the approval of the Cabinet.

The J. B. Duke and Price Interests Form $1,500,000 Corporation.

QUEBEC, July 21.—Through the incorporation of the Duke-Price Power Company, Ltd., with a capital of $1,500,000, definite form was given today to the joining of the J. B. Duke interests of New York and the Price interests in Canada, which have been working together in the Chicoutimi and Lake St. John districts. The purpose of the incorporation is to develop and dispose of electric current within that part of the Province of Quebec.

It is understood that the principal source of the power will be at the $25,000,000 development in progress at the Grande de Charge, where the work is being conducted through the Quebec Development Company.

ENRIGHT'S BUFFER SHIFTED.

Detective Phillips Transferred From Office to Street Duty.

Detective Robert K. Phillips, for some time a clerk in Police Commissioner Enright's outer office at Police Headquarters, where he acted as guard of the inner office, was transferred from his post last Friday, it was learned last night when he reported to ordinary detective duty at the West Thirtieth Street Station.

Phillips met the visitors to the Commissioner's office and was known as a buffer between Mr. Enright and those he did not wish to receive.

The transfer to the West Thirtieth Street house was regarded as significant in police circles in view of the recent shifting of numerous other detectives and clerks who occupied posts that brought them into close touch with Commissioner Enright.

THE SCREEN

From Sawdust to Mud.

THE SIDE SHOW OF LIFE, with Ernest Torrence, Anne Q. Nilsson, Louise Lagrange, Maurice Cannon, Neil Hamilton, William Riccardi, Mrs. Fossi, Lawrance D'Orsay, Effie Shannon and Katherine Lee; adapted from William J. Locke's novel, "The Mountebank"; directed by J. Herbert Brenon; phonofilm. At the Rivoli.

It was a foregone conclusion that William J. Locke's delightful novel "The Mountebank" would make a most pleasing picture, as the story possesses a wealth of colorful atmosphere, coupled with an entwining pathos and cheer which would be sufficient inspiration for any producer. Then, in addition to being able to borrow from Ernest Denny's dramatization of this vehicle, the director's path was made all the rosier by having Ernest Torrence to portray the chief character.

Under the title of "The Side Show of Life," this photoplay is being presented at the Rivoli. It may be remembered that the narrative is spun around the life of an English clown whose funmaking is with a small and unsuccessful circus. When the war strikes France, this mirth-making patriot hies himself to his native land and enlists in the army, stepping up the ladder until eventually he becomes a General. Just as he is enjoying the fruits of his gallant conduct and knowledge of military strategy, the armistice is signed, and soon afterward he finds himself demobilised with many others of his rank. The tragic note is struck by illustrating that this man of mettle knows only one thing to do as a civilian, and so, in spite of the social bonds of his military career, he returns to France to resume the life of a clown.

One of the beautiful instances of pathos in this picture is where Andrew Lackaday (Mr. Torrence) loses his clever French poodle, the dog who worked with him in the sawdust arena before war snarled up the world. The little circus had failed and Andrew is seen trudging along a road with the faithful animal, when suddenly an automobile darts around a corner and Andrew's companion and co-worker is instantly killed. Those who have lost a dog will find tears come to their eyes as Andrew digs the grave for the poodle, and also when he stands still with unspeakable loneliness written on his features.

Coincidence plays a strong part in this story. A girl named Elodie comes by, and soon Andrew and she decide to appear in an act. Louise Lagrange is excellent as this tempestuous little French woman, who has no patience with Andrew's reading the very books which helped him afterward to become a Brigadier General. Elodie is hard, unsympathetic, thoroughly French in her mannerisms, utterly regardless of conventions, severe but faithful. Her husband had deserted her, and she anticipates with pleasure marrying the big, thoughtful Britisher.

As a General, Andrew discovers that one of his young officers, Charles Verity-Stewart, knows Lady Auriol Dayne, who was in the automobile which snuffed the life out of his dog. He falls in love with the English girl, played by Anne Q. Nilsson, but on being demobilized tries to forget the romance.

Horatio Parkin, Maurice Cannon was an important figure in the stage version; in fact, Lennox Pawle played this part so brilliantly that it vied with Andrew Lackaday for first honors. It is a pity that Mr. Pawle was not cast in this role in the picture, as neither Herbert Brenon, the director, nor Mr. Cannon appears to have grasped the necessary worth in this character.

Mr. Torrence is splendid as the soldier and, if anything, even more interesting as the itinerant clown. The costuming of this part has been effectively done—and who would not be interested in a clown with the old-fashioned painted face? Mr. Locke has drawn a wonderful contrast in the life of this funmaker who becomes a brass hat in the fighting lines.

Miss Nilsson is sympathetic as Lady Auriol Dayne, and Neil Hamilton is effective as young Verity Stewart. Lawrance D'Orsay, the veteran actor of pukegnatic English roles, is distinguished and dignified as Sir Julius Verity-Stewart.

"The Side Show of Life" is a picture we can recommend heartily as one of the best films we have seen for some time, a film which happens to be one which will appeal to people in all walks of life and of all ages.

Alluring Louise.

BEHOLD THIS WOMAN, with Irene Rich, Marguerite de la Motte, Charles Post, Harry Myers, Rosemary Theby, Anders Randolph and others; adapted from the story by E. Phillips Oppenheim; directed by J. Stuart Blackton; Riesenfeld's "Classical Jazz"; Edward Atchison, tenor, "Ah, Moon, My Delight." At the Rialto.

It it were not for sundry digressions from the theme established in the initial sequence, poorly written subtitles and a general tendency to introduce exotic sideshows, "Behold This Woman," based on a novel by E. Phillips Oppenheim, might be quite a significant screen effort. Even as it stands it is a good hot-weather entertainment which does not have to be watched too closely.

The idea of a misogynist's mountain retreat being invaded by a fair and exquisitely clad creature of the opposite sex, who is incidentally a celebrity in the screen world, naturally appeals to one as having dramatic possibilities. One conjures up how the scenario writer and J. Stuart Blackton, the director, are going to work out the salvation of the man who nightly drinks to the confusion of all women. Hence suspense is created. The misogynist's brother, John Strangeway, appears to be emphatically susceptible to women, especially after what we may suppose to have been a long term with his fraternal relative without the relieving sight of any creature in fine linens, silks and laces.

At first he permits this Louise Maurel to leave the Strangeway abode, but not long afterward he is seen galloping after the train and springing from his saddle to the observation car. John lands in Hollywood and finds a feast for his eyes, but nobody as interesting as the irresistible Louise (Irene Rich). She is portrayed by Charles Post, who will be remembered for his clever performance in "Wild Oranges." John has a beard, but he decides to go to a barber and a tailor, and so turns up one night looking changed for the better. He can give an occasional coy glance when clean shaven, but when he rolls his eyes with a beard it is too ridiculous for words.

There arises a contretemps, as one might surmise, and the fair Louise, in a huff, has decided to wed the blase Eudene de Soyre. John returns to the giant bungalow in the mountains with his brother apparently scoffing at him. They are about to resume their toast against women when a female bursts through the door, wraithlike in her white clothes, and John, long after the audience is aware of the identity of the woman, discovers her to be his alluring Louise.

The brothers, following several scenes of hugging by John and Louise, hit their throat goblets to the mighty toast: "To the confusion of all women—except Louise."

This is the best picture Mr. Blackton has made, or rather the best we have seen that he has directed.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Fay Marbe joined the cast of "Innocent Eyes" at the Winter Garden last night.

SCREEN NOTES.

Gloria Swanson, who returned yesterday from France, will leave for Paris in September to play in "Madame Sans-Gene," which Jesse Lasky has decided to produce in the scenes where the story was laid.

WILL PLAY MOVIE SUITE.

Philharmonic to Give Wilson's Composition at Stadium Tonight.

A serious musical composition derived from the score for a motion picture will have its first hearing at the Lewisohn Stadium this evening when the Philharmonic Orchestra, under the direction of Willem van Hoogstraten, will play a suite from the setting for "The Thief of Bagdad," composed by Mortimer Wilson. This will be the first time that music composed for the movies has been recognized by a symphony orchestra. Mr. Wilson has figured on previous Philharmonic programs with his suite "From My Youth," performed in 1918. Other orchestral works of Mr. Wilson have been played by the Philadelphia, Chicago and other symphony orchestras.

Douglas Fairbanks, with Mrs. Fairbanks, is expected to attend tonight's Stadium concert, and Mr. Wilson has made a flying trip from California to be present at the first hearing of his work.

UNITED STATES TIRES ARE GOOD TIRES

What Latex means to U. S. Balloon Tires

NOTICE a balloon tire flatten under the weight of the car and you realize how great a responsibility for combined flexibility and strength low air-pressure construction throws on the tire manufacturer.

When the balloon tire was first being considered the makers of U. S. Royal Cord Balloon Tires had already developed the Latex Process—and patented it.

They had the supply of latex—liquid raw rubber—on their own plantations—and the methods for bringing it to this country.

So U. S. Royal Cord Balloon Tires are built of Latex-treated cords—and have strength and flexibility obtainable by no other method.

Combined with longer service, U. S. Royal Cord Balloon Tires have the advantages of accurate balance and a tread scientifically designed for low air-pressure.

Consequently their tractive and anti-skid qualities meet every requirement of safety and ease in handling at all speeds.

Trade Mark

U. S. Balloon Tires are made for 20 and 21 inch rims. Also U. S. Balloon-Type Tires to fit present wheels and rims.

Triumph Over Cochet-Brugnon of France in the Doubles, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3, 2-6, 6-3.

MRS. WIGHTMAN IS VICTOR

FINAL TENNIS POINT SCORE.

United States	55	Italy	4
France	28	Holland	3
Great Britain	16	South Africa	3

COLOMBES, France, July 21 (Associated Press).—America's tennis stars tonight stood supreme among the world's best after this afternoon gaining two more triumphs, which gave them a clean sweep of all five Olympic championships.

The concluding victories were scored in the men's doubles by Vincent Richards and Francis T. Hunter, who beat the Frenchmen, Henri Cochet and Jacques Brugnon, in a stirring five-set struggle, and in the mixed doubles by R. Norris Williams 2d and Mrs. George Wightman, who easily defeated their compatriots, Vincent Richards and Mrs. Marion Z. Jessup, in straight sets. The score in the men's doubles was 4-6, 6-2, 6-3, 2-6, 6-3, and in the mixed doubles, 6-2, 6-3.

Bringing to a close the nine-day tournament, which was fought in torrid weather, at times under the handicap of unsatisfactory conditions, today's matches were witnessed by less than 1,000 persons. They proved an anticlimax after the sensational victories yesterday by Miss Helen Wills over Mlle. Emilienne Vlasto of France in the women's singles and by Vincent Richards over Henri Cochet of France in the men's singles, which clinched the team victory for the United States, Miss Wills and Mrs. Wightman having won the women's doubles the day previous.

The final triumph, however, added substantially to the score of the Americans, who finished with a total of 55 points, nearly double that of France, the nearest rival, which had 28 points. Great Britain took third place with 16 points, Italy and Holland gained 4 points each, and South Africa collected the remaining 3 points.

Three Hold Two Titles Each.

The two youngest American stars, Miss Wills and Richards, and Mrs. Wightman each emerged from the tournament with two titles. The national woman's champion gained the singles crown and shared the women's doubles title with Mrs. Wightman, who also won the mixed doubles title this afternoon. Richards won in the men's singles and men's doubles and, but for the heavy toll his triumph with Hunter exacted on his strength, might have scored a third victory in the mixed doubles with Mrs. Jessup.

This final, however, was quickly decided in favor of Williams and Mrs. Wightman, who were superior on strategy and striking despite the fact that Williams was playing under the handicap of a bad ankle. Richards was obviously tired and Mrs. Jessup, who was unable to hold up her share of the burden, proved the weakest player of the quartet.

The Franco-American doubles final provided the afternoon's only thrills, but the match became tame when, after battling the Americans on even terms in the first four sets, Cochet and Brugnon wilted in the deciding sets while Richards and Hunter displayed the steadiest attack and best team work they had exhibited at any stage of the match.

Throughout the match, which sparkled with brilliant volleying, sensational gets and rapid-fire net exchanges, Richards and Cochet were the dominating figures on opposite sides of the net. Although he pulled himself together in the final set, Hunter for the most part was erratic, repeatedly netting easy shots, while he and his team-mate frequently were caught flat-footed by Cochet's sharply angled drives which whistled through for placements.

Brugnon was the weak link on the French side of the net, his occasional flashes of brilliancy failing to offset his poor service and faulty returns while his partner rose to spectacular heights to keep his team in the running.

Richards Sets Fast Pace.

After a closely fought first set, in which the Frenchmen won through superior team work, the Americans quickly romped through the next two sets, with Richards leading in the dynamic attack. The fourth set saw the Frenchmen at their best. They smashed with far greater accuracy than their rivals and lobbed effectively, racing through the last four games in overwhelming fashion to square the match.

This rally, however, told on Cochet and Brugnon, for after a brief final stand in the fifth set they were easy victims of the fiery attack of the Americans. The recapitulation of the match shows that the French pair earned more points than their rivals, but also committed a great number of errors.

Third place in the men's doubles was decided in favor of France this afternoon when Jean Borotra and René Lacoste defeated Condon and Richardson of South Africa, 6—3, 10—8, 6—3.

The play-off for third place in the mixed doubles was scheduled for this afternoon, but owing to the injury suffered by the British woman star, Miss Kathleen McKane, when she fell Sunday, she and her partner, Mr. Gilbert, scratched, giving the Holland pair, Mme. Bouman and M. Timmer, a walk-over.

POINT SCORE OF NATIONS.

United States	85	Switzerland	18
Gt. Britain	38	Denmark	12½
Finland	34	Argentina	12
Norway	21½

PARIS, July 21 (Associated Press).—The United States, by completing its tennis triumph today, not only made a clean sweep of all of the major branches of the Olympic competition but rolled up a point total which clinches the all-around championship of the games.

The completed tabulation tonight of points for the sixteen events thus far competed shows that America is far in the lead with 93 points, double that of the nearest rival, France, which has 47 points and cannot overhaul the United States even if triumphant in the remaining four sports which are to be completed this week.

France jumped to second place by scoring heavily in tennis, gymnastics, fencing and the modern pentathlon. Great Britain is now third with 38 points and Finland fourth with 34 points. The United States added 10 points under the Olympic scoring system for tennis and 2 more for gymnastics, the tabulation tonight reveals.

Championships have been carried off by the United States in eight fields of rivalry, including track and field, rowing, swimming, tennis, boxing, catch-as-catch-can wrestling, rugby and target shooting. Norway, with victories in the Winter sports and the hunting shooting, is the only other nation to take two Olympic crowns. The other six championships are distributed among France in fencing, Sweden with the modern pentathlon, Finland with Greco-Roman wrestling, Argentina with polo, Uruguay with soccer and Italy with gymnastics.

Altogether, twenty-two of the forty five competing nations gained places in the scoring columns, with the only remaining contests in yachting, weight lifting, cycling and the equestrian games.

INJURY MAY KEEP WILLIAMS OFF COURT

Hopes Ankle Will Be Well in Time for Davis Cup—Stars Leave for Madrid Today.

PARIS, July 21 (Associated Press).—R. Norris Williams, Captain of last year's American Davis Cup team, whose sportsmanship in playing out the Olympic tennis championships with a badly injured ankle has been the subject of widespread favorable comment, likely will pay for his gameness by being kept out of further competition for a month.

Williams last week twisted his right ankle and tore several ligaments. Nevertheless he competed in the remainder of his matches, including the final in the mixed doubles today, which he won with Mrs. Wightman, notwithstanding the intense pain from which he suffered. His injury may cost him a chance to make the Davis Cup team this season, although he expresses confidence that he will be fit and ready when the final selection of the team is made.

Williams, with the other men members of the victorious American Olympic team, and Mrs. Wightman, will leave tomorrow for Madrid, where two days of exhibition matches are to be played. José and Manuel Alonso, the Spanish stars, probably will meet the Americans in some of the matches.

The entire American team is booked to sail for New York next Saturday from Cherbourg on the steamer Aquitania in order to prepare for the national championship season. The Americans will be accompanied by Norman E. Brookes, the veteran Australian player, who is not likely to compete in the Davis Cup elimination contests, but is expected to act as chief strategist for the antipodean players.

FRENCH YACHT WINS HEAT IN OLYMPICS

HAVRE, France, July 21 (Associated Press).—The elimination races for the six and eight meter yachts entered in the Olympic competition began today under a sunny sky, with a smooth sea and mild breezes.

In the eight-meter class the French boat, Namoussa, finished first, but the Bera, of Norway, which came in second, filed a protest, claiming the French boat touched a buoy twice as she was rounding it. As such fouling involves disqualification, the question likely will have to be decided by the committee. Should the objection be upheld Bera would be placed first; Emily, England, second; Blue Red, Argentina, third, and Antwerpia, Belgium, fourth. The time of Namoussa over the sixteenth-mile course was 3:16:11.

In the six-meter class, ten miles, Bonzo, Denmark, won, with Willem VI., Holland, second, and Elizabeth V., Norway, third. The other boats finished as follows: Aloha, Sweden; Mebi, Italy; Clas, Belgium; Amoiradar, Spain, and Sandra, France. The Cuban boat, Hatuey, sailed by her owner, Enrique Conill, after making a good start and occupying sixth place for a good portion of the race, fell back to ninth place and then abandoned the race.

The yachts will continue the elimination races tomorrow and Wednesday. The boats which finish first and second will qualify for the two semi-finals, to be sailed Thursday and Friday. The finals will be sailed Saturday.

LONDON SEES END OF OLYMPIC GAMES

The Times Says World Peace Is Too Precious to Be Upset by Athletic Outbreaks.

DISORDERS ARE DEPLORED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 21.—Disagreeable incidents which have marred the Olympic Games are being deeply deplored by London newspapers, and under the heading of "No More Olympic Games," The London Times publishes an editorial based on a dispatch from its Paris correspondent.

"Miscellaneous turbulence, shameful disorder, storms of abuse, free fights and the drowning of national anthems of friendly nations by shouting and booing," says The London Times, "are not conducive to an atmosphere of Olympic calm. Disturbances of this kind, culminating in open expressions of national hostility might conceivably end in worse trouble than the duel which, it is feared, may take place as result of the personal quarrel in which a Hungarian and Italian fencer have allowed themselves to become involved. The peace of the world is too precious to justify any risk, however wild the idea may seem, of its being sacrificed on the altar of international sport.

"The right spirit of such sport was finely shown in the meeting at Stamford Bridge on Saturday between the athletes of the United States and the British Empire, but in the Olympic contests it seems this camaraderie is not proof against the loss of self-control to which national partisanship may give rise. Some of the French newspapers, we learn, have themselves been moved to express the view that the Olympic Games do more harm than good in international relations.

"As for the British attitude, our Paris correspondent says that no one, it is to be feared, will feel justified in again appealing to the public to support the sending of a full team to another Olympic revival. It may be expected that the Americans, with whom the British competitors always have been cordial, will concur in this view and that the death knell of the Olympic Games has, in fact, been sounded."

The London Times Paris correspondent in his dispatch says:

"It is not my article like delivering the funeral rites of the Olympic Games." He refers to the incident in the boxing competition, during which a British contestant was severely bitten on the chest by his French opponent, and declaration of the English-speaking contestants to withdraw from the boxing events unless the judges' verdict in favor of the Frenchman was reversed.

"This, of course, is only an incident," says the correspondent, "and one incident should not be enough to make us withdraw from the games, but it was the culmination of what has been going on since the first free fight broke out in the French-American Rugby football match. Great Britain happily has not been involved in many of the major unpleasantnesses which other countries have suffered even later in the matter of judging or in the hostility of spectators.

"In contrast with the persistent hostility to the Americans, indeed, our treatment even at times has seemed to be almost cordial.

"It should even more clearly be put on record that the Americans have behaved admirably. Under extreme provocation they have shown nothing but good humor and generous appreciation, and it may be that, if the hopes we have built of the games are to fail, the gain from the closer drawing together of the British and American athletes after having been tried here in the same furnace will more than counterbalance the loss.

"It is, however, not a question of individual nations any more than it is of particular incidents. The fact is that it has once more been demonstrated with dreadful clearness that the games aggravate international bitternesses instead of soothing them. It is useless to attempt to create a standard of sport which will react to the improvement of political relationships so long as these political relationships are permitted, from the outset, to embitter and demoralize the sport."

AUSTRIAN IS VICTOR AT WEIGHT-LIFTING

PARIS, July 21 (Associated Press).—Tiny men, with muscles that stood out under clear skins like taut hawsers, started the Olympic weight lifting competition in the Velodrome this afternoon. The United States is not represented in this branch of sport.

The men competing this afternoon were in the featherweight class. Stadler, of Austria, won first place and Francis second. Stadler of Austria lifted in a one-hand snatch 78 kilos (171.6 pounds) or 16 kilos (35.6 pounds) more than his own weight. Martin, of France came within a few grammes of the Austrian's lift.

There are 130 of the strongest men of sixteen nations entered in this division of the games. The nations represented are Argentina, Austria, Belgium, Egypt, Esthonia, France, Great Britain, Holland, Italy, Latvia, Luxembourg, Portugal, Sweden, Switzerland, Czechoslovakia and Turkey.

Tomorrow the only three representatives of the Western Hemisphere, Dr. Bergara and Señores Planta and Rovere of Argentina, will compete in the light heavyweight class.

Thirty-eight members of various American Olympic teams returned to America last night on the Leviathan. They were the advance guard of the Olympic party, the majority of whom remained abroad for the London games and to make a few sight-seeing tours before returning home. Officials in the party were Avery Brundage of Chicago, a member of the Executive Committee of the American Olympic Committee who was on the 1912 team, and Johnny McHugh of this city, who officiated as starter in the track sports. Both Brundage and McHugh expressed themselves as pleased with the treatment they received abroad and declared that the games this year far excelled those of any previous Olympic meet.

"The outstanding feature of the 1924 meet," said Brundage, "was the work of the Finns. Great as were the victories America scored in the several departments of Olympic competition, far greater was the showing made by that great little band of track and field athletes wearing the colors of Finland. In Nurmi the Finns have produced the greatest runner of all time. He is seemingly tireless, running any distance and finishing as fresh as when he starts. He is the wonder-runner of the age."

According to McHugh, the track that the French laid out for the games was the fastest in the world. It was made of reddish cinders and made a wonderful stretch for the athletes.

VILLA OUTPOINTS WOODS.

BOSTON, July 21.—Pancho Villa, world's flyweight champion, fighting at catch weights with Willie Woods of Scotland tonight, won an easy decision. Except in the first round Villa used his opponent as a punching bag, often without a return. In the ninth round the champion floored Woods, but the Scotch boxer was back on his feet before the count began.

Boxing Federation Approves International Championships

PARIS, July 21.—International amateur boxing championships will be organized beginning next year in North and South America, Europe, Africa and Oceania under the auspices of the International Federation of Amateur Boxing Association, which approved the plan at a meeting last night, at which the United States was represented.

FISCHER IS BEATEN IN MET. TITLE PLAY

Feibleman Stages Uphill Battle and Eliminates Cynwyd Star, 0-6, 6-3, 9-7.

DR. KING WINS FROM HALL

Bruneau Triumphs Over Sommers, 6-1, 6-2, and Reaches the Fifth Round on Crescent A. C. Court.

Carl Fischer of Cynwyd, Pa., who is placed seventh in the national tennis ranking, was eliminated from the metropolitan grass court championship by Edward W. Feibleman, formerly of Harvard, in the fourth round yesterday on the courts of the Crescent A. C. at Bay Ridge, Brooklyn. The score was 0—6, 6—3, 9—7. The result constitutes one of the biggest upsets of the tennis season, in spite of the fact that it is not the first reversal that Fischer has met this year. Feibleman, who has been a serious contender in a number of local tournament, was not judged to stand much chance of taking even a set from the ex-intercollegiate champion. His triumph was all the more noteworthy because of the fact that it was gained through a fine pull-up in the final set, when Fischer led at 4—3 and five times was within two points of the match when he led at 7—6, 30—all, but that was as close as he came to winning.

Feibleman's victory put him in the fifth round. Two other players gained this bracket. They were Dr. George King, former metropolitan clay court champion, and Armand L. Bruneau of the Terrace Club of Brooklyn. Dr. King gave another performance in winning from J. G. Hall at 6—1, 6—1, while Bruneau put out Ralph J. Sommers at 6—1, 6—2.

Owing to the fact that the finals of the singles and doubles in the Illinois championships were both played on Sunday at Glencoe, two members of the Australian Davis Cup team, Captain Gerald L. Patterson and Pat O'Hara Wood, and Howard and Robert Kinsey of California failed to arrive in time to go on the courts yesterday. R. L. Schlesinger and Fred Kalms, the two other members of the Antipodean combination, and Harvey Snodgrass of California reached this city yesterday morning and made their first appearance in the tournament in the afternoon. Schlesinger and Snodgrass played through two rounds, while Kalms was put out in his first match. He drew as his opponent S. Howard Voshell of Kew Gardens, who has been playing some of the best tennis of his career this season. Voshell won in two sets at 6—2, 6—4.

Kalms Strokes Well.

This match proved to be anything but the walk-away that some expected. On the strength of the showings made by the two players in the tournament at the Nassau Country Club a few weeks ago, Voshell was a easy victory for what was looked forward to. Kalms was overwhelmed by Edward Chandler of California at Nassau and Voshell defeated the latter in two sets without any great difficulty. Kalms showed a distinctly superior brand of tennis yesterday, however, to the kind he played in the Nassau tournament, which marked his first appearance on grass in this country. His strokes carried full length and he came to the net frequently to back them up with well executed volleys and effective overhead smashes.

Voshell was forced to do a lot of court covering and he found that his service, which usually is a big point winner for him, was not as great an assets as usual against the Australian. The Long Island star played fine tennis himself, stroking severely and making many fine shots on the run, many of them catching his opponent out of position and going for aces.

Schlesinger, making his first appearance in this section since last year, when he was sent over as a member of the Australian team for the first time, displayed the same kind of a game as Kalms, varying his play, however, by resorting to a chop stroke and displaying a greater willingness to go to the net, where he handled himself with steadiness and brought off many volley aces and kills. His first opponent was J. McFarland, whom he defeated at 6—2, 6—4. McFarland played fine tennis in streaks, passing his opponent at times at the net and mixing up his shots with good judgment. He was never a serious contender for the match but he kept Schlesinger working at an interesting pace.

Australian Beats Kashio.

In the next round Schlesinger met Seiichiro Kashio of the Japanese Davis Cup team. With Japan and Australia favored to meet in the final of the American zone Davis Cup play, this match was of particular interest to the gallery. It was a hard fought backcourt duel that was decided in two close sets at 6—4, 6—4. Both of the players put their main reliance upon their ground strokes, for on most of the occasions when either went forward he was passed down the side or across court. Schlesinger got in the better work of the two at close quarters, angling his volleys more accurately and keeping the ball out of the net better on his low volleys.

Schlesinger passed the acid test of racquet control when he outsteadied Kashio. Ordinarily Kashio can keep the ball in play a little bit longer than his opponent in a backcourt driving duel, but yesterday it was he who was making the errors most of the time, failing to stand up against the speed of the Australian's strokes. It was a well played match and the gallery found much to applaud in the work of both men.

LUIS FIRPO ARRIVES FOR WILLS BATTLE

WILL MEET RICKARD TODAY

Date and Training Camp for Coming Bout Are Questions to Be Considered With Promoter.

Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine boxer, who is to meet Harry Wills, the New Orleans negro, some time in September, to determine who shall face Jack Dempsey in the next world's heavyweight championship bout, arrived here from Buenos Aires yesterday on board the Munson Line steamer American Legion. He appeared in good condition and was more observful than on his previous visits to this country.

Firpo's arrival was delayed for more than two hours when it was found that the South American's passport had been improperly vised. This made it necessary for him to be taken to Ellis Island, and it was not until after 5 o'clock in the afternoon that he was landed at the United States Barge Office, free to engage in his quest for more ring laurels.

Later Commissioner of Immigration Henry H. Curran explained that the boxer's passport was not technically in order, but added that the irregularity was considered so slight that it was decided to admit him. Firpo was granted the customary stay of six months in the United States.

The delay in Firpo's arrival caused a postponement of the conference which Tex Rickard, promoter of the coming Firpo-Wills match, had planned to hold with the Argentine in Madison Square Garden in the afternoon. The conference is now scheduled for this afternoon, when final details of the match will be closed, including the definite naming of the date for the match and of the camp where Firpo will train. It is understood it will be held in the middle of September in Rickard's huge wooden bowl on Boyle's Thirty Acres, Jersey City.

Firpo in High Spirits.

To those who recalled the reticent, even sullen, Firpo on his first visits to this country, the Firpo of yesterday appeared a decidedly changed person. He was in high spirits, seemed pleased to be back, and was more than willing to engage in conversation, though he still requires an interpreter to explain his views.

His personal appearance also has undergone a great change. There was no celluloid collar and ill-fitting suit such as marked his first appearance here. Instead, the Firpo that landed here yesterday was attired in a well-tailored brown suit, a black fedora hat and a silk shirt and collar to match.

Firpo said that he never felt in better condition. He announced that four days before sailing he weighed 218 pounds and that he would not reduce that mark by more than six or eight pounds for his bout with Wills. He said that he did not think he would require more than four weeks of intensive training to get in shape for the negro and that, while he did not want to boast, he was confident he would win.

From his general attitude, however, it would seem that Firpo intends to place his future plans, and particularly those applying to his training, in the hands of Rickard. He said that he was leaving the selection of his camp site entirely up to Rickard, and that even the question of sparring partners and trainer would be left for the Garden promoter to decide.

Firpo did say, however, that he would not train at a seashore resort, as he did at Atlantic City for Dempsey last year, his contention being that the seashore climate does not agree with him and that it caused the attack of rheumatism which affected the use of his left arm in his championship fight.

Says He Will Surprise Critics.

In commenting further on his left, Firpo declared that he had been giving it special attention, with the result that it not only is as strong as ever, but even more effective than his right. He said the critics would be in for a big surprise when they see him use his left hand. He also stated that possibly Jimmy DeForest would assist in the final stages of his training.

Firpo also stated with considerable emphasis that he now has no intention of retiring from the ring. He refused to comment, however, on the possibility of a return meeting with Dempsey, stating that that was a matter which the result of his coming Wills battle would largely decide. His exhibition, poor, showing against Erminio Spalla, the Italian, who stayed fourteen rounds with him in their bout last Spring in Buenos Aires, by the fact that he had been up all of the night before the fight fixing an automobile, and that he also had taken aspirin to drive away a headache, all of which slowed him up.

Immediately after his passage difficulties at Ellis Island had been straightened out Firpo, accompanied by his attorney, Hyman Bushel, left for the latter's home at 623 West 137th Street, where he spent the night.

Jose Homs, Rickard's South American representative, who spent nine weeks in Buenos Aires before he finally drew Firpo's consent to fight again in the United States, also arrived with the Argentinian. Homs immediately went into a short conference with Rickard. Another to arrive in the Firpo party was Julio Fernandez of Montevideo, who has come here to seek engagements in the lightweight division.

ZIVIC AND BERNSTEIN WILL MEET TONIGHT

The first of the series of lightweight elimination contests authorized by the New York State Athletic Commission for the purpose of bringing forth a worthy challenger for the crown of Champion Benny Leonard will be held tonight at Henderson's Bowl, Brooklyn, when Jack Zivic, the Pittsburgh contender, and Jack Bernstein, former junior lightweight champion, clash in a twelve-round bout under the auspices of the Nostrand A. C.

Zivic arrived from Pittsburgh yesterday, where he returned after his victory over Sid Barbarian. The Pittsburgher went immediately to the Madison Square Garden gymnasium, where he went through a light workout, after which he pronounced himself ready for tonight's battle. He said he expected to experience no trouble in making the required weight of 135 pounds when the rivals weigh in this afternoon. Bernstein also reported himself in fine condition and said he expected to scale at about 133 pounds.

The semi-final bout tonight will bring together Joe Glick and Eddie Brady, both of Brooklyn, who also are scheduled to go ten rounds. Jimmy Kelly of the Bronx and Paddy Ryan of Pittsburgh are down for a six-rounder, while in the opening four Georgie Doherty, brother of the late Frankie Jerome, will face Joey Dorando.

DEMPSEY HURTS ARM IN AUTO ACCIDENT

CALLS ESCAPE MIRACULOUS

"Winner's Luck, That's All," He Says as His Car Loses Wheel When Sidewiped.

LOS ANGELES, July 21.—Jack Dempsey's famous right arm, the one that has contributed so heavily to his world heavyweight pugilistic crown, is out of commission following an automobile accident Sunday night, according to attending physicians.

The fighter's list of injuries, suffered in the automobile smashup at San Juan Capistrano, south of here, include:

Cut on scalp.

Dempsey will be confined to his room several days, the physicians said. The champion admits that he escaped death "by a miracle," when his heavy sedan, carrying himself and two or three friends, lost a wheel after being sidewiped by a speeding motorist who kept going after he had tilted the Dempsey car from the highway into the ditch.

"It was winner's luck, that's all," Dempsey remarked.

CARPENTIER TRAINS UNDER ARC LIGHTS

Georges Carpentier, French boxer, who will face Gene Tunney, the American light-heavyweight champion, in a fifteen-round bout at the Polo Grounds Thursday night, sprang something new in ring training methods yesterday when he decided to delay his daily sparring session at his camp in Great Neck, L. I., until 10 o'clock in the evening. The Frenchman further announced that he would repeat this program tonight, the purpose being to have himself properly tuned up for fighting at that hour and also to accustom himself to fighting beneath the glare of arc lights. Carpentier's workout tonight will be his last before the impending battle, as nothing but rest and quiet has been prescribed for him for Wednesday and up to the time he will motor in from Great Neck to Manhattan to weigh in at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of the match.

At his camp in Red Bank, N. J., Tunney also is going through the finishing touches of his training campaign and is scheduled to hold his final workout today. The session, however, will be extremely light, as after his workout yesterday, Billy Gibson, his manager, announced that his man was as fit for the coming battle as he possibly could be. Gibson announced that Tunney was experiencing no trouble at holding his weight at 175 pounds, the mark he has agreed to make for the international match, and would surely be safely inside that figure when the men are officially weighed on Thursday afternoon.

Matchmaker Jimmy Johnston and other officials of the Polo Grounds A. C., under whose auspices the match is being staged, reiterated their belief yesterday that the match will draw a capacity crowd of 85,000 and that the gate receipts would total close to $350,000. The advance sale was reported yesterday to be the heaviest thus far. Reserved seat tickets, priced at $3.30, $5.50, $7.70 and $11, are on sale at the offices of Cromwell A. C., 1,485 Broadway; the New York Giants at 15 West Forty-fourth Street, and Keith's Hippodrome, in addition to also being available at all the leading hotels and ticket agencies. The advance sale, it was announced, will be continued until 10 o'clock each evening until the day of the fight.

WELTERWEIGHT BOUT APPROVED BY BUGBEE

TRENTON, N. J., July 21.—New Jersey's Boxing Commissioner, Newton A. K. Bugbee, will not be dominated by the New York State Boxing Commission in the matter of the proposed fight between Benny Leonard and Mickey Walker, scheduled to take place at Boyle's Thirty Acres, in Jersey City on Aug. 7. Commissioner Bugbee settled that phase of the controversy this afternoon when asked by newspaper men if the attitude of the New York Commission would interfere with the bout in this State. He said:

"Leonard and Walker have been given permission to fight in New Jersey and both are in good standing so far as New Jersey is concerned."

There had been a rumor hereabouts that unless Mickey Walker complied with the ruling of the New York Commission and fought Dave Shade in New York prior to the bout with Leonard the New Jersey Commissioner might refuse to permit Walker to fight in Jersey City, thus standing with the New York Commission in the matter.

Commissioner Bugbee said he had not been officially informed of the stand of the New York Commission relative to Walker. He said he had not received information, officially, that Tex Rickard, promoter of the bout, Benny Leonard, world's lightweight champion, and his manager, Billy Gibson, had been informed by the New York Commission that if the bout was held in Jersey City all would be suspended in New York State.

New York Commission Meets Today.

Efforts to reach George E. Brower, Chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, proved unavailing last night. The commission, however, will be in session this afternoon, when definite action on the matter is expected to be taken.

YANKEES' LEAD CUT AS TIGERS WIN, 9-7

CHAMPIONS STAGE RALLY

Score 6 in Third and Take One-Run Advantage, Only to Lose It—Whitehill Checks Attack in 9th.

Chalk up one for the Tigers in the crucial series with the Yanks. The ferocious Bengals, fresh from many triumphs in the East, blew into town yesterday, tore two New York pitchers into small bits, won the first skirmish of the battle for first place, 9 to 7, and are now only a half game out of the lead. Today's tilt will tell the story.

The Tigers made eighteen hits and nine runs and deserved to win. They knocked Waite Hoyt out of the box in the third after a marvelous catch by Babe Ruth had saved the Larchmont gentleman-farmer from a beating in the first inning. Joe Bush, Hoyt's successor, was handed a one-run lead in the same third when the Yanks put together seven hits to make six runs, but the Tigers plowed ahead and piled up the winning tallies in the fifth and sixth.

There was no stopping the Tigers. They played with all the fiery dash and enthusiasm of Tyrus Raymond Cobb himself and never quit plugging. Cobb displayed rare judgment and rarer patience in sticking to Earle Whitehill, his left-hander, through the third inning. The first four Yankees in that round hit safely, two of them for doubles, and after Ruth had fouled out Meusel hit a triple, Ward a two-bagger and Pipp a single, and still Cobb stuck to Whitehill.

In the end the southpaw justified his manager's faith. After the third the Yanks went five innings without scoring a run. In the ninth, with the score 8 to 4, "Shag" Horan led off with a double to right, hitting for Witt. "Shag's" hit was a liner over Blue's head that Heilmann gathered up in the far corner of the lot. Then Dugan cracked a single to left, scoring Horan and putting it up to Ruth. A homer would have tied it, but the Babe grounded to Burke, sending Dugan to second. Meusel flied to Manush, but Pipp walked and Hugins sent Hofman, one catcher, to bat for Schang, another. Freddy grounded to Rigney and forced Pipp at second.

Bassler Starts Trouble.

Fifteen thousand fans appeared to see the Tigers break out in a rash of hitting. Of the eighteen hits Blue and Bassler had nine between them, the latter getting five in a row and starting trouble every time he came to the plate. Strangely enough, in a day of big hitting, the only hitless individual was Ty Cobb, who couldn't land one safe in five attempts. Ty had other things to do—covering an acre of ground in centre, working hard on the coaching lines, rushing out from the bench to whisper in the batter's ear and generally leading his band to the slaughter of two of Miller Huggins's five-star pitching staff. Every move Ty made was hissed and booed, partly because of the traditional animosity that New York entertains toward him and partly because of the second trouble between the Yanks and Tigers out at Detroit.

It was a long game, drawn out over two hours and forty minutes, but the fans didn't complain over the lack of action. It was red hot from start to finish. Manush, Heilmann and Blue singled in the first inning for one run, and with two out Rigney raised a fly that flecked the right field screen in transit. Ruth came over at top speed, jammed his left hand against the steel mesh at the foul line, and with his body twisted sideways stuck his glove under the ball as it dropped not a foot away from the barrier.

This wonderful play, terrifically applauded, cut off two runs, but the Tigers got one back in the second on a double by Jones, Bassler's first single and Burke's infield out. Hoyt was being hit hard, and in the third the right-hander folded up his glove and stole away. Heilmann walked, Blue and Rigney singled, and out went Waite. Bush came in with Rigney on second and let the runner get around on Bassler's second single, when better judgment would have dictated the passing of the catcher to get at Whitehill.

Yanks Score Six in Third.

Five runs behind, the Yanks flashed their biggest attack of the afternoon in the same third and curried Whitehill for six big tallies. This made the outlook a trifle brighter. Scott singled at the outset and Bush whipped a double to right. Witt beat out a scratchy grounder to Jones, who wound up to make his throw, and after the toss to first, Bush cleverly scurried to third. Dugan doubled to left, scoring Bush and sending Witt to third, but Ruth took the edge off his catch by fouling to Bassler. Meusel's triple, which dropped languidly between Cobb and Manush, cleared the bases, and long Bob scored the tying run on Pipp's hot bounce off Whitehill's glove. After Schang had forced Pipp, Ward scored his catcher with a double to centre, putting the Yanks ahead.

But only for an inning. In the fifth Blue and Rigney doubled and Bassler singled, and the Tigers were in front again. They cemented the lead in the sixth. Bush misplaced his control and walked Cobb and Heilmann. Blue's attempt at a sacrifice only forced Cobb at third. Bush whipping the bunt to Dugan, but Bullet Joe walked Rigney to fill the bases, and Jones's fly to Witt scored Heilmann. Blue moved down to third after the catch and Bush again pitched courageously but not too well to Bassler, who drove his fourth consecutive single to left and scored Blue.

It was a quiet game after that. Blue tripled to right centre in the eighth, but was caught off third when a squeeze play failed to go through. Rigney followed with a double but died at second. The Yanks had few chances and didn't take advantage of them except in the ninth. They'll have to do better today or drop to the depths of second place.

LANDIS APPROVES TOUR OF EUROPE

Grants Permission to Giants and White Sox—Both Leagues Vote in Favor of Trip.

CINCINNATI, July 21.—Permission to tour Europe was granted to the New York Giants and the Chicago White Sox today by Commissioner K. M. Landis, Manager John J. McGraw of the New York team announced here tonight.

The trip abroad by the two teams had been technically agreed upon some time ago, but consent of the baseball commissioner was held up pending a vote of the members of both leagues. Twelve clubs voted in favor of the tour. Two of the four clubs that did not vote were the Giants and White Sox.

INDIANS BEAT RED SOX, 2-1.

BOSTON, July 21.—Uhle pitched Cleveland to a 2-1 victory over Boston today. The Indians won in the ninth when Speaker doubled, went to third on Joe Sewell's bunt and scored on Myatt's infield out, which Harris could not field to the plate. It was the ninth successive defeat for the Red Sox.

Caught at the Plate.

"Shag" Horan drives a long ball. Three times as a pinch hitter he was robbed of hits by the outfielders, but yesterday there was nobody near his solid line drive to right.

For a man of his weight "Shag" moves rather spryly. He was puffing when he lumbered over the plate. The newcomer can still lose a few pounds without being emaciated.

Ruth hit a three-bagger in the first with none on, but couldn't produce in the third and ninth, when the bases were loaded.

The blame for the long game rests squarely on the Tigers, who uncovered ways of dawdling that the Yanks had never thought of. Whitehill is the world's champion pitcher for slowness. He says a prayer between pitches.

Herb Pennock is due to defend first place against the Tigers today, while Cobb is likely to start Ed Wells, his youthful lefthander from Bethany, or Rip Collins, the ex-Yank.

Blue's four hits included a double and triple.

GIANTS LOSE IN 11TH ON ERROR BY KELLY

Failure to Touch Bag on Last Out Lets in Tying Run, Then Reds Win, 8-7, on Triple.

EACH SCORES 3 RUNS IN 9TH

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, July 21.—The Giants lost an eleven-inning game to the Reds today, 8 to 7. It was a game of hit-and-miss baseball in which the Giants twice apparently had the game safely won, only to have the Reds come from behind to wrest it from their grasp and finally to win. Both teams made it uncomfortable for the hurlers who were flung into the pastime and in all nine moundsmen were called into action, five taking the hill for the Giants and four for the Reds.

John Watson, who started for the Giants, was knocked out of the box in the first inning, and Adolfo Luque, who started for the Reds, withdrew in the seventh. After Watson came Art Nehf, Ernie Maun, Jack Bentley and Claude Jonnard, and after Luque came Jake May, Pete Donohue and Eppa Rixey.

The Giants made a brave up-hill fight for seven innings, finally managing to tie the score and then to score three runs in the ninth, only to lose that lead in the Reds' half of the inning. In the eleventh they scored once, but in the Reds' half they wobbled again, and this time the Reds scored twice and put an end to the riotous affair.

Pinelli's Hit Ends Game.

A three-base hit by Babe Pinelli won the game for the Reds, but the way to this hit was paved with Giant indiscretions. These were two in number, one being a balk by Jonnard and the other the carelessness of Kelly in taking his foot off first base before catching a ball for what would have been the third out of the inning and the finish of the game.

The Giants had scored their run in the eleventh on a three-base hit by Frisch and a single by Kelly when the Reds faced Jonnard for the last time. Jonnard couldn't keep the ball over the plate for Roush, who led off, and Eddie walked.

Jonnard then had a balk called on him when he threw to Kelly to catch Roush napping, and Roush rambled down to second. Burns flied to Wilson and Wingo followed with a sharp rap at Frisch. Obviously under the impression that he had caught the ball on the line, Frisch threw to Jackson to double up Roush, who had darted down to third base. Jackson evidently thought Frisch had erred in judgment and neglected to Kelly in time to catch Wingo at first.

Then came the play that really cost the Giants the game. Fonseca, ordered to bat for Rixey, hit to Jackson, who threw to Kelly. The ball reached the bag ahead of the runner, but Kelly, he caught it, drew his foot off the bag an instant before the ball settled in his mitt. The watchful Quigley ruled that Fonseca was safe, and Roush, of course, scored. This led to another argument, but Quigley stuck to his decision. When play was resumed Pinelli sent Fonseca home with a three-base hit down the right-field line.

Reds Score 3 Runs.

Five hits netted the Reds three runs in the first inning and sent Watson to the showers. These hits were a single by Critz, a double by Roush and singles by Duncan, Hargrave and Walker. Nehf, relieving Watson, walked into a tough spot, but got out of it by quickly disposing of Pinelli and Cavaney.

The seventh inning found the Giants tying the score on a pass to Young, a single by Critz of a grounder by Terry, who batted for Nehf, a pass to Young, his force by Frisch and a sacrifice fly by Southworth making up the two runs. In the ninth the Giants scored three times on singles by Gowdy, Maun and Young, an error by Roush, a sacrifice fly by Southworth and Meusel's infield out.

Maun could not hold this lead in the Reds' half of the ninth and Bentley, who was rushed to his relief, had only a wild pitch and a base on balls to offer, the latter being intentional. Bentley hurriedly was relieved out of the box and Jonnard was sent in just in time to keep the Giants from losing within the regulation nine-inning distance. Singles by Fowler, Critz, Roush and Duncan, a pass to Hargrave and the wild pitch were the ammunition used by the Reds in the making of these runs.

EVANS WINS FOR BROWNS.

Drives In Run That Beats Athletics With Triple in 4-2 Victory.

PHILADELPHIA, July 21.—St. Louis experienced little difficulty in taking the opening game of the series with the Philadelphia Athletics today, 4 to 2. Kolp was effective throughout and the veteran Evans, who replaced Bennett in left field, when the latter was hit by a pitched ball in the fifth, sent the winning runs across for the Browns with a triple in the seventh.

ROBINS BREAK EVEN WITH THE PIRATES

JIMMY JOHNSTON IS HURT

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, July 21.—The Robins and Pirates split even in a double-header here this afternoon. The visitors won the first encounter by a score of 6 to 2, but lost the closing contest by a count of 4 to 2. Dazzy Vance pitched the first game and hung up his fifteenth victory of the season. In winning, Vance outpitched Lee Meadows and Jeff Pfeffer. Meadows was driven from the mound in the ninth frame.

Burleigh Grimes was defeated in the second combat by Ray Kremer, although the Pirates made only seven hits off Grimes's moist ball delivery, while the Robins collected nine off Kremer. As a result of Kremer's victory the Pirates managed to stay in third place. They retained a half a game lead over the Flatbush team.

In the third inning of the first game the Robins lost the services of Jimmie Johnston. Grimm opened the inning with a single and Smith followed with a grounder that Johnston fielded near second base. Jimmie was going to step on second, but before he got to the bag his left leg collapsed from under him and he fell to the ground. He was unable to regain his feet and had to be carried off the field by two of his teammates. When the game was resumed with High at short and Klugman at second, Vance proceeded to keep the Pirates away from the plate.

Pirates Score Two Runs.

A two-bagger by Maranville in the fifth scored the first two runs of the contest. With one out, Smith walked and Meadows singled. Maranville doubled to left, sending Smith and Meadows home. Carey then bunted in front of the plate and DeBerry threw him out. Maranville tried to score on the play, but was nailed on Fournier's return throw to DeBerry.

The Robins scored their first run in the sixth, and it was the result of singles by Wheat, Fournier and Brown. Wheat crossed the plate on Brown's single off Wright's shins. In the next session Meadows was unable to hold the visitors in check and they took the lead on three more hits and an error by Wright. DeBerry led off with a single and Vance sacrificed. High's grounder went through Wright's legs and DeBerry pulled up at third. Klugman fanned, but Wheat's single scored DeBerry and Fournier sent High home with a single to right.

In the ninth the Robins clinched the game when they scored three runs and chased Meadows off the mound. The runs resulted from singles by High, Klugman and Brown, a double by Neis and a wild throw past first by Meadows. Neis's hit scored High and Klugman and brought Pfeffer in to release Meadows. Neis scored on Brown's single.

Traynor Hits For Circuit.

The Pirates scored their first run of the second game in the second inning when Traynor hit to right centre and got a home run when the ball bounced into the bleachers. The Robins tied the count in the fifth when Griffith doubled to right and completed the circuit on a single by Grimes. The deadlock did not last long, as in the sixth the Pirates got to Grimes and scored two more runs. They resulted from singles by Carey, Cuyler and Barnhart, a sacrifice by Wright and a wild throw past Fournier by Klugman.

In the seventh the Pirates worked the squeeze play successfully and it brought them their last run. Grimm opened with a double and an infield out put him on third. Kremer then bunted past Grimes, but was thrown out by High. Grimes scored on the play.

High made an error in the fifth session and it broke his streak of perfect fielding. He had played through twenty-three consecutive games without a miscue and accepted 130 chances.

FABIAN HOME FIRST IN THE TRIUMPHANT

YOUNG APRIL LEADS FIELD

The Riviera Stable's three-year-old colt Fabian, by Ballot—Inspiration, splendidly ridden by Earl Sande, carried off the Triumphant Handicap, a gallop of a mile and a quarter for three-year-olds and upward, at the Empire City race course yesterday afternoon. He beat F. A. Herold's four-year-old filly Rejection, the favorite, and J. Khan's old Star Shoot gelding David Harum, only three running. Fabian picked up 124 pounds and ran the distance in the slow time of 2:08 3-5 over a fast track. He was held at 6 to 5 in the wagering.

The start was unfortunate for David Harum, as he wheeled when the barrier shot up and the others were ten lengths ahead when he got going. He caught them, however, during the run down the homestretch and took the lead around the clubhouse turn. Sande was content to let David Harum make the pace, rating Fabian along a length or two back and sending his mount up into the lead on the turn for home.

In the run down the homestretch Fabian opened a lead of four lengths and then began to tire, but he lasted to win ridden out by a length from Rejection. Maiben waited too long with Rejection. She closed with a big rush and was going fastest at the end. She was backed to 9 to 10 at post time.

Young April Scores.

Fifteen maiden two-year-olds ran for the Sunshine Purse, a dash of five and a half furlongs, first on the card, the winner being the Lilane Stable's brown colt Young April, by Gnome—Crack-o'-Doom, an 8-to-1 shot. The colt began slowly, but Connelly soon got up, where he held his mount off the pace, and came through in the stretch run to win handily by a length from H. S. Brown's Akbar, which was up in time to take the place by a head from R. S. Clark's Warfare.

E. B. Bowyn's Baby Lane and S. Pettit's Exalted Ruler renewed their numerous duels in the Hardy Purse, a dash of about six furlongs, restricted to the three-year-olds, but both were forced to take the dust of W. V. Dwyer's Lady Audrey, by Madrigalian—Lady London. The winner was another long shot, opening at 12 to 1 and going back to 15 to 1 at post time. Exalted Ruler and Baby Lane fought it out all the way, the former making the early pace and Baby Lane taking the lead at the head of the stretch. Matthews held Lady Audrey on the rail behind the two leaders and in the last sixteenth she drew into the lead to win, ridden out, by a length and a half. Exalted Ruler tired at the end and Baby Lane took the place by two lengths. The former was the public choice, closing at 6 to 5. The race was run in 1:09 4-5.

Nancy Langhorne Wins.

President of Haiti Welcomes Olympic Riflemen on Return

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, July 21.—The Haitian rifle team, which performed so brilliantly in the Olympic Games in France, tying the French team for second place in the shooting, arrived home today and received a great public welcome. The marksmen were met by a regiment of gendarmerie at the dock and were escorted through the streets in a gala parade to the Presidential palace, where they received a reception by the President of the republic.

Epinard, Pierre Wertheimer's four-year-old colt which is here for a series of international races, is expected to sleep tonight in the private stable of Frank C. Bishop at Saratoga Springs. A change in plans resulted in the shipment of the colt from Belmont Park yesterday afternoon in company with the horses which will carry the colors of August Belmont during the meeting at the Spa.

Trainer Eugene Leigh had intended to have Epinard remain at Belmont Park, where it was quiet and where the French colt seemed to be enjoying himself, until the end of this week. It has been very cool and pleasant at the Long Island race course since Epinard's arrival more than a week ago, but Mr. Leigh feared a change to warmer and unpleasant weather and when he learned that the Belmont shipment was going yesterday he secured permission to send Epinard and Satin Slippers along with them.

President Richard T. Wilson Jr. telegraphed to Superintendent Clare at Saratoga Springs that the French horses were on the way and when they arrive tonight or tomorrow morning everything will be in readiness for them. It had been originally planned to quarter Epinard and his stable companion in one of the small stables in Horse Haven, but late yesterday afternoon President Wilson announced that he had been able to secure the Bishop stable. This fine stable is located outside of the grounds of the Saratoga Association and has a cottage and all of the conveniences that should contribute to the comfort of Trainer Leigh and his distinguished charge.

Epinard is expected to take his first exercise on the deep Oklahoma training track, which is the favorite ground for the trainers who are gradually getting their horses ready for a supreme effort. His first work will be a continuation of the light canters he has been having at Belmont Park. Trainer Tom Welsh has loaned Leigh a pony, so that Epinard will have company when he goes out for his walks and easy canters.

CARTER TAKES LEAD IN WESTERN GOLF

CHICAGO, July 21.—Breaking par by three strokes, Captain E. F. Carter of the Flossmoor Country Club, Chicago, formerly Irish champion, today led a field of 151 golfers in the first eighteen holes of the thirty-six-hole qualifying round of the Western amateur golf championship by making the 6,207-yard links of the Hinsdale Golf Club in 34, 35—69. Four players were tied for second place at 70 and there were three 72's and two scores of 73.

Sixty-two players scored under 80 and thirty had 76 or better, indicating that a score of 153 likely would be the highest that will entitle a player after tomorrow's eighteen-hole medal round to enter match play on Wednesday. Only thirty-one players will survive to play off the matches along with Chick Evans, now holder of the title for the eighth time, who qualified by virtue of his championship.

Captain Carter has not hit such a good stride since he came to the United States to live, and except for an unfortunate kick from the edge of a trap on the second hole, where he went one over par for the only time, he might have broken the course record of 67. He had four birdies.

Only a stroke behind Carter were R. E. Knepper of Chicago, formerly Iowa champion and Princeton star; George Hackl of Chicago, a Princeton golfer, who made low score of 33 for the first nine today; James Manion of St. Louis, Trans-Mississippi champion, who made the second nine in 33, four under par, and George Dawson of Chicago, a University of Illinois golfer, who was runner-up in the recent Western intercollegiate championship.

Frank Byer of Memphis, formerly Metropolitan champion, led the fine bevy of golfers from the Southland by scoring par 75 and thereby sharing third scoring honors with John Dawson and Art Sweet of Chicago. Sweet was formerly a golfer at Northwestern University, as was Howard Schendorf, who shared a 73 with Harrison R. Johnston and Dan Paul, who recently won the Minnesota title for the third time.

Four Have Round of 74.

The Southwest shone in the 74 scores, Ed Cornish of Little Rock, Lawson Watts of St. Louis, runner-up to Manion in the trans-Mississippi championship, William Medart of St. Louis and R. J. Daly of Chicago being the only ones to make that tally.

Of the five golfers who scored 75 three were from the South, Jack Menzler of Memphis, Southern titleholder, I. J. Osbun of Birmingham and Douglas Hill of Cincinnati returning that score along with Kenneth Hisert and Albert Seckel of Chicago. Bob Gardner, twice national champion, who has not played in the Western amateur for several years, although he was once runner-up in the event to Albert Seckel at Detroit, played today with Dave Herron, who won the national crown by defeating Bobby Jones in the finals at Oakmont, and each took seventy-six strokes.

Gardner got a bad start and was four above par for the first nine, but he soon steadied and, driving his usual long ball, came home in par-37. Herron was playing uphill most of the way, but after going three above, perfect figures for the outward trip was only one above par coming home for a pair of 38s.

Keefe Carter of Oklahoma City and E. M. Whitbread of St. Louis were able to tie the score of the two former national champions, the former duplicating Herron's halves while the latter took a stroke off par on the home nine.

It was a field day for university golfers, especially freshmen, for in addition to the fine scores of Hackl and Knepper, Burton Mudge of Chicago chalked up 78 and T. M. Green of Seattle 80. Not all the collegians shone, however, as Stevens of Lafayette, a Princeton student, took 85. A. L. Novotny of Illinois took 81; John Humphrey of Illinois 87 and Dick Skaer of Northwestern 88.

Greens Are Soft.

The course was in fine shape, except that the greens were slightly soft from Sunday night's rain and several approach pitches embedded themselves in the turf, costing the players of the shots a putt.

Women Skippers to Race In Catboats for Title

BOSTON, July 21.—A woman's yacht racing championship, to be sailed in square-sided catboats known as the "Mighty Mites," was announced by the Boston Yacht Club today. The event which, so far as known here, is the first yachting title event for women held in American waters, will be contested on Hull Bay, Sept. 3, 4 and 5. It will be open to pairs of women and girls and will be over a three-mile course.

HAGEN BACK AGAIN WITH BRITISH TITLE

Walter Hagen, America's premier golf star, returned from England on the Leviathan, which arrived at her dock at 10 o'clock last night, five hours behind her scheduled time. In his possession was the historic British cup, emblematic of the British open championship which Hagen won in such a spectacular fashion on the links at Holyoke a few weeks ago. The trophy, which dates further back in history than any other in golf, was encased in a wooden box which was thickly plastered with steamship "stickers" of recent vintage, indicating its many transatlantic voyages of the last few years.

Accompanying the British open champion was his wife and one other American golf professional who made the trip to compete in the British event, Gilbert Nicholls of Providence, R. I.

Owing to the tardiness of the Leviathan's arrival, due to fogs and an enforced wait for the tide, the "welcome-home" dinner planned for Hagen at the Biltmore last night was postponed until tonight. It will be held at 7:30, and it is now expected that approximately sixty or more admirers of the golfer will be in attendance. He will remain in the city for a few days and then start out on an exhibition tour which will carry him almost the length of Canada.

"I just had a great big piece of luck," was the way that Hagen described his great victory at Hoylake. "I had the breaks when I needed them most."

According to Hagen the thing that will ever live in his memory was not the great shot that he played at the seventeenth hole nor his six-foot putt on the eighteenth hole, but the marvelous ovation that the British people gave him when he won the victory. "I'll never forget that," he said. "They fairly swept me off the links. It was the finest demonstration I ever saw and one that proves that the British are as fine sportsmen as can be found in the entire world. It almost made me ashamed of what I had done. And that night, after the championship was over, J. H. Taylor, Harry Vardon, James Braid and Ted Ray all came up to my room and drank out of the cup."

Mrs. E. H. Sanford, one of the invited guests at the regular Monday golf event held by the women of the Westchester Biltmore Country Club, was the winner of the low net prize yesterday with a score of 90, 22—77. The Westchester players each invited a guest to yesterday's tournament. Second place went to Mrs. Harry Noonan of the Westchester Biltmore Club with a score of 98, 19—79. The low gross prize went to Mrs. F. E. Du Bois. Other scores were: Mrs. D. V. Smith, 106, 28—81; Mrs. G. M. Harrington, 117, 34—83; Mrs. S. S. Laird Jr., 95, 11—84. About forty players took part in the event.

JONES MAKES RECORD IN RIFLE TRYOUTS

Shoots 291 Out of 300 and Takes Third Place in Army Tests—Spooner Holds Lead.

FORT NIAGARA, N. Y., July 21.—Lieutenant L. V. Jones of Fort Benning, Ga., national rifle champion, shot 291 out of a possible 300, a record for this year's army's trials, in competition for membership in the United States Infantry National match rifle team today. Lieutenant Jones's total score for six days of shooting was 1,688, placing him third.

Captain L. S. Spooner, military instructor at the University of Pennsylvania, shooting 283 for a total of 1,694, had first place and a lead of four points over Lieutenant H. S. Sheets of Schofield Barracks, Hawaii, who equalled the captain's score of 283 for the day and brought his total to 1,690. Lieutenant Jones's record score forced Lieutenant M. L. Broderick of Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., into fourth place. His score today was 280 and his total 1,685.

Lieutenant Eduardo Andino, military instructor at the College of Agricultural and Mechanical Arts at Mayaguez, Porto Rico, and Lieutenant S. R. Hinds of the Third Infantry, Fort Snelling, members of the Olympic rifle and pistol teams, reported today for competition in the infantry pistol tryouts which will follow the close of the rifle competition. Lieutenant Andino was national pistol champion in 1923 and Lieutenant Hinds is considered one of the army's consistent shots.

BELMONT LOSES COLT.

Marbler Is Destroyed After Breaking Leg During Exercise.

Major August Belmont, Chairman of the Jockey Club, yesterday morning lost the three-year-old chestnut colt Marbler, by Fair Play out of Malachite by Rock Sand. The colt broke his leg while taking moderate exercise at Belmont Park and was destroyed. It was only a few days ago that it was rumored that Ladkin had met with a similar mishap. It is a coincidence that the accident happened to Marbler. The colt was not in Ladkin's class, but he was useful and would probably have won races.

EDMAN'S FAYONIAN TAKES 2:03 TROT

$25,000 RENO DERBY TODAY

KALAMAZOO, Mich., July 21 (Associated Press).—Fred Edman won the $2,000 event for the 2:03 trotters, feature of the opening of Kalamazoo's seventeenth annual grand circuit meeting, driving Fayonian to victory over Czar Worthy. The latter horse, driven by Tommy Murphy, won the first heat, but in the next two heats the Edman horse handily out-trotted his opponent.

Edman's second victory came in the 2:07 trot, when with Harvest Day, a rank outsider, he finished three heats on an even basis with Mr. McElwyn, and in the fourth and deciding heat won, owing to Mr. McElwyn breaking in the stretch. Irene Scott, driven by Fleming, won the first two heats of the 2:10 pace, then lost the third heat to Iskander. The finishes were all close. Etta Druin had little trouble in capturing the 2:18 trot, the field offering practically no opposition.

There are indications of a great crowd being present tomorrow to witness the $25,000 Reno Racing Derby for 2:08 class pacers. Fourteen entries have paid up and will start in this event. The Murphy entry, Baron Worthy, is favorite.

SPARTAN IS VICTOR IN LARCHMONT RACE

Special to The New York Times.

LARCHMONT, N. Y., July 21.—Another big fleet of racing yachts came out today to take part in the second regatta of the Larchmont Yacht Club's race week, eighty vessels crossing the starting line. The Stars were a big class once more, thirty-five boats starting in this class alone. A record fleet of sixteen six-meter yachts started, the winner being Hoyt and Toby's Dauphin, sailed by Corny Shields. The new six-meter Romany, designed and built by Frank C. Paine of the Eastern Yacht Club of Marblehead, Mass., made her first start of the season, but was disabled and did not finish.

Proverbial Larchmont luck seemed to have something to do with making the day a successful one in a racing sense. When the Race Committee went out to the starting line off Horseshoe Harbor at 1:30 o'clock a flat calm prevailed, and the racing vessels drifted about with a lazy steerage way on. The Race Committee, of which Fred M. Hoyt was Chairman, ordered a postponement and was rewarded by having a nice southwesterly sailing breeze spring up when the New York Yacht Club fifty footers were sent away at 2:50. They footed fast in the light breeze and made a fine marine picture as they crossed the line, with Spartan in the lead and Mystic, sailed by Philip Mallory, to windward of Carolina, sailed by Vice Commodore George Nichols.

Spartan Takes Long Lead.

The big sloops were close hauled and broke out small jibtopsails as they crossed for the beat to the spar buoy off Execution Light. Mystic and Carolina were still engaged in their luffing match and Spartan stole away to a long lead, which practically gave her the race. She finished under a cloud of canvas more than three minutes ahead of Mystic, with Iroquois II. in third place and Carolina fourth.

The fifty-footers sailed a course of 21½ miles, which took them along the Long Island shore to Oak Neck, across to Bluefish Shoal off Port Chester, then to a mark off Weeks Point on the Long Island shore and back to the committee boat. The forties, Larchmont O sloops and thirty-footers sailed a course of 18 miles, with the first leg also a beat to Execution Light.

The breeze had freshened when the forties got away at 2:55 and half a dozen of these fast sloops went winging away southwestward. The start was very close, with Rowdy getting away in the lead at the lee end, with Banshee close aboard, Pampero, Typhoon, Shawara and Mistral following. Once on their way Typhoon began to pull away from the others and came home a handy winner over Pampero, with Banshee third. It was Typhoon's second victory in as many days.

The new Class Q boat Nor'easter II., designed by George Owen for Grafton Wolfe of Boston, sailed by Sam Wetherell, raced against former Commodore J. P. Morgan's Grayling. Harry Morgan sailed Grayling, and was too anxious at the start, going over ahead of the signal and being recalled. This gave Nor'easter II. an advantage that she never relinquished. The new sloop was well sailed by Mr. Wetherell, and finished in front of Grayling by five minutes.

Thirty-Footers in Spirited Start.

The thirty-footers had a spirited start, being bunched at the line on the signal, with Silhouette getting away in front, followed by Alera, Minx, Banzai, Phantom, Lena, Oriole, Countess and Nautilus. Lena went well in the freshening breeze, which was of the lee rail variety, on the Long Island shore. After a hard fight with Edmund Lang's Banzai over the 18-mile course, Lena got home in a close finish seventeen seconds ahead of Banzai. It was the first victory of the season for Rear Commodore Reid's sloop.

The breeze was unusual in that it was much stronger near the Long Island shore, and when the boats were reaching along off Hempstead they moved very fast. The wind was much lighter toward the northerly side of the Sound.

The six meters made a fine start with Dauphin, the ultimate winner, getting away in front with Madcap, Lea, Iris and Natka. Paumonok and others bunched astern of her. The six meters sailed a course of 5 3-8 miles, twice around, with first leg a beat to Execution Light. Then a reach to the eastward to a mark off Hempstead and a run with spinnakers to the committee boat.

Dauphin was well sailed and led the fleet on the first round, jibbing around the stake boat about thirty seconds ahead of Commodore Stewart's Iris, which was sailed by Ray Bowers. Natka was third at the end of the first round, with Madcap, Lea, Paumonok, Question, Cygnet, Heron, Firefly, Priscilla, Grebe and Glimt rounding in the order named. Dauphin worked out to more of a lead on the beat to Execution Light and finished over a minute ahead of Natka, which was well up all through the race. She was well ahead of Question at the end.

Big Fleet of Stars Starts.

The fleet of Stars was so big that the skippers had hard work to get across the starting line without fouling. Several of the scrappy little boats did touch as they crossed, but no protests were made. These yachts also sailed the 10½-mile course, going twice around. Dawning, owned by Elder & Reeve, turned out to be the winner, but the finish was very close.

Dawning was seventeen seconds ahead of Sonny, the new boat owned by W. L. Inslee, the champion skipper of the Star class, and A. E. See Jr.'s Sonny was only a few seconds ahead of Adrian Iselin 2d's Ace, which was Saturday's winner in a class of thirty-seven starters.

PARIS, July 21 (Associated Press).—Notwithstanding the rival attractions of Olympic swimming, tennis and gymnastics, 25,000 Parisians today assembled in the Parc des Princes Stadium to see the end of the classic cycle race around France. Thousands also watched the passage of the racers through the suburbs. Of the 157 competitors who started from Paris on June 22, 60 finished, having covered the 5,000 miles over mountains, valleys and plains. The winner was the Italian, Bottechia, whose time was 226 hours 18 minutes and 21 seconds. He led consistently throughout every stage of the long endurance test.

STEVENSON MOVED TO TENTATIVE FOUR

Malcolm Stevenson will go back to the No. 3 position on the polo team tentatively named to represent the United States against Great Britain when the third trial match is played at Meadow Brook this afternoon. Stevenson occupied the position in the first tryout on last Thursday, but on Saturday Robert E. Strawbridge Jr. was shifted to the place. However, the showing of Strawbridge was not up to what was expected of him and this afternoon, and probably for the rest of the week, he will be playing against, instead of with, the tentative four. Otherwise the line-up is unchanged. J. Watson Webb again will be at No. 1, Thomas Hitchcock Jr. at No. 2 and Devereux Milburn at back. The opposition will consist of Eric Pedley at No. 1, Earle Kemp Bogle at No. 2, Strawbridge at No. 3 and Morgan Belmont at back, a twenty-seven goal combination.

The moving of Pedley from No. 2 to the forward position may or may not mean that he is being considered for that place on the American combination. Admittedly it is the No. 3 position that is worrying the Defense Committee and so far, apparently, no player has appeared who can fit in there and not slow up the rest of the team. Webb was originally a No. 3 and the Defense Committee may eventually come to the conclusion that it would be better to move him back and develop another No. 1, of which the supply is plentiful. In that case it may be Pedley who will be called upon. The Californian has shown by his work this season that he is entitled to a trial, but whether he will get it at No. 1 or No. 3 is still to be seen.

According to the present plans Webb, Hitchcock, Stevenson and Milburn will form the tentative four during the three matches this week. This should determine definitely whether or not Stevenson is capable of filling in with proper strength. If he should fail, then another man will be tried out next week, and so the changes will go until the right man for the position is determined.

On Thursday the tentative four will meet the California horsemen who have journeyed across the continent primarily in quest of the national junior championship, now held by the United States Army four, which will defend it at Rumson next month. The Californians will present a twenty-goal combination of E. C. Miller at No. 1, Pedley at No. 2, Arthur Perkins at No. 3 and Carleton Burke at back. On Saturday the same line-up will be used against the tentative four as will meet it this afternoon.

TENDLER HELD TO DRAW.

Boxes Ten Hard Rounds With Barrett in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, July 21.—Lew Tendler of Philadelphia and Bobby Barrett, Clifton Heights, Pa., fought ten hard rounds to a draw tonight at the National League baseball park. The judges disagreed and the decision was rendered by the referee. The bout was for the welterweight championship of Pennsylvania.

Danny Kramer won the referee's decision over Alex Hart tonight in the first ten-round preliminary. Kramer weighed 128 pounds and Hart 134½. Both are Philadelphians. The judges disagreed on the winner and the referee awarded the decision to Kramer, who did most of the leading.

In the second ten-round preliminary, Benny Bass of Philadelphia won the judges decision over Spencer Gardner of New York who substituted for Joe Lynch, former featherweight champion, who made his appearance just before the fight with a broken wrist. Gardner although outclassed, fought a game fight and managed to weather all that Bass had to offer.

Special to The New York Times.

RYE, N. Y., July 21.—The women's metropolitan grass court tennis championship began this morning on the courts of the Green Meadow Club with Miss Mayme MacDonald, the national and metropolitan clay court titleholder, and Mrs. Robert Le Roy, New Jersey State champion, as the two outstanding favorites. NOSTRAND AGAIN IN COURT.

Justice Cropsey Reserves Decision on Protests Against Bowl.

Residents in the vicinity of Henderson's Bowl, the outdoor boxing arena of the Nostrand A. C. in Brooklyn, renewed their efforts to have the bowl closed on the ground that the conducting of bouts there constitutes a nuisance, at the hearing on their objections before Justice James C. Cropsey in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn yesterday.

George W. Tucker, counsel for the complaining residents, called a number of them as witnesses, their testimony being along similar lines to that presented by them when they sought a restraining injunction, namely, that the crowds going to and from the Henderson arena on fight nights were a source of considerable annoyance to them. After counsel for the club, Abraham Lehman, presented a number of witnesses who said they resided in the vicinity of the bowl and testified that they had not been disturbed, Justice Cropsey announced he would reserve decision.

BYRNE AND POWERS WIN.

Beat Leiberman and Ossipoff in Met. Handball Tourney.

Jack Byrne of the Crescent Athletic Club and holder of the national one-wall handball title paired with Bob Powers of the Palisades Boat Club, runner-up in the metropolitan singles championship, and defeated Leiberman and Ossipoff, unattached, in a hard-fought three-game match in the first round of the metropolitan doubles championship on the courts of the Washington Baths.

The unattached players took the first game 21—9, but after that Byrne struck his stride and he and Powers won the next two games, 21—10, 21—17.

MAINE KNOW-NOTHINGISM.

For at least six months the pernicious activity of the Ku Klux Klan had excited the tender concern of the Republican National Committee as well as the native political magnates in Maine. The issue has been simmering for a good deal longer. It was conspicuous in the Portland election. In the last Legislature a constitutional amendment prohibiting the appropriation of public funds to sectarian schools came within a few votes of being adopted. Mr. RALPH O. BREWSTER, a member of the State Senate, clings passionately to this amendment. It is his child. It was the chief controversy in the June primaries. Mr. BREWSTER, as a candidate for Governor, had the help of the Klan, though he says, artlessly, that he didn't seek it. His opponent, Mr. FRANK G. FARRINGTON, President of the State Senate, opposed the Brewster amendment on the ground that it would prevent State aid to many academies which serve as free high schools in their locality.

Religious hatreds soon obscured the ostensible political issue. It is said that the Democrats took a hand in the Republican primaries. Mr. FARRINGTON won by only 320 votes. Mr. BREWSTER demanded a recount. So the Dirigo branch of the Grand Old Party is split into Brewsterians and Farringtonians. The Klan "boasts" that it has 25,000 votes. The hearts of the faithful sag. Political medicine men are in prolonged consultation. The withdrawal of FARRINGTON and BREWSTER and the selection of a candidate inoffensive to the two squabbling factions is proposed. Even if the suggestion be acted upon, can these so angry passions be mitigated before the second Tuesday in September, when Maine biennially treats herself to an election on her own hook? In 1922 Governor BAXTER beat WILLIAM R. PATTANGALL by 28,000 votes. Last May the Governor, more illustrious as a dog fancier than as a seer, promised the State to Mr. COOLIDGE "by a majority in excess of 30,000." As a matter of fact, the Maine Republicans, long before the situation got jagged, didn't hope for more than half that majority. Now they seem to be doubtful if their party won't be in the minority. Such is the sweet influence of the hoodsmen.

The Klan can point to two triumphs. Saco and Rockland displaced Democratic by Republican Mayors, marked "100 per cent. American" by the Klan examiners. On the other hand, Mr. PATTANGALL, again the Democratic candidate for Governor, is the most vigorous Democratic personality in the State, an able lawyer and an effective speaker, whose speech on the Klan was perhaps the strongest and the soundest made in the Democratic National Convention. The division of the Republican Party is not likely to be healed by any palliatives or expedients or compromises. It is true that in the industrial cities LA FOLLETTE may win votes among the trade unions, which have a grievance in the defeat, in the Legislature and in a referendum, of the proposed forty-eight-hour-a-week law.

The September Maine election is dear to all the lovers of superstition. Once there were the "October States" to charm or frighten the omen-drawers. This "September State" is still left them. "As goes Maine so goes the country" is, in effect, the theory of the augurs. Maine is usually Republican. If the Republicans lose it or keep it only by a squeak, things would certainly look bad for Mr. COOLIDGE. But Maine is no unerring Cassandra. In 1880, when the Greenback mania raged as curiously among the farmers of Maine, she elected a Democratic Governor. That triumph was not a triumph of prophesy for General HANCOCK. In 1890 Maine chose four Republican Congressmen. Hurrah for the McKinley Tariff bill! But in the country at large the Republicans were well and truly beaten. Maine has an individuality of her own. This year it seems to be more than a little cantankerous.

TWO THINKERS.

Several public men now under general observation are going through the torturing experience of making up their mind. Which party or which fraction or pretense of a party shall they choose? Senator BROOKHART of Iowa is reported to be looking out upon the stormy La Follette waters, yet trembling on the shore and fearing to launch away. With corn skyrocketing above a dollar, how can he hope to carry with him Iowa farmers? Senator NORRIS is another whose anguished mental processes at this time invite the sympathy of all kind-hearted people. It is no difficulty for him to revolt against his party. He has been for years in a state of chronic revolt. But to march off under a banner inscribed with another name than his own may prove too much for the strong individualist of Nebraska.

The plight of neither of these gentlemen is so pitiful as that of Senator HIRAM JOHNSON. From him not a word has yet come. He is supposed to be wrestling with his own soul. The delay in coming to a conclusion whether to support President COOLIDGE or not must represent a severe restraint placed upon his native instincts. For Senator JOHNSON has always posed as a bluff, robust spirit always ready to give a reason for the faith that is in him, and without hesitation to pluck his political enemies by the beard. If his silence now is hard for the rest of us, it must be simply cruel to him. He has, however, the consolation of knowing that another great thinker is breathing the Californian air and endeavoring to extemporize a life-long conviction. But Mayor HYLAN on the Hearst ranch has the advantage of a companion to guide his political thinking sweetly into the proper channels. Senator JOHNSON is left to tread the wine-press alone. But both he and the Mayor of New York are not in character, thus waiting for rather than giving a clarion call. The reporters humbly seek an audience, but the two sphinxes in California let the legions thunder by and plunge in thought again.

GERMAN UNEMPLOYMENT.

A slackening of industry is reported from Berlin, with an increase in the number of unemployed during the second half of June, in the unoccupied territory, from 213,000 to 241,000. Victorious England might well envy the showing made by conquered Germany. For the German territory affected, the figures would indicate a ratio of unemployment only one-tenth of Great Britain's today. A story of extraordinary interest, when it comes to be written, will be the tale of how Germany during five years of defeat, humiliation, political and social strife and threatened dismemberment from within, nevertheless managed to escape industrial prostration. To the strong sense of national self-preservation which has held the German people together under dire adversity must be added the consideration that the masses have been saved from the despair which comes from idleness. The full account will testify to German resourcefulness and organization.

Since the armistice German workers have had perhaps a half year of "hard times." Up to the seizure of the Ruhr in January of last year the busy German factories were the amazement of the world. With the beginning of passive resistance, industry in unoccupied Germany began to suffer. By last October the number of unemployed in the unoccupied region rose to one and a half million, with three millions on part time. That this was not due to economic conditions but was the direct result of the national "strike" against the French is shown by the fact that as soon as an industrial modus vivendi was arranged in the Ruhr unemployment in the rest of Germany sank rapidly. It must have fallen pretty close to the vanishing point if a second rise has brought it to the inconsiderable figure of less than a quarter of a million. In this country an unemployed floating population of a million is considered normal.

With one explanation of how Germany has managed to find work for her people the world is familiar. The depreciation of German currency, before depreciation became collapse, made wages, by outside standards, phenomenally low. The difference between the internal and external value of the mark, reinforced by the virtual abolition of house rents and State control of food prices, enabled the German manufacturer to compete with the foreigner. But this is only a partial explanation. In theory German exports should have flooded the world market. Actually the exports, in volume, have ranged between a third and a fifth of pre-war figures. Last year, according to official reports, they sank even lower. But whereas a decline in British exports since 1913 of not more than 25 per cent. has made British unemployment a crucial problem, the infinitely greater shrinkage in German exports has been accompanied by a degree of unemployment that may be called, by comparison, almost negligible.

It is hard to escape the conclusion that German labor has been going very largely into production for the home market. The Dawes report supplied ample confirmation of what unofficial observers had already noted—the extraordinary development of Germany's industrial plant, the great expenditures on railroad improvement, internal waterways, harbors and housing. The fact that German labor as well as capital has been "plowed in" by great amounts would explain the anomaly of an industrial Germany steadily at work with no exports to show where the product went.

A FIGHTING PACIFIST.

Not in vain was the candidacy of "Battling Bob" held up before the irreconcilable Irish of the de Valera group in this city on Sunday. They instantly felt the appeal of a kindred spirit, with the stern joy of warriors who saw the glorious prospect of a renewal of civil war in Ireland. For that is the main reason why they leaped with a whoop to the endorsement of Senator LA FOLLETTE. They proudly hailed him as the only Presidential candidate who has declared himself in favor of "freedom for Ireland." That can mean only freedom to attack and destroy the Irish Free State, to make an end of the negotiations over the Ulster boundary and to plunge Ireland once more into anarchy, misery and bloodshed.

A hater of war, Senator LA FOLLETTE is, in fact, preparing for a whole series of wars. He has spoken in favor of instantly collecting debts owed by European nations to the United States. As Germany owes us nothing, he is ready to assume an attitude of truculence toward all our debtors. If he really means business he would, as President, threaten France and Italy with war if they did not at once pay up. Furthermore, in his platform at Cleveland he declared his belief in "an active foreign policy" to bring about a revision of the Versailles Treaty in accordance with the "terms of the armistice." This would open up a lovely vista of wars carrying us into battlefields all over Europe. No wonder that the de Valera Irishmen greet LA FOLLETTE as a brother under the skin, as fond of a shindy as they are.

It may seem a wonder, in view of this fighting program of Senator LA FOLLETTE, that restless groups of the "contrary-minded," who agree in nothing except in calling themselves pacifists all, should have transferred their revocable allegiance to him. But there is really nothing surprising about this. In their undefined and impossible projects, and their passionate preference of notoriety to useful work, these avowed pacifists are really among the most bloodthirsty people going. They differ violently from the rest of the world only on the question of what nation's blood ought to be shed.

PROGRESS AT LONDON.

More than at any general European conference in recent years the spirit of achievement is in the air at London. How much of this is due to the earnest desire of MACDONALD and HERRIOT to reach an accord and how much to the obviously strong pressure from the American representatives to bring about a general compromise between conflicting views, it would be hard to decide. The delegates seem determined that this conference shall not end in a deadlock and are apparently fully conscious of the fact that disaster threatens Europe if the plans for reconstruction are not soon put into effect. The knowledge that America is actively supporting the Dawes plan, and the surmise that the Republican Administration is politically interested in seeing it succeed, have given special weight to harmonizing suggestions from Ambassador KELLOGG and Colonel LOGAN.

Although details of what has been accomplished to date are not yet available, it is known that such troublesome problems as safeguarding the new loan to Germany and the matter of sanctions have virtually been settled. The evacuation of the Ruhr still presents difficulties, although it is unlikely that these are insoluble. France and Belgium can hardly be expected to relinquish the advantages of retaining a sufficiently large personnel in the occupied territories to make it unnecessary to go through the arduous difficulties which confronted them in 1923, in case they are obliged to reoccupy those regions. So long as the body that remains in no way interferes with the economic life of the district, there is no reason why it need hamper the reconstruction of Germany.

Such a decision, however, would be sure to enrage the Germans. They have set their hearts on complete evacuation of the Ruhr—every engineer and every soldier. They are also reported to be resentful of the prospects that the right to apply penalties for non-fulfillment may include the seizure of territory. Among their politicians are those who say they would prefer to see the Dawes plan fail and take the consequences than submit to such an "indignity." But the more sober elements among them realize that these questions are details rather than fundamentals and are willing to trust to an earnest effort to meet the terms and obligations of the Dawes plan as the best means of protecting them from the political evils which their more impetuous fellows fear. To them the assurance of the $200,000,000 loan is of paramount importance and they welcome the agreement reached among the London conferees for safeguarding this advance. For the present, at any rate, it appears that General DAWES's wish that common sense be crowned king is to be fulfilled.

COUNTRY SOUNDS FOR THE CITY.

Much of what is in the city goes to the "radioed" ears of the country folk—the music of soloists, orchestras and choruses; myriad addresses on every conceivable subject; political convention speeches and votes. But why shouldn't something of the audible gifts of the country be carried into the city for the benefit of those who have to spend their days and nights in its birdless, treeless, flowerless streets? A correspondent of THE TIMES tells of the singing of the woodthrush on the other side of the Hudson River at dawn and dusk, and urges his readers to come over and hear it. Why should that "blithe, indefatigable" bird sing alone to the sparse audience in the vast Jersey stadium whose back walls are the Palisades? He might be made, not only to sing the song twice over, lest his hearers

Should think he never could recapture

but sing it a million times over by multiplying the ears that hear it. May not thousands literally rise with the voice of the lark singing "at Heaven's gate" instead of being roused by the raucous alarm or the piercing whistle? Every one might have the nightingale, the whippoorwill, the meadowlark singing their madrigals, day or night, or hear the loon making its mournful sound, or the blackbirds chattering, or the cranes honking their skyward way, or the mockingbird singing in Southern groves as clearly as the caged canary in the next room.

Besides the voices of birds, we might have the lowing of cattle, the bleating of sheep, the whistling of the plowboy, the piping of the shepherd on some far Greek hillside (for some day it will be audible around the world), or the crooning of an Indian mother in a hut out in the Rockies.

To go back to nature herself, we could hear the sound of the wind in the treetops, the swish of the ocean (such as people far inland used to be led to imagine they could hear in some conch-shell brought from the seacoast), or the songs of "the first earthly singers, the sun-loved rills." The country has out of its endless melodies and harmonies something for the city, "where men sit and hear each other groan," in exchange for all that the city is pouring into the rural air.

THE AMERICAN SWIMMERS.

A generation ago swimming was not a special American accomplishment. Few boys or men swam well enough to compete with the champions of Europe, and the gentler sex wasn't amphibious. Nowadays Americans disport themselves like dolphins, and dive better than kingfishers. The old records at distances in which speed is tested have been made to look archaic. On Sunday at Les Tourelles the Americans entered for the Olympic aquatic competitions were crowned champions in thirteen out of seventeen events. The contests in which they did not take first place were the 1,500-meter race, which ANDREW CHARLTON, the youthful Australian, won; the plain high diving, in which an Australian excelled; the 200-meter breast stroke for women, in which E. MORTON, a British lass, was first, and water polo, in which a French team triumphed. There are so many collisions and immersions in water polo that it can't be regarded as a sport suited to women. Only human otters are proficient in it. It is a feather in the cap of the French that they snatched the crown.

When Count CLARY, President of the French Olympic Committee, distributed the medals for aquatic honors he said: "This looks like an American holiday." The United States had scored 217 points, Sweden was second with 58, Great Britain third with 50 and the Australian Commonwealth fourth with 35. Eleven other countries "also ran." The United States must appear like a superman nation to Olympic crowds—and a superwoman nation in swimming and diving. When comparisons are made with the swimming races in the Olympic Games of 1912 at Stockholm, one sees that the Americans have come to the front with a mighty rush of speed. At Stockholm only two American men won firsts: KAHANAMOKU of Hawaii and H. J. HEBNER, in the 100-meter free style and 100-meter back stroke, respectively. A Canadian, G. R. HODGSON, won both the 400-meter free style and the 1,500-meter free style. W. J. BATHE, a German, was unbeatable in the 200-meter and 400-meter breast stroke. The Australians were victorious in the 800-meter team race. Miss F. DURACK of Australia won the women's 100-meter race, free style, and a British four the 400-meter team race for woman. But in the Olympic aquatics at Les Tourelles American girls eclipsed the rest of the world. In the 100-meter free style ETHEL LACKIE equaled the world's record for women, and STHL. BAUER made a new world's record in the 100-meter back stroke. A new world's record for women was also made in the 400-meter relay race. No longer does the Eastern seaboard produce all the invincible mermaids. Miss LACKIE hails from Chicago, and CAROLINE SMITH, who took the plain high diving from our own ELIZABETH BECKER of Atlantic City, comes from Cairo, Ill.

The times made in the Olympic swimming races of 1924 were much faster than the records of the Stockholm meet. It took 1 minute 2 2-5 seconds for KAHANAMOKU of Hawaii to cover 100 meters; JOHNNY WEISSMULLER of Chicago made a new Olympic record of 59 seconds. His time for the 400 meters was 5 minutes 4 1-5 seconds, as compared with 5 minutes 24 2-5 seconds for HODGSON, the Canadian, at Stockholm. The 1,500-meter race CHARLTON, the Australian, won in 20 minutes 0 3-5 seconds (a new world's record), as compared with 22 minutes for HODGSON in 1912. WARREN KEALOHA's time in the 100-meter back stroke this year was almost seven seconds faster than HEBNER's twelve years ago. SKELTON in the 200-meter breast stroke bettered BATHE's time at Stockholm by almost five seconds. The ladies who won fame in 1912 were much slower than their sisters this year as Les Tourelles.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

If They Can, Why Don't They?

A dispatch from Berlin reports that more or less eminent engineers there are talking with apparent seriousness about the possibility of turning mercury into gold by the use of an electrical furnace. Indeed, one of these physicists claims already to have done this, but he admits that the gold he produced cost at the rate of $2,184,000 per pound. If he really has done it, evidently his "overhead" will have to be vastly reduced before the manufacture of gold can be put on a commercial basis. Obtained in ordinary ways, 25.8 grains of gold are worth $1, and there are 5,760 grains in a pound troy.

But another of the modern alchemists claims to have a furnace much more powerful than the first one used, and that by means of it the cost of gold making has been brought down to such an extent that it might be a profitable business. Perhaps.

Only a few years ago one would not have given even as much of credulity as is implied by "perhaps" to any such assertions as these. Now the difference between atoms is viewed in a wholly new light, and, whatever its probability, the transmutation of any so-called element into any other is no longer regarded as obviously and necessarily and forever impossible.

According to present beliefs—beliefs which men of scientific authority say are as well supported as any others held by them—atoms differ from each other, not in substance, but in the number and arrangement of their electrons around a nucleus, and these numbers and arrangements not only can and do change themselves in certain conditions, but they can be changed by the utilization of devices now familiar to all laboratory workers.

As yet, unfortunately, most of the transmutations observed or caused are from higher to lower phases of atomic energy—in the case of metals from the more to the less valuable. That, however, does not prove that the process cannot be turned about. All plants have the secret and do a little of it every day, but it is with the waste of much solar energy, and man's achievements are likely to be of the same sort. Probably real "winding up" of atoms, as opposed to their "running down," can be effected only by the collision of two stars, an occurrence at which humanity never can "assist."

Industrial Accidents Decreasing.

From observations made recently at St. Mark's Hospital at Eleventh Street and Second Avenue, where an almost fixed proportion of the city's "accident cases" are taken, it is inferred on good grounds that the efforts of the past few years to reduce the dangers incidental to industrial activities have been successful to an easily measurable degree. Employers, partly because they have been convinced of the rightness of protecting life and limb, and partly because of their greater liability under the law for the safety of their employes, are guarding their machinery better than in the past, and the employes themselves have learned the lessons of caution that have been given to all of them.

There still are trades more or less perilous, and probably always will be, but no longer are the perils accepted as a matter of course, and even when they cannot be removed entirely, in most instances they are decreased by ingenious appliances and improved methods of operation.

It is somewhat surprising to learn from the statistics collected at St. Mark's Hospital that the construction of steel building frameworks is not attended by so great a risk as would be thought. The men thus engaged constantly do what look like terribly dangerous things as they swing high in air or walk narrow beams at great elevations. But they all are experts, and they have few or none of the feelings that would cause disaster to the unaccustomed. Killed or injured they are, sometimes, but not in the numbers that would be expected by those who would not dare to attempt their daily feats of balancing.

M. COUE had a part of the explanation when he said that except for fear and imagination, anybody could walk a plank a hundred feet in air as easily and safely as when the plank lies along the ground.

If Not He Why Others?

Those Britons, clerical and others, who have raised loud cries of indignant protest at the proposal to erect in Westminster Abbey a tablet bearing the name of BYRON have little difficulty in finding reasons in the poet's biographies for keeping a memorial of him out of the national fane of a nation that professes fervent admiration for virtue. Certainly BYRON's life was scandalous in various ways and at various times, and he did not pay to respectability the tribute of concealing his errors. On the contrary, he was rather proud of them, advertised them widely, and at times delighted in nothing more than the shocking of his fellow-countrymen.

But if BYRON cannot have a memorial in the Abbey, why should not that sacred edifice be freed from those of many another eminence and notability who ignored both the big and the little proprieties at least as audaciously as he did? Kings and queens more than a few are honored there whose records in history are far darker than the poets, and, to mention a modern instance, how about NELSON? Nobody now wants to banish his effigy from the Abbey, just as nobody objected to its entrance, but the great Admiral was very far from a model husband.

NELSON's fault was forgiven because of his services to his country, but BYRON also served his country by adding to its literary reputation the world over to no small extent, and for him something of the same lenience fairly might be claimed. His wickedness was, for the most part, pose; he had some aspirations really noble, and his death would have become any man.

For Once the Sage Is Mistaken.

A really shocking piece appears in the current issue of The Villager — shocking because it repeats as funny an old slander against men. The libel takes the form of an imaginary dialogue between ARISTOTLE and Diana, in the course of which the philosopher, in order to express his high regard for women and his belief in their capacity to handle public affairs at least as well as men, says that he would be content to divide political activities between the two sexes, letting the men do all the voting and the women all the officeholding. Thereupon Diana interrupts with shrieks of horror, real or pretended, and says that she couldn't think of anything more horrible.

"Than what?" asks ARISTOTLE.

"Than living in a country run by the women the men would pick out," replies the goddess.

All women and most men will laugh at that feat, but its implication that men are not appreciative of intelligence in women is wholly and rather outrageously unjust to men as a class. They are not immune, all of them, to the attraction of women who have only beauty—if there are any such women, which is doubtful—but it only is necessary to look at the women whom the majority of men marry to realize that outward appearance is not all they understand or like or want.

A PRESIDENT WHO CAN LEAD

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A few weeks prior to the Democratic Convention a letter was published in The Evening Post, signed, as I happen to know, by an independent Republican, which said:

"What we want is responsible government, a President that can lead his party or a party that will follow its President, a Government that will function in foreign policy, in federal taxation and in a sound, progressive domestic program."

The convention has answered this prayer in a way that must appeal to the intelligent independent Republican electorate and also to the business sense of the country. In the nomination of John W. Davis there is presented not a tolerable alternative to Mr. Coolidge, but the only prospect of a responsible party government. To the business interests concerned primarily with the maintenance of a high protective tariff his election would not promise everything they desire. An essentially monopolistic interest might feel safer in the hands of Mr. Coolidge. All interests must, of course, reckon with the fact that Congress is more apt to register the will of a radical minority under a President that cannot lead his party. To the same extent more representative business interests the nomination of Mr. Davis presents an opportunity, the only opportunity, to obtain an ordered and responsible government, progressive in a constructive sense, and conservative in the sense that its progress will be along the lines of precedent and sanity.

The Democratic Convention has, in fact, given us a super-Coolidge. When all has been said that can be said, fairly and generously, for the record, character and ability of President Coolidge, there is still more to be said, fairly and conservatively, for the record, character and ability of his opponent. In 1920 your own paper appraised him, as he then was, "a great Democrat." At that time he would have ranked in any intelligent selection of the half dozen men of both parties best qualified for the Presidency. Mr. Coolidge at that time stood high, but he did not rank with Mr. Davis. Since then, by an accident, Mr. Coolidge has become President. It may be fairly doubted whether his record as President has added materially to his prior record. He has shown courage and stability. He has also shown a lack of leadership, or rather an inability to lead his own party. He has left much to be desired in his effort to "clean house" without antagonizing his housekeeper. That Mr. Davis can and will lead his party, that his election would assure a responsible party government, is the point in issue, a point that business men will do well to ponder.

HOMEWARD BOUND.

Old days a-callin' us back to the blue,
Old voices singin' a song of the sea;
Ah, for the tattered old rag that we flew
High at the main of the Annabel Lee!
The capstan is manned and the mud-hook swings free—
Then hark! to the chantey all sailormen knew
When clipper ships carried the Chinaman's tea,
And Salem took tribute from Maine to Peru:

We're h-o-o-meward bound, I heard them say,
Good-bye, fare ye well, good-bye, fare ye well;
We're h-o-o-meward bound to Gloucester Bay—
Hurro! me boys, we're homeward bound!

And did ye make port, lads, and whence do ye hail?
I'm long overdue and I want to go home;
The old clipper struck on the Big Lizard's tail,
And the barnacles grow on her gunnel and rail,
Where she lies 'neath some forty-odd fathoms of foam,
That breaks on the reef where she slid to her home.

We'll hoist the Blue Peter and fire the gun,
Good-bye, fare ye well, good-bye, fare ye well;
We'll spread her wings and let her run—
Hurro! me lads, we're homeward bound!

Voices are callin' from days that are dead—
Come! pipe me down, bullies, the world has grown old!
Ah! the tramplin' of feet on the fo'c'sle-head,
And the boom of the gun'as a summons that said:

Under way! homeward bound! while the chantey song rolled:

Good-bye, fare ye well, good-bye, fare ye well;
Then spread her wings and let her go—

NARCOTICS CONGRESS.

Strong Support for the American Delegation Is Asked.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A front page column of THE TIMES this morning was none too much to tell how brave Federal Officer Coyle yesterday, single handed and alone, gave battle to a gang of desperate drug peddlers on an elevated train in the heart of the city, capturing two of them, while three got away in a wild panic which took possession of the passengers.

The narcotic menace infests the country with an insidious underground peril which is continuously coming to the surface in ways as spectacular and often more tragic than this, a menace which, some thoughtful observers consider more dangerous than alcohol, more blighting than human slavery. The dangers that it brings are perhaps more clearly seen by statesmen than by society in general. The platform of the Democratic Party well names it "a peril to America and to the human race requiring vigorous efforts for education, for control, and for suppression, at home and abroad."

A conference of representatives of all nations meets next November in Switzerland on the initiative of the American Congress to grapple with the problem. This conference will be clothed with authority whereby it may, if it will, initiate measures for suppressing the evil through eradication of the opium poppy and the cocaine shrub through the world except for such amounts as consensus of medical opinion finds necessary for medicine and science.

A strong American delegation is soon to leave for this conference headed by Stephen G. Porter, Chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee of Congress. No embassy has ever been dispatched from America which more deserves or more needs the support of the American public and press. Notwithstanding current publicity there is very inadequate recognition by the American people of the danger to our country and the world from this insidious agency. The degree of success to be attained by the conference will depend more than anything else on the measure to which it is supported by a strong, emphatic outpouring of public opinion. Congressman Porter and his associates should be made to feel that the country is with them and will back them up both officially and personally with every influence at command.

INDIA'S HANDICAP.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your reasonable editorial article regarding India leads me to make a comment on the attitude of most people to self-government in that country. In common with others until a visit there, I felt that Britain should speedily give self-government to the Indians. This frame of mind was partly due to sympathy for people who are under an alien rule and partly to feeling that all peoples should determine their own destiny.

After visiting India, short though the visit may be, I find that most of my friends have modified their opinions, realizing the difficulties which encompass not only the British Government but the various peoples in India. This may be best seen by considering the composition of the inhabitants. There are 320,000,000 people in India, of which 70 per cent. are Hindus and 20 per cent. are Mohammedans. The Hindus are divided into more than 1,800 castes, and no one can aspire to enter a higher caste. If one, through marriage or other circumstances, enters a lower class, he can have no further dealings with those in his own class. This interferes greatly with development along satisfactory lines.

One of the serious problems is that of the "untouchables," or repressed classes, of which there are 50,000,000, or nearly half the population of the United States. These are not allowed to enter any caste. To let their shadow fall in the pathway of a Brahmin is to defile him. Papers recently reported that one of the "untouchables" had been so badly beaten for allowing his shadow to defile a Brahmin that he had to be sent to a hospital. The condition of the "untouchables" may be best seen from the demands made by Mr. Srinibasan, a nominated member of the Madras Legislative Council representing the repressed classes. He presented resolutions of which the gist was:

That a person belonging to this class may walk through any public street or caste Hindu village in the same way as a caste Hindu.

That he may have access to "public office, wells, tanks and places of public worship" the same as the caste Hindus.

That the police be ordered to patrol the settlements inhabited by the repressed classes.

That postmen be ordered to take letters and other articles "right up to the doors and hand them over to the addressees."

That the Magistrate be ordered to inspect the settlements of the repressed classes at least once a week and to take note of the sanitary conditions; and

That there are to be no caste observations in any jail or reformatory.

Another great difficulty which the British face is the animosity between the Mohammedans and Hindus. Quarrels are of frequent occurrence; in fact, one is reported in today's newspapers, where six persons were killed and one hundred wounded, the disturbance being caused "by the aggressive attitude of the Mohammedans." These Mohammedans, representing one-fifth of the total population, are far more forceful than the Hindus, and it is likely that they would be the real governors of India if the British were to withdraw too soon.

While it is probable that the government of India by the natives would not be as good as by the British, the natives have a right to determine their own future. The fear of many well-wishers of India is that the process of attaining self-government will be unduly hurried and that real damage will thereby be done.

Vacations for Working Girls.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Owing to the increase of tuberculosis and cardiac troubles among working girls, the Working Girls' Vacation Society has given such cases its first consideration. There are many of these girls waiting for fresh air and good surroundings to help combat such diseases, but unless our friends help us we must curtail our work, as our funds are very low. Contributions large and small will be gladly received at the office of the society, 105 East Twenty-second Street, Room 416.

DECLINES TO CHOOSE NICARAGUAN HEAD

State Department Merely Asks the Republic to Observe the Treaty of Amity.

FREE ELECTIONS ARE ASKED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—The wish of this Government that national elections in Central American countries be undisturbed is set forth in a note to Nicaragua through the Chargé d'Affaires at Managua, and made public at the State Department today.

The statement was in reply to a request from Señor Urtecho, Nicaraguan Minister of Foreign Affairs, for the attitude of the United States toward the election of Carlos Solezano, Conservative, for President, and Juan Bautista Sacasa, Liberal, for the Vice Presidency.

The American note makes it plain that it has no preference regarding candidates for the Presidency of Nicaragua and desires only that free and fair elections may be held.

The American Government also wishes that no candidate not prohibited from holding office by Article II of the Treaty of Peace and Amity signed at Washington Feb. 7, 1923, be prevented from running. Under the terms of Article II of that treaty the five Central American countries agreed not to recognize any Government which comes into power through a coup d'état or a revolution, and bound themselves not to acknowledge the Government if any person elected as President, Vice President or designated Chief of Staff is leader of a revolution or is connected with such leader through blood relationship or marriage.

The text of the inquiry from Señor Urtecho was received by the State Department under date of July 18, as follows:

"Under the President's instructions, I beg to say the following to your Excellency:

"Prominent Conservatives and Liberals earnestly desiring international concord agree on Señor Carlos Solezano, Conservative, for President for the next constitutional term, and Señor Juan Bautista Sacasa, for Vice President, and ask me to receive and forward their wishes to know whether the State Department would look with favor on the alliance for the organization of a National Government. This being an honest scheme, I respectfully apply to your Excellency, with a request for an early answer. Distinguished consideration."

On the same day the State Department instructed the American Chargé d'Affaires at Managua to reply as follows:

"My Government has received your Excellency's telegram stating that prominent Conservatives and Liberals agreed on Señor Carlos Solezano as candidate for President for the next constitutional term and Señor Juan Bautista Sacasa for Vice President, and you inquire whether the Department of State will look with favor on the alliance for the organization of a National Government.

"In reply I am instructed by my Government to state that it has no preference whatever regarding candidates for high office of Presidency of Nicaragua. My Government supports no candidate and is hostile to no candidate; it desires only that free and fair elections may be held in order that the will of the people may be expressed without hindrance at the polls.

"My Government feels that the transference of the centre of political activity of Nicaragua to Washington would be detrimental to that Government's interests, and this Government, therefore, cannot express its views regarding any ticket.

"My Government desires that no candidate for the Presidency, not prohibited from holding such office by Article II of the Treaty of Peace and Amity, signed at Washington on Feb. 7, 1923, may be impeded from presenting his candidacy to the electors of Nicaragua, and any person who gains the office of President through free and fair elections in accordance with the electoral law and the Constitution, and who is not comprised within the classes above mentioned, will be accorded the recognition of the United States Government and my Government will be glad to carry on with him the friendly relations that have always existed between the United States and Nicaragua, and will be glad to lend him its advice and counsel."

In reply to an inquiry recently as to whether President Martinez of Nicaragua would be satisfactory to the United States as a candidate for reelection, the State Department informed the Nicaraguan Government that it could not recognize as President any one expressly prohibited by the Constitution from holding that office.

NEW LAWS AID VETERANS.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—Recently enacted laws intended to increase facilities for caring for disabled veterans are working well, according to Frank J. Irwin of New York, National Commander of the Disabled American Veterans, who today conferred with President Coolidge.

"The President was greatly interested in the attitude of the disabled men toward the functioning of the Veterans' Bureau," Mr. Irwin said. "I told him the Disabled American Veterans intended to continue its attitude of cooperation and constructive criticism until the vast problem has been solved.

"The Reed-Johnson bill, which became a law on the final day of last month, is the most equitable bit of legislation affecting the disabled that Congress has enacted since the armistice, and we feel its provisions will simplify the administration of the Veterans' Bureau.

"There are several points that are not satisfactory, and we adopted recommendations at a national convention at Salt Lake City last month that will be pressed as soon as Congress returns in December."

AMNESTY FOR CARLISTS.

Among Hungarian Royalists Affected Are Andrassy and Sigray.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, July 21.—All persons involved in the attempt to restore former Emperor Charles to the throne when the late monarch made his sensational descent upon Hungary three years ago are to receive amnesty.

The Cabinet decided to take this action on the proposal of Admiral Horthy, the Regent, after a long discussion. The grant will include Count Andrassy and Count Sigray, whose wife before her marriage was Miss Harriet Daly of Butte, Mont.

PARK TO HONOR COLUMBUS.

Towner Accepts Tract in Porto Rico Near His Landing Place.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, July 21 (Associated Press).—Governor Towner today formally accepted from the Insular Government the gift of the tract of land near Aguadilla where Christopher Columbus landed in 1493, the only spot under the American flag where the discoverer of America ever set foot.

The Government will develop the tract as a park in which the Knights of Columbus of the United States have offered to erect a suitable Columbus monument.

WILL DEPORT GIRL UNLESS FRIENDS AID

Father, Violinist, Cannot Pay Florentina Rog's Board at Jewish Home.

CAME HERE FROM POLAND

Has No Relatives There Now and No Means of Earning a Living.

Florentina Rog, the 16-year-old daughter of Samuel Rog, a violinist living at 108 Newtown Street, has been ordered deported to Poland by Secretary of Labor Davis, it was announced yesterday at Ellis Island, on the ground that she is in danger of becoming a public charge. Unless friends aid her she will be sent to Poland, where she has no relatives and no means of earning a livelihood. Her departure is being delayed to await a passport from the Polish authorities.

Florentina's father is unable to pay her board at the Cedar Knolls School, Hawthorne, N. Y., which is maintained by the Jewish Board of Guardians and to which she was committed by Magistrate Wilkins in the Children's Court, Brooklyn, July 29, 1921, on charges of disorderly conduct and improper guardianship. It was said at Ellis Island yesterday that the only way of preventing the girl's deportation was through an appeal to Secretary Davis. Should funds for her board at the Hawthorne institution become available and should her future maintenance there be guaranteed the deportation order might be canceled.

The girl arrived in New York with her father on board the Holland-America liner Nieuw Amsterdam, May 24, 1920. Her mother was dead and the father, unable to make a home for his daughter, paid her board with a family. The police say little supervision was exercised over the girl.

A few weeks after her arrival Florentina went to Coney Island with several other girls and boys, all of whom were arrested. Although the others were discharged in court, Magistrate Wilkins sent Florentina to Cedar Knolls. It is said by her friends that her ignorance of English and her inability to understand the nature of the proceedings had much to do with her commitment. She knew but a few English words, and the application of an intelligence test resulted in a quotient of 55, so she was adjudged a feeble-minded. She was examined again on May 3 last, when her quotient was 75, so that she is now considered a border-line case.

After her commitment to Cedar Knolls her father said he could not pay her board, so she became a public charge. She was ordered deported, but her time has been twice extended, for a year each time. Her conduct at the school is said by the authorities there to have been exemplary.

It was said at Ellis Island yesterday that the date of the girl's deportation was uncertain and that it had been taken from two to six months to obtain passports from Poland in similar cases.

FRENCH AUTOMOBILISTS UNDER SAINT'S CARE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 21.—There are 250 automobiles in France which have taken out insurance against all accidents in the name of St. Christopher. Under the trees in front of the Church of St. Christopher they were blessed yesterday by the archpriest of Argenteau, Canon Ratjer, for St. Christopher is the patron saint of automobilists, and Canon Ratjer is his spokesman.

All the countryside came to see the ceremony and hear the archpriest's admonitions. Some of them came at sixty miles an hour, and all sorts and conditions of automobiles, from Rolls-Royces to five horsepower Citroens and the ubiquitous Fords, lined up in front of the church while their drivers listened to the canon's words.

St. Christopher, he said, did not like reckless drivers. He protected only virtuous automobilists, who drove carefully through villages and sounded their horns at crossroads. But neither the canon nor the patron saint was an enemy of progress. Each approved everything which made for improvement in automobiles, and especially in conditions. Both wanted all drivers to seek the protection of the saint and keep the road rules which he laid down.

One by one, after the sermon, the cars filed past the archpriest, who blessed them. Then, sure that nothing could injure them, they sped off again along the roads with triumphal blasts of their horns in honor of the saint.

CROSSING WRECK KILLS 2, INJURES 6 IN AUTO

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., July 21.—Two sisters are dead, a third is in the Goshen Emergency Hospital and five other persons are painfully injured as the result of an accident at Monroe, when the Erie Railroad New York-Jamestown express crashed into an automobile at the Main Street crossing, demolishing the machine. The driver escaped with a slight cut.

Hurled 150 feet when the engine struck the sedan of Adolph Potdevin of 1,216 Seventy-fifth Street, Brooklyn, Miss Louise Fitzer, aged 41, of 1,077 Eleventh Street, Brooklyn, was instantly killed. Her body when picked up after the accident was two feet from the eastbound tracks. Miss Carrie Fitzer, aged 41, her sister, died on the train on the way to the Goshen hospital. She was found unconscious on a pile of coal on the sidewalk nearly 70 feet from the crossing.

Miss Matilda Fitzer, aged 38, the third sister, was taken from the wreck of the automobile and placed on the train. She received a fractured rib and was suffering from shock.

The party was on its way from Cornwall to Chester, where the sisters were stopping. They were held at Monroe until after an eastbound train had passed. Mr. Potdevin asserts he understood a signal was given him to proceed, but the watchman insists no signal was given.

Flying fragments of the automobile injured four other persons, one of whom was struck by a mudguard thrown to a corner more than fifty feet away. Another was struck by the extra tire. Wreckage was strewn along the tracks for more than 100 feet.

GETS ENGLAND ON ONE TUBE

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 21.—E. T. Flewelling, radio engineer, has been successful in hearing raidocast 2XT, Poldhu, England, using only one tube and a loop aerial in the circuit, invented by Mr. Flewelling and bearing his name.

Bridging a distance of about 3,500 miles on the single-tube, super-loop aerial set was not the only significant feat, however. The station was using Marconi's new "direct-ray" transmission system, and that on 94 meters. The single tube super, however, had no difficulty in bringing in Poldhu on the head receivers. The English station was sending test calls and some music, evidently phonograph, at the time heard.

"It is but another demonstration of what can be done in radio," Mr. Flewelling said. "By next Winter, perhaps, you will find such reception common on better made sets. The short wave and direct transmission are part of the secret. Sensitive sets, well designed, are another factor."

MORGAN TO JOIN BANKERS ABROAD

Vacation Trip, and Has Nothing to Do With Reparations Question, He Says.

TO SAIL ON MINNEWASKA

With Many Other American Financiers, Will Be on the Ground if Loan Is Arranged.

J. P. Morgan, in an interview yesterday which he sought to make brief, admitted the following: That he will sail next Saturday for Europe, that it will be a "regular vacation trip" and that it will have no significance whatever from the standpoint of a German reparations settlement or of a German loan.

The interview, which lasted while the banker covered a distance of about thirty feet between the door of his private office and the steps of the Morgan building, began with the financier's admission that he was leaving on Saturday. Asked what ship he would go on, he showed some concern. "I don't think I ought to tell you. If I do, I'll be met by a hundred photographers." But he thought better of it an instant later and added: "Well, the fact is I am leaving on the Minnewaska."

Asked if his trip had any connection with German reparations or a German loan, he said:

"This is my regular vacation trip and the fact that it has been planned for six months ahead would show that it is not connected with a German loan."

The banker, accompanied by Edward R. Stettinius, a partner, started briskly for the door, but halted momentarily when asked if Thomas W. Lamont, also a partner, was preparing to leave England for the United States. "Oh, no," he said. "Mr. Lamont is in London and is having a very enjoyable vacation there."

Mr. Morgan will spend the greater part of his vacation trip in Scotland, England and France, and his arrival in Europe will swell the ranks of distinguished American financiers and industrial men who have gone to that continent in the last month or so. Their presence there, although avowedly not connected in any way with allied work in putting the Dawes plan into effect, has attracted considerable attention. Should the Interallied Conference reach a working agreement within the next few weeks American bankers abroad would be in sufficient number to put the German loan under way in a short time.

Mr. Morgan, Mr. Lamont and George Whitney, all of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., would be in this number; also Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury; Otto H. Kahn of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.; A. H. Harris, Chairman of the Finance Committee of the New York Central Railway Company, who has close business relations with the First National Bank; Owen D. Young, one of the creators of the Dawes plan; Seward Prosser, Chairman of the Bankers Trust Company, and James Speyer of Speyer & Co. There are representatives also of virtually all other large New York banks now in Europe.

The trip of Mr. Harris aroused special interest because he is a recognized authority on railroads and railroad finance, and his services would come in handy, it was reasoned, should a German loan be arranged, because such a loan presumably would be based on the German railways system.

Another Hurt in Explosion at Jamesville Penitentiary.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 21.—Two inmates of the Onondaga Penitentiary at Jamesville, east of here, were killed today and another was seriously injured when a charge of dynamite exploded prematurely in the county quarry near the penitentiary. Three other employes, not inmates of the jail, were injured.

Ambulances from several of the city hospitals were rushed to the quarry, which is about ten miles from the centre of this city. Telephone communication with the quarry was said by the penitentiary authorities to have been cut off for some time after the explosion, which prevented complete details of the accident from becoming known promptly.

The dead men are Eugene Brown and James Tucker, both negroes and both 30 and 35 years old, respectively. Ernest Simoleon is the seriously injured prisoner.

Brown was sentenced from Minoa, near here, for a minor offense and Tucker from this city. Both were serving short terms.

FLYNN PROTESTS ARRESTS.

Rhode Island Governor Sends Note to Bay State Executive.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 21.—Governor William S. Flynn today sent to Governor Channing H. Cox of Massachusetts a communication understood to be a protest against the arrest by Massachusetts constabular officers on Saturday night of a group of Rhode Island officials.

"I am forwarding to Governor Cox of Massachusetts a communication which is self-explanatory," Governor Flynn said.

"This communication relates to the outrageous action of the State police of Massachusetts who, with knowledge of the identity of certain Rhode Island officials engaged in the investigation of phases of a revolting crime which involved the placing of a bromine gas bomb in the Rhode Island Senate, nevertheless arrested these officials and caused them to be placed under bail as suspicious persons."

SCHOLARSHIPS FOR BRITONS

English-Speaking Union Backs Page School at Johns Hopkins.

BALTIMORE, July 21.—Two scholarships for English journalists will be established in the Walter Hines Page School of International Relations at the Johns Hopkins University, it was announced today.

They will be established by the English Speaking Union, which was organized a few years ago by representative Americans and Britons "to draw together in the bond of comradeship the English speaking peoples of the world." Former President Taft is President of the American branch and the Earl of Balfour is President of the British branch.

To achieve its objects the organization advocates the interchange of representative speakers, of university professors and students, the correlation of ideals and methods of education, increased trade and commerce, and joint athletic contests.

Delays Action on Sculptor's Plea.

Supreme Court Justice McGoldrick reserved decision yesterday on an application by Robert Aitken, sculptor, for an order to examine Vannie L. Edgerton, Directress General of the Society of the Daughters of the Holland Dames, in a suit for $5,000 damages. Mr. Aitken alleges that after he had been told to proceed with a contract to make a statue commemorating the arrival of the Dutch on Manhattan Island, for which he was to get $15,000, he was notified that the contract was not binding and told to stop the work.

WHEAT PRICES SAG WITH FALL OF RAIN

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 21.—Some of the leading local operators have turned to the bear side of the grain markets, feeling that values are due for a reaction on account of the weather and the crop reports coming from both sides of the international line. Where all the long wheat and corn has gone to that has been sold out in the past few days is still a mystery and cannot be traced, suggesting that the public is in the markets on a larger scale than generally believed.

Should any attempt be made to reinstate sold out lines, a sharp advance is likely, according to some of the best posted local men, but at the same time should crop reports continue to show improvement it will take increased buying to maintain the present level.

Wheat closed ⅞@1⅛ cents lower for the day, corn 1¼@2 cents lower, oats 1¼@1⅝ cents and rye 1⅝@1⅞ cents lower. Rains in the American and Canadian Northwest have benefited the wheat crop in some sections and relieved the tension for the time being, while the increasing receipts in the Southwest, Kansas City and the three leading interior points, having around 2,000 cars for the day, have also attracted attention and served to help change sentiment. Taken as a whole, the bull edge seems to be off the market for the time being, even though there is a strong belief in higher prices ultimately.

Foreigners are not taking Winter wheat at the present time at a rate calculated to help the market, even though there was some business put through today that was not reported. It would not be surprising to see some of the leading European countries come into the market as free buyers shortly, as Chicago prices today went to about the widest discount of the season as compared with those in Winnipeg and Buenos Aires.

Winnipeg July gained ⅜ of a cent for the day, and the deferred deliveries were 1⅛@1¼ cents lower. In the visible supply there was a decrease of 163,000 bushels, making the total 84,175,000 bushels, compared with 84,313,000 bushels the previous week and 24,800,000 bushels last year.

Primary arrivals today were 2,643,000; week ago, 2,212,000; last year, 2,573,000. Shipments, 744,000 bushels; week ago, 438,000; last year, 928,000.

SANDWICH MAN ROBBED.

But He Refuses to Give Other Park Concessionaires' Movements.

John Duffy, who has a sandwich stand at Palisades Park, declined $1,750 yesterday rather than give to three armed men, who robbed him of $1,350, information which would have enabled them to hold up three other concessionaires at the park. Despite his refusal, the robbers, after relieving him of all his money, gave him 60 cents for carfare home.

Duffy was on his way to his home at 738 Park Avenue, Weehawken. He reached the house shortly after 1 o'clock in the morning. In his pockets was $650, Sunday's receipts, and on his hands were three diamond rings worth $400. He was about to mount the steps when a Ford car drew up at the curb and three men, each with a pistol, alighted and compelled him to enter the machine.

They drove Duffy to Morsemere, fifteen miles away. On the way they took his money and his rings and then offered to return them, with $500 additional if he would tell them of the movements of three other stand proprietors at the park. Duffy inquired why they wished to know and was candidly told that the amusement men had been marked for robbery.

Duffy made it plain that they would learn nothing from him and asked for carfare to get home. They complied. Duffy went immediately to the Ridgefield Park police station and reported the hold-up.

GEN. BUTLER DENIES BREAK.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, July 21.—Reports that Mayor Kendrick and General Butler, Director of Police, have quarreled, were denied emphatically today by the General. A story had been in circulation that the Mayor intended to have a "show-down" today with General Butler and that the Director would go next January, if not sooner.

The reports were strong enough to induce the Methodist Preachers' Association at a meeting today to pass a resolution asking the Mayor to retain the Director. The resolution stated that the removal of General Butler would be a calamity to the city, and appealed to the Mayor to "save us from this disaster."

The Mayor arrived at his office shortly before 1 o'clock this afternoon and immediately went into conference with several city officials whose visits were held to be significant. They all denied that General Butler was the subject of their conferences.

"I have no quarrel with the Mayor," General Butler said this afternoon. "While it is true that I have not seen or talked with him for nearly two weeks, that does not indicate there is a breach between us. I simply have been hard at work as Director of Public Safety and the Mayor has not had occasion to call me."

"Then it isn't true, Director, that you and the Mayor quarreled while on a trip through the Poconos?" he was asked.

"No, certainly not."

"Do you expect to see the Mayor?"

"If the Mayor sends for me I will go immediately. If something arises that I feel should go to the Mayor, I will take it to him. I am simply here to take orders. I will continue to carry out those orders as long as I am here. My orders are to keep the police out of politics, and that I am going to do."

FIVE NEGROES WOUNDED.

Fight at Bear Mountain Renewed in Harlem.

A fight among negro excursionists on the steamer Clermont at Bear Mountain yesterday was continued after the vessel docked here last evening and resulted in two men being seriously wounded. Previously two men had been slashed and cut while the steamer was at Bear Mountain. They were taken ashore to hospitals and the ring leader of the trouble was arrested and fined $15 by a Bear Mountain Justice of the Peace.

In the Harlem Hospital in a serious condition was Sam Hunter, 27 years old, 70 West 134th Street, shot in the back; Jonh Comires, 35 years old, 30 West 135th Street, shot in the chest. William Pennyfeather, 2,170 Madison Avenue, was shot in the chest and hip, escaped from the Harlem Hospital. Arthur Hayward is in the enlisted men's hospital at West Point with stab wounds in his side and Ralph de la Rosa, 244 East 136th Street, is in the Emergency Hospital at Bear Mountain, having been slashed across the face and shoulders with a razor.

Police say the trouble started when the 2,000 members and friends of the Southern League of Brooklyn reached Bear Mountain. Pennyfeather was the storm center. The police say and after the fight at the river resort he was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct and fined $15.

SAYS MAKING GOLD IS NOT A MARVEL

PRACTICAL ONLY IF CHEAP

If Quicksilver Could Be Transformed at Low Cost, Says Expert, Currency Systems Would Change.

Scientists and mining experts, who have been hearing for ten years about discoveries in Germany for making gold out of lead and other metals, were not greatly stirred yesterday by a cable message from Berlin to the effect that Professor Miethe of the Berlin Technical School had succeeded in obtaining gold from quicksilver at a cost of $2,164,000 a pound.

"There is nothing impossible about it on the face of it," said Dr. W. L. Severinghaus, a physicist of Columbia University. "Rutherford has shown that you can knock one element out of another by striking an atom a blow with an X-ray, and we know that one radioactive element breaks up to form another. Many hold the idea that the application of high temperature would cause such a disturbance to atoms as to disrupt them and produce new substances. In two doubtful experiments, one at the University of Chicago and one at Princeton, it has been reported that helium atoms were produced by heat from heavier atoms.

"While there seems to be nothing intrinsically impossible about the report, things of this kind have been announced so frequently without foundation that no one is inclined to accept them without a good deal of evidence."

The last similar report came two years ago from Professor Irving Fisher of Yale, who told of information that had come to him about the production of gold from lead in a German furnace, and he speculated at some length on the easy payment of the German indemity that this might make possible and on other economic consequences. Dr. Fisher later made a statement that he had become convinced that his first information was untrustworthy.

A. H. Hebbell, managing editor of The Engineering and Mining Journal, said yesterday that reports of the manufacture of gold from base metals in the furnace of Augustus Lohman had been pretty well discredited, but that the report that Professor Miethe had produced gold from quicksilver was not to be dismissed so lightly.

"He is a conservative man and there is a possibility that the report of his work may have something in it, but it is not of much practical value if it costs more than $3,000,000 a pound to make the gold.

If quicksilver could be cheaply transformed into gold the currency systems of the world would be disturbed pretty badly, as quicksilver is common compared to gold. Quicksilver yesterday commanded a price of $73 for the seventy-five-pound flask, or slightly under a dollar a pound, while gold was worth $351 a pound. Quicksilver production fluctuates, but every year it is from four to seven times that of the gold production. In 1920, for instance, the world's production of gold was 1,404,200 pounds and the world's production of quicksilver was 6,453,000 pounds. The largest use for quicksilver today is in the manufacture of fulminate of mercury for explosives. The market for it has been somewhat disturbed by the possibility that a great demand for it will be created by the use of the new mercury boiler recently developed by the General Electric Company.

HELL GATE WHIRLPOOL CLAIMS SISTERS' LIVES

Two sisters, Helen Ledwith, 10 years old, and Katherine, 14, of 244 East Ninetieth Street, who went to her assistance, were drowned yesterday in the whirlpool of Hell Gate off Astoria Park, Long Island City, and, despite a search that lasted until dark, the harbor police were unable to recover the bodies.

The sisters went to the park with a party of ten for a swim. Helen was the first in the party to don her bathing suit. Being a good swimmer she volunteered to teach others less proficient.

She swam out into the current, soon got into difficulty and called for help. Katherine, who by this time was in her bathing suit, swam out to her sister. Soon she too was in difficulty. Some of the other girls ran into the park and gave the alarm. Several policemen came from the Astoria Precinct Station, but the sisters meanwhile had disappeared.

It is said by persons who live nearby that no swimmer has ever been able to get out of the whirlpool without assistance.

Motorcycle Patrolman John Cordley rescued 11-year-old Adolph Edmund of 26 Fort Charles Place from drowning in the Harlem River off 215th Street yesterday afternoon. Hearing boys' shouts for help Cordley speeded up his machine and saw Adolph struggling in the water twenty yards from shore. Cordley threw off his coat, jumped into the river and swam to the struggling boy as he was about to go down a second time. The patrolman took the lad ashore, gave him first aid and sent him home.

ISSUES SMALLPOX WARNING.

Health Service Head Says Public Must Help Check Outbreak.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—Medical science must solicit individual cooperation if the present outbreak of smallpox in various parts of the country is to be checked, Dr. J. F. Leake, chief of the Infectious Disease Laboratory of the Public Health Service, said today.

Apprehension felt by Health Service officials had been increased, he said, because of the seeming public indifference to vaccination and treatment for mild cases. The present outbreak, he declared, probably was a development of the mild form of the disease which had been manifest in the country since 1901.

The Health Service is attempting to supply all physicians with the latest information concerning the diagnosis of smallpox for which much new data has been obtained.

Physicians also are being told to disseminate the information that the old method of making a large scar on the patient through vaccination was no longer necessary.

"A little vanity dimple," Dr. Leake said, "is the only mark that should remain."

Attacks of smallpox, Dr. Leake said, began with headaches, accompanied with a slight attack of grippe and followed by the appearance of red spots all over the body. If these are not profuse or very noticeable the patient often is not aware that he is infected with the disease.

After exposure to smallpox, the physician said, vaccination within twenty-four hours usually would prevent its contraction.

BLAMES "SPOILS SYSTEM."

Civil Service Leader Assails the Present and Past Administrations.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., July 21.—A return to the spoils system of appointment at Washington was held accountable by H. W. Marsh, Secretary of the National Civil Service Reform League, for the recent scandals in the Department of Justice, the Department of the Interior, the Prohibition Enforcement Unit and the Veterans' Bureau, in an address before the Institute of Government and Politics of the University of Michigan today. The speaker said this could only be corrected by the extension of the merit principle to the highest places in the Federal Government.

He charged that the previous Democratic Administration had also been guilty of offenses against the merit principle.

"The cause of these scandals," he said, "was the same as the cause of the scandals of more than fifty years ago which led to the enactment of the original Civil Service law. Few will claim that Mr. Daugherty was appointed Attorney General on account of his high qualifications as a jurist and his unimpeachable character. He was selected for personal and political reasons."

TAXICAB COMPANIES BEGIN A RATE WAR

OTHERS CALL MEETINGS

METERS UNDERGO CHANGES

Yellow Taxicab Company to Announce Decision Today—Lowest Charges in Country Promised.

A cut-rate war among taxicab operating companies spread rapidly throughout New York yesterday. Operators last night promised that the metropolis would enjoy the lowest taxicab rates in the United States. First one company and then another slashed rates.

At the end of the day only a small minority of the taxicab companies had not reduced rates. Chief of these was the Yellow Taxicab Company, which is said to operate the largest number of cabs in New York City. At the offices of this company, which is still operating on the old rates, it was said that information concerning a possible price cut would be given out today.

The former rate of 40 cents for the first mile and 30 cents for each additional mile was reduced 25 per cent. several days ago by the Twentieth Century Brown and White Taxicab Association, operating 600 taxicabs. Then the Green Diamond Corporation with 200 cabs lopped 25 per cent. off the old rates. When these companies changed their meters to record mileage according to the new schedule the slump in taxicab fares throughout New York City was on.

Directors of other companies were summoned hurriedly to meetings yesterday to consider the situation. Some companies met the reduction of their competitors, while others made still lower rates. Some directors were still in session late last night, and on their behalf it was said that announcements of their decisions would be made today.

Cut to 25 Cents a Mile.

Before the middle of the afternoon some companies were charging only 25 cents for the first mile and 20 cents for each succeeding mile. That rate was announced by the newly organized United States Cab Corporation, which is headed by Henry Weiss, former President of the Mogul Checker Cab Corporation and Vice President of the Empire State Taxicab Chamber of Commerce.

The Luxor Cab Company was one of the first to announce a cut to 25 cents for the first mile. It operates 200 cabs, according to Jerome L. Davis, sales manager.

"It will take some time to change our meters so that they will register according to the new schedule," explained Mr. Davis, "so we have adopted the expedient of placarding both windows of each cab with a notice to passengers that the driver should deduct one-third from the amount of the fare recorded by the meter. It will cost about $15 a meter to change from the old reading to the new.

"Our meters, when changed, will drop 15 cents instead of 20 when starting, and thereafter each drop will be 2 cents, making a total of 25 cents for the first mile. Our meters will differ from the United States Cab Corporation only as to the 5-cent drop. Mine meters will drop 10 cents after the initial drop of 15 cents, but theirs, too, registers 25 cents for the first mile. We are working in cooperation with the Premier and Mogul Checker Companies, and they are expected to make reductions.

"Every taxicab company in New York City has got to meet this rate reduction. What we are working toward is a standard cab rate. It is possible now for a man going by taxicab from the Hotel Astor to 110th Street to ride on six different rates, depending upon whether the color of the meter—not the color of the cab—is red or green or some other hue.

"The rate cuts affect most of the taxicabs of the $3,000 grade. They will set a standard which other taxicab operators will have to follow.

Expect Larger Business.

"We expect to be compensated in the volume of business to be handled for what we lose by the reduction in rates. Undoubtedly the price slashing will result in an enormous increase in the number of persons who use taxicab transportation.

"One of the difficulties we are likely to encounter is the reluctance of independent operators of cabs to charge the reduced rates. They might be called the 'die-hards.' But we have the assurance of Commissioner of Licenses Quigley and Deputy Chief John Drennan that they will back us up in protecting the public from exploitation."

Mr. Davis said that the lower rates would mean that the mileage of the superior cars, which, in the past, has averaged "50 per cent. living" or carrying fares, and "50 per cent. dead," which means empty cars would show an increase to 75 per cent. mileage with passenger and a reduction to 25 per cent. mileage unoccupied.

The United States Cab Corporation, according to President Weiss, has adopted a new color scheme, the outstanding features of which are an ivory top and a blue body. To prevent pirating of the color scheme as far as possible, the new corporation has caused a name plate for each door of its cabs to be designed and copyrighted.

"We have asked the Corporation Counsel for an opinion as to whether the Commissioner of Licenses has power to refuse to issue a license to or to revoke the license of a cab operator who pirates the color design of another operator. If we get a favorable ruling, it will tide us over till the Fall, when we will ask the Board of Aldermen for an ordinance prohibiting the stealing of taxicab color schemes."

Mr. Weiss said that the taxicab industry of New York City represented a $50,000,000 investment, and that everything possible was being done to raise the standards of the industry to insure the comfort and safety of the taxicab passenger.

42 Butchers Fined for Sunday Sales.

Twenty-two east side butchers paid fines of $5 each in Essex Market Court yesterday for remaining open on Sunday. The defense of all those arraigned was that they remained closed on Saturday, which was their Sabbath. Magistrate Edgar V. Frothingham ruled they were violating the law, which specifies Sunday and not Saturday as the Sabbath.

Only Two at Final Meeting Of Old Long Island G.A.R. Post

Ranks of the Civil War veterans who were members of Benjamin Ringgold Post, No. 283, of Long Island City have so thinned that there are but two survivors, Dr. R. F. MacFarlane of 329 Broadway, Astoria, and Joseph M. Zarman of 588 Sixth Avenue, Astoria. This post was formerly the largest on Long Island, and it had a meeting place in the basement of the Queens County Court House. The two old veterans are not able any longer to make the journey to the Court House, so yesterday afternoon they met at Zarman's home and held the final meeting of the post. They decided to surrender their charter and to affiliate with George Huntsman's Post, in Flushing. The records of the post, together with the mementoes of former members, will be placed in the keeping of the Flushing Historical Society. Ringgold Post was chartered Aug. 5, 1882.

FALLON CHARGES COURT WITH BIAS

Judge McClintic of West Virginia Refuses to Allow Document to Become Public.

William J. Fallon, a former District Attorney of Westchester County and for some years a remarkably successful practitioner in New York City, went on trial yesterday before Federal Judge George W. McClintic of West Virginia in the Federal Court in this city on the charge of bribing Charles W. Rendigs, a juror, to vote for acquittal in a bucket-shop case.

The defense kept the Court busy all day yesterday with a series of motions, apparently intended to delay the trial. The first move of the defense was the filing of a mysterious affidavit.

"This is wholly immaterial and grossly improper, not to say scandalous," said Judge McClintic. He ordered the document sealed and guarded by the clerk and instructed the defense not to permit copies of the document to be seen by any one without the express permission of the Court. Fallon had previously said that he would make the document public when it was filed with the Court, but this ruling blocked him.

In a series of motions R. J. Shanahan of Syracuse, counsel for Fallon, sought to delay the trial on the ground that more time should be allowed him to study the case and to obtain witnesses; on the ground that the Judge was prejudiced and on the ground that the panel of jurymen had been unlawfully drawn.

Judge McClintic showed his amazement when Mr. Shanahan suggested that the Court entertained a prejudice against the defendant which unfitted him to sit in the trial. Judge McClintic was called here from West Virginia to try Fallon and he expressed surprise at the idea that he could be thought to have any preconceived opinions in the matter. Mr. Shanahan said that he based the claim of prejudice on the ground that Judge McClintic had read the affidavit before the trial. Judge McClintic said that this was true, but that he had not read the document until the case had been called for trial. The Court declined to entertain affidavits on the alleged claim of prejudice against himself.

It was reported that the defense would make an effort to reopen the question of prejudice today. By reading the affidavit so early in the proceedings and making the order against its use, it was said that the Judge prevented the defense from making public the charges therein contained under the protection of legal privilege and thwarted any plan to involve persons of note and to establish jealousy and revenge as motives for some of the attacks on Fallon. A copy of the affidavit was served on Assistant United States District Attorney William J. Millard who, outside of court, characterized it as "rotten."

Judge McClintic likewise overruled the pleas of Mr. Shanahan for more time to prepare the case and to obtain witnesses. He decided, however, to take testimony on the charge made by the defense that the jurors had not been properly summoned.

United States District Attorney William Hayward appeared before the Court and conceded that the jurors had been summoned by mail, instead of being summoned personally by the Marshal or his deputies. Mr. Shanahan argued that this was improper, and he also asserted that, while he was entitled to have 100 talesmen summoned, only sixty-fifty had appeared.

Deputy Clerk William Leary told the Court that forty-five members of the panel had appeared. Mr. Shanahan alleged that the defense had thus made out a case of non-compliance with the law, but Judge McClintic ruled otherwise.

Marshal Hecht, called as a witness, told the Court that the jurors had been served by mail and that this was the ordinary practice here. Judge McClintic reserved decision on this point until this morning at 10:30 o'clock, when the trial will be resumed.

The trial of Charles A. Stoneham on the charge of using the mails to defraud was postponed indefinitely yesterday because no Federal Judge is available for the trial at the present time.

CAUGHT TRYING TO ESCAPE.

Boy Gets Away, but Companion Must Face Auto Theft Charge.

One boy escaped Sunday night from the Children's Shelter, at 111 Warburton Avenue, Yonkers. Another boy was caught as he was getting away.

Francis Malloy, 18 years old, of 119 Tyler Street, Springfield, Mass., was the one who escaped. His companion, Ronald Blauvelt, 14, of 11 Tyler Street, was caught. Both were arrested a few days ago when they were trying to start a stalled auto engine. Inquiry brought the admission that they had stolen the car in Plainfield, N. J. Blauvelt, according to the police, escaped from the Hampton County Training School in Massachusetts. He was returned to Plainfield to answer the charge of stealing the auto.

AMERICAN FLIERS DELAYED TILL AUG 1

NAVY WILL BE READY THEN

Establishment of Supply Bases Regulates Their Schedule—Boston Plans a Big Welcome.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—Naval vessels designated to safeguard the passage of the army world fliers from Europe to the Labrador coast will be in position by Aug. 1, ready to render assistance in any emergency.

The departure of the fliers from England before that date is not expected here, despite reports to the contrary. Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith, commander of the flight, has been informed that ultimate success in girdling the globe is to be the first and foremost consideration, and that speed is a secondary object.

While not attempting to formulate an exact itinerary, army air service executives predict that the fliers will arrive in Boston about Aug. 20. That estimate is based on a supposition of average weather conditions and wear and tear of equipment, and on the same basis completion of the flight at Clover Field, in California, in the last week of August also is predicted. Clover Field has been definitely chosen as the official point of termination.

May Go to Kirkwall Thursday.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 21.—Announcement was made tonight that the world flight of the American Army airmen would not be continued from Brough before Thursday at the earliest. New engines and floats have been fitted, and as the Humber Estuary adjoins the airdrome at Brough tests will be made of the newly fitted machines, both in the air and on water. If the tests prove satisfactory flights probably will be continued Thursday as far as Kirkwall.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 21.—The navy today began its task of keeping watch while the army world fliers soar over the Atlantic on the homeward leg of their journey. The cruiser Richmond, flagship of Rear Admiral Thomas P. Magruder, commanding the light cruiser squadron, slipped out of this port at 6 A. M. today, the advance guard of about a dozen naval vessels which will be stationed along the route of the aviators from England to Scotland and thence by way of the Orkney Islands, Iceland and Greenland to the North American continent on the bleak coast of Labrador and onward across Newfoundland and Nova Scotia to home soil.

The cruiser Milwaukee, sister ship of the Richmond, arrived at Halifax yesterday with an advance officer of the Army Air Service aboard. The destroyer Hotilla now at Newport also will depart some time this week to assist in the work.

The Richmond will be joined in British waters by the cruiser Raleigh and two destroyers from the European squadron, as the four warships will guard the flight from England to the Orkneys and thence to Iceland. The Milwaukee, from Halifax, will distribute supplies to the various points where the flyers are scheduled to stop. The destroyers will be strung out along the leg from Greenland to Labrador.

By this method the Navy Department hopes to be in continuous touch by radio with the men who are making history in the air. The installation in England of sending and receiving apparatus for the flagship will enable Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith, the flight commander, to communicate at all times with Admiral Magruder on the Richmond or with others of the war craft along the route.

If the latest schedule drawn up is carried out the airplanes will drop into the more or less sheltered waters of Indian Bay, Iceland, at 2 P. M. Four days later they should reach Picton, N. S., and after a brief stop proceed to Boston and thence down the coast to Washington and across the continent to complete their flight at its starting point in California.

Plan Big Welcome in Boston.

BOSTON, July 21.—The return to the United States of the world fliers, who are to complete the crossing of the Atlantic at this port, probably about Aug. 21, will be marked by a "whale of a welcome home," Captain Louis R. Knight, Air Service officer for New England, said today in regard to a party.

"Besides a military and naval demonstration," he explained, "there will be an aerial circus. We will send three squadrons of ten planes each up the coast to Maine, some of them as far as Picton, N. S., to escort Lieutenant Smith and his associates to Boston. The chief of the Air Service, General Mason M. Patrick, and the Assistant Chief, General William D. Mitchell, as well as other officers from Washington, will fly here to extend the welcome. We are preparing also to handle about fifty visiting planes at the East Boston air port.

"The planes probably will land in Boston harbor, and taxi up to the port, or they will be equipped with pontoons until they take on wheels again here. The flyers probably will follow the Maine coast on the flight down from Picton, which will give an opportunity to thousands of persons at the New England resorts to see them; or they may cut across the gulf of Maine, to shorten the distance."

Plans for a field at Old Orchard, Me., has been made an emergency landing field and supply base indicates, however, that it is likely they will take the beach route.

At Boston, equipped again with wheels, they will make only a short stop-over and then fly to Mitchel Field, N. Y."

Praises Fliers' Incessant Labor.

LONDON, July 21 (Associated Press).—The intense energy with which the American round-the-world fliers have attacked the task of refitting their planes for the last lap of their globe-encircling trip has drawn a statement of the highest praise and admiration from H. G. Bentley, manager of the Blackburn Aviation Company of Brough, where the work is being done. The Evening News of Brough quotes Mr. Bentley as follows:

"We simply admire and admire and admire these Americans. Their thoroughness and the fierce manner in which they attack the dirty work which they know must be done in connection with the refitting and adjusting of their machines is wonderful.

"Since they arrived here they literally have never taken off their overalls. Dinners have been given in their honor, and perhaps one or two have gone merely to represent the squadron. The rest have stayed behind. They wanted to continue to do the work on their machines which they know must be done while they are here or not at all. We have never seen men take their work so seriously.

"They have not rushed in the slightest degree, but have planned their work methodically and have set about surmounting every difficulty that has presented itself. They, of course, have a good number of our men helping them, but they themselves are actually doing the work they know must be done perfectly.

"I should judge by the way they are progressing that by Wednesday night their planes will be ready. The supplies which preceded them along their northern route, however, must regulate their time chedule. They really are a remarkable body of men, and if they don't win throughout it certainly will not be their own fault.

"As far as I have seen, they are working with one all-gripping object in mind, and working strenuously. They deserve the very best luck in the world."

Soviet Gives Divorce for $1.50 in 5 Minutes, But Limits Applicants to Three in a Year

MOSCOW, July 21 (Associated Press).—Soviet Russia offers far more advantages to persons seeking easy and quick divorces than perhaps any place in the world.

Under a new decree a divorce can be obtained within five minutes at a cost of $1.50, provided both parties agree to the dissolution of the marriage ties. If, however, one party objects to dissolution the case must be referred to the courts, which will decide the question on its merits.

Misconduct does not constitute a valid reason for the annulment of marital ties, but desertion, religious superstition, excessive religious piety, incompatibility of temperament and divergence in political views are held to be sufficient causes. No Russian may obtain a divorce and remarry more than three times within one year.

In consequence of the flexibility of the Soviet civil code covering domestic relations, divorces in the Moscow district increased by 49 per cent. during the first six months of 1924, as compared with 1923. In many cases the applicants for divorces were married only from three days to three months. In other cases couples divorced had been married from four to forty years. Religious superstition was one of the most frequent causes given in the applications.

The ease of divorce under the Bolshevist régime contrasts strikingly with the difficulties which beset those who sought separation during the Czarist days, when divorce was almost impossible because of the opposition of the Church and the severity of the Imperial statutes. In those days it required from three to six years to have a marriage annulled.

RITZ-CARLTON TRIAL IS SET FOR JULY 28

Patron Arrested on Roof Garden is Fined $250—Brooklyn Agents Make Seizures.

Officers of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel and Restaurant Company pleaded not guilty yesterday when arraigned on the charge of maintaining a public nuisance, growing out of a raid by prohibition agents on the Japanese roof garden of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel. Their trial was set for July 28 by Federal Judge George W. McClintic.

The Judge said that he could see no distinction between violations of the prohibition law in the most exclusive hotels and less pretentious ones when he fined one of the persons arrested in the raid.

The officers of the company who pleaded not guilty were Duncan Harris, President; Errol Kerr, Vice President, and John Watts, Treasurer. Their bail of $1,000 each was continued. They were represented by Harold A. Content of Griffith & Content, formerly an Assistant United States Attorney.

Sam Chink, proprietor of the New Idea Chop Suey House, 1,274 Fulton Street, Brooklyn, objected to a patron, Martin Gibbons, 360 Fulton Street, using a hip flask, and called Patrolman Surlis, who arrested Gibbons on a charge of possessing liquor in violation of the Volstead act. He was taken to the station house to await arraignment before a United States Commissioner.

Prohibition Agents Kantor, Poschetti and McMonagle of Brooklyn reported that when they entered the realty office of J. L. Murphy, 142½ Jamaica Avenue, Jamaica, explaining that they were interested "in a drink first and possibly real estate second," they were directed to pass through the office to an elaborately fitted bar in the rear, where, they said, they bought liquor. Louis Murphy and Arthur J. Marcol were arrested.

The same agents arrested Joseph Greenstein in his butcher shop, 132 Rockaway Avenue, Jamaica. They said Greenstein also dealt in real estate and liquor. They arrested Max Ideal, Ideal Pharmacy, 4,313 Rockaway Boulevard, and arrested the proprietor, Joseph S. Goldway.

Agents charged that they found real beer flowing from one tap and red wine from another in Nick Figliolo's café, Hester and Elizabeth Streets, where they arrested Figliolo and his bartender, Angelo Amoruso.

The thirty-foot sloop Edith S. of East Rockaway was seized and nine men aboard were arrested by members of the Coast Guard, who reported finding 60 cases of whisky on board. The sloop is owned by Richard Wetherall of East Rockaway, according to Federal authorities. Wetherall was not on board, but was said today to have lent it to a party on Sunday to go fishing.

Fred Bannach, a machinist, 1,935 Linden Street, Ridgewood, was sent to jail for five days by Magistrate Kochendorfer in Ridgewood Court when arraigned on a charge of disorderly conduct. Patrolman Albrecht said he found the defendant lying in the street and disturbing the neighborhood with his shouting.

SING SING SENTENCES INCREASED 21 PER CENT.

OSSINING, July 21.—Statistics gathered at Sing Sing today for the fiscal year ending July 1 show that there was an overturn of 84 per cent. in the prison population during the year, and that there was an increase of about 21 per cent. in the number of offenders sent there by courts over commitments of the previous year.

Only one prisoner escaped during the year, while three prisoners who had escaped were recaptured.

During the fiscal year 1,330 offenders were admitted to Sing Sing. Of these 1,078, or an increase of 187, came from courts in Greater New York and Hudson Valley counties. Eighty-six were received from Clinton Prison, 28 from Auburn, 25 from Great Meadow, 2 on court orders, 7 from up-State courts and 1 from Auburn Women's Prison.

During the year Sing Sing got rid of 1,127, or about 84 per cent. of the number admitted. Those let out were classified as follows: By parole, 294; commutation and parole, 140; special commutation, 27; expiration of full sentence, 7; reversal of conviction, 9; court orders, 4; escape, 1; natural death, 2; legal execution, 9; re-parole, 39; transfers to Clinton Prison, 331; Auburn Prison, 10; Great Meadow Prison, 26; Napanoch Institution, 15; Dannemora Hospital, 11; Elmira Reformatory, 1, and released by absolute pardon, 4.

Of those whose terms were shortened by Governor Alfred Smith it is noticeable that only two were pardoned outright, the rest being released on probation. The death rate was very low, only two dying from natural causes out of 2,500 offenders who were in Sing Sing at some time or other during the fiscal year. There were few miscarriages of justice, apparently, for only nine got new trials, and most of these were prisoners sentenced to death, whose legal rights are carefully protected.

Motor Inspectors to Go to School.

ALBANY, July 21.—The Assembly parlar in the Capitol is being transformed into a temporary schoolroom for instruction of the newly organized corps of motor vehicle inspectors under direction of Lieutenant Inspector A. B. Moore of the State Troopers. Instruction will include department on duty, importances of evidence and preparation of cases.

INDICT POLICEMAN FOR KILLING A BOY

MAY BE ARRAIGNED TODAY

Policeman Harold M. Hagan of the East 104th Street Station was indicted yesterday by the additional Grand Jury on a charge of manslaughter in the first degree for shooting and killing Leo Vlasa, 7 years old, of 79 East 111th Street, in a vacant house at 114 East 112th Street eight days ago. The boy was shot through the head while leaning out a rear window on the second floor of the house, which is owned by the city.

Policeman Hagan, when arrested at the station several hours after the shooting, admitted that he had fired a shot into the ground "to frighten some boys there," but denied that he fired three shots, as reported. Robert Vissa, 9 years old, was the principal witness before the Grand Jury. At the time of the shooting he told his mother that Leo had been shot by a policeman. Another witness was Policeman Weiss of the East 104th Street Station.

Assistant District Attorney P. Francis Marro obtained a statement from the policeman on the night of the arrest in which Hagan stated that he had shot only once into the ground to frighten some boys in the empty house. This statement was related to Magistrate Frederick B. House in the Homicide Court when Hagan was arraigned before him last Tuesday. A detective also stated that when Hagan's pistol was examined at the station, shortly before his arrest, it was found to be fully loaded. Magistrate House said it didn't seem possible that the bullet could have struck the ground and been deflected two stories to the window where the boy was. He also commented on the fact that Hagan's pistol was fully loaded when he was accused of having shot the boy. He held the policeman without bail for action of the Grand Jury.

Hagan was taken to a cell in the Tombs. When the indictment was handed to Judge Koenig in General Sessions yesterday it was said that Hagan probably would be arraigned for pleading today. As the indictment only charges manslaughter, Hagan probably will be released on bail. Acting District Attorney George N. Brothers said that it was the policy of District Attorney Hanton to bring policemen accused of crimes to trial as speedily as possible, but that he was not in a position to state when Hagan's trial would be called. Hagan is a war veteran and the father of two children.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., July 21.—The Standard Oil Company of New York is made defendant in an action brought by the City of Poughkeepsie which asks the removal of company buildings on the westerly extended line of Church Street from Front Street to the Hudson River.

A perpetual injunction is asked in the city's complaint to restrain the Standard Oil Company from "appropriation of such public highway," and to direct the taking away of pipes, fences, tanks and docks that are in the street's westerly extended line. Former Judge Frank Hasbrouck has been retained to represent the defendant, and Joseph A. McCabe has been engaged by Corporation Counsel McCann and his associate.

Counsel for the company are expected to urge that the strip of land in question never was formally opened as a highway and therefore is not a highway today.

The major question in the action is expected to turn upon the interpretation of an old enabling act which gave the city rights in the property known as Church Street.

ENJOINS BUFFALO BREWERY.

Government Charges Methods Did Not Insure Legal Beverage.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 21.—Federal Judge John R. Hazel today signed a temporary injunction against the Simon Brewery Company of this city and against William J. Simon, President; Gerhard J. Simon, Vice President, and Joseph G. Schaff, Treasurer.

The injunction provides that unless the company files answer to the Government's bill of complaint within twenty days the premises will be padlocked. The Government alleges that the system in use at the brewery did not insure production of one-half of one per cent. beer.

This is the third Buffalo brewery against which the Government has acted. The East Buffalo brewery and the Broadway brewery are operating under bond.

HELD AFTER INN MURDER.

Rocco Mastroli, 30 years old, of 26 Centre Street, Jersey City, was arrested at his home last night charged with complicity in the murder of Joseph Robertazzo, wealthy proprietor of the Riverside Inn at Secaucus. Robertazzo was shot to death in the driveway of his home in Rutherford, N. J., Sunday morning.

Mastroli, when taken to Police Headquarters last night, admitted that he had obtained a position at the Riverside resort for Lore Sumpa, who, it is alleged, was receiving attentions from Robertazzo which incensed Mastroli. Mastroli denies any knowledge of the crime.

'MARGERY' PASSES ALL PSYCHIC TESTS

"CHESTER" HER SPIRIT AID

In further sessions with "Margery," the private and uncommercial Boston medium, many scientific men have been unable to find the slightest evidence of fraud in her manifestations, which include the spontaneous appearance of a great variety of lights, the apparent passing of a window pole through the arms and legs of the investigators, the wrecking of cabinets by unseen hands, the playing of invisible ukeleles and pianos by invisible hands.

Some of the investigators have watched her at between twenty and twenty-five sittings without discovering any explanation inconsistent with her claim of psychic powers, according to J. Malcolm Bird, Secretary to the Scientific American Committee on Psychic Investigation, which has offered a prize of $2,500 for convincing proof of supernatural phenomena.

The investigators who have been puzzled by the Boston woman are the same ones who had previously discovered fraud in the work of other mediums after only one, two or three sittings. The proof of "Margery's" psychic powers is not complete, according to Mr. Bird, who, in a summary of the recent seances in the August Scientific American, made the following comment:

Operates Through "Chester."

Margery is the name of the woman, and the spirit which is supposed to operate through her is called Chester. So far the scientists have been unable to discover how Chester produced the psychic lights through Margery. Describing one sitting, Mr. Bird said:

"With both Margery's hands and feet firmly held, we got an extraordinary display of psychic lights. The range in brightness, size, location and movement was wide, though they were confined to the space within the circle. A puzzling feature of Margery's lights in general is that flashes described by some sitters as brilliant are invisible to others. This is not a function of particular sitters; the same light is often shown to some sitters, then withdrawn from their view and shown to others. This is not casual, but is done by intent and sometimes by announcement.

"If such lights are to be produced fraudulently, with the control we had and without confederacy, as we believe to be the case in this mediumship, something quite novel in the technique of trickery would apparently be required.

"Ultimately Chester abandoned the lights and concentrated on the curtain pole, phosphorescent on both ends to mark its position. This pole was threaded through a maze of arms and legs in a path so complicated as, apparently, to preclude the alternative either that the pole must have been passed back and forth with great dexterity between two or more carriers as it proceeded or its carriers must have been capable of penetrating matter. I use the word 'carriers' as a generalization, avoiding the too material implications which would appear if I said 'hands.'"

Cabinet Torn to Pieces.

"We found the left wing of the cabinet now torn away and lying on the floor, with the rest of the structure erect. The screws that held the angle-irons on this corner had apparently been worn out, with splintering of the wood."

Without exhibiting skepticism, the investigator pointed out that the scientists were at some disadvantage "Because Chester kept changing his "stuff," so that they could not always be prepared to give him a thorough test.

"It is a fundamental characteristic of the Chester personality," said Mr. Bird, "that his attention cannot be held for any prolonged duration upon any single type of spontaneous manifestation.

"Tonight we get a brilliant demonstration with the lights; tomorrow with the pole; the next day with the cabinet, or the ukulele, or the table, or the voice. We cannot get promises from Chester on which we can rely, and particularly if we concentrate our expectations on some particular manifestation we are almost certain to get something else.

"This surprise element is rendered doubly unfortunate by the complexity of the seance room. It is quite out of the question to give every evening an examination of such thoroughness as to cover all the ground, insuring that whatever might occur we could make the reader feel that the possibilities of fraud in that direction had been completely forestalled. The result is that, while at one times or another we have had brilliant performances with the voice, the pole, the lights, the cabinet, the table, all under control that seemed to preclude the possibility of fraud, these demonstrations have in no case been preceded by an examination of the premises that was pertinent to what Chester actually did."

Preparing Fraudproof Test.

The next test of Margery and Chester will be to invite them to perform on a variety of fraudproof apparatus which has been prepared by the scientists of the commission for ironclad demonstrations, Mr. Bird continued:

"When we get to this it will become abundantly clear that we have not been pursuing the spontaneous phase of the mediumship up a blind alley. But for the present purposes we must act as though we had been doing just this. We must tell Chester that we aren't interested in lights, poles, voices, &c., until after he has proved his case in what we regard as acceptable fashion; and that if he wants to do this in a hurry he would best devote himself to some of the apparatus which we have made for him.

"We have given Chester an opportunity to produce simple mechanical effects inside a sealed glass jar. We have supplied electric contacts of several sorts, the idea being that Chester may close the contact and thereby ring a bell or light a light. We have offered him an ordinary chemical balance, with the suggestion that the manipulation of its weighted pans, in red light and under a cover of some sort, in defiance of the laws of gravity, would constitute a valid demonstration. And always we have kept before him the possibility of giving us in some way, on the photographic plate, either an independent manifestation or evidence of the solidity of some of the phenomenon just catalogued.

WIFE WINS A SEPARATION.

Mrs. Leona Millicent Brett of 163 Eighth Avenue, Whitestone, obtained a separation yesterday from her husband, Reginald Arthur Brett, now an oil operator in Little Rock, Ark. The separation was granted by Justice Leander B. Faber in the Queens Supreme Court. He awarded Mrs. Brett $25 a week alimony and $150 counsel fee.

Mrs. Brett had asserted that she and her husband separated in June, 1920, after he had beaten her and refused to get a doctor to attend her injuries. On one occasion her husband threatened to murder her, she charged.

Deep Sea Diver to Broadcast From Bottom of the Ocean

ATLANTIC CITY, July 21.—Radio fans are due for a treat on July 28 when, for the first time in the history of the radio, a voice will be broadcast from the bottom of the ocean. Station WIP, Gimbel Brothers, Philadelphia, through their remote control station here in the Steel Pier, have arranged to have a deep-sea diver go down to the bottom of the ocean and, while down there, tell what he sees. The diver is Cr O. Jackson of the Philadelphia Derrick and Salvage Corporation. Through the heavy glass windows of his helmet he will describe the subsea floor formations, strange fish and other interesting things he sees about him. Station WIP has already broadcast the sound of the waves from this shore.

WOMEN WIN BATTLE WITH RAINBOW BOA

A vigorous rainbow boa, nine feet in length and nearly a foot and a half in circumference, arrived here yesterday on the Trinidad liner Matura from Georgetown, British Guiana. The snake, the first of the rainbow species ever brought here, was captured by three women members of a New York Zoological Society expedition after a struggle in the jungle, during which they several times narrowly escaped being enfolded by the boa's writhing body.

The battle with the boa was fought by Miss Ruth Rose, the vivacious young historian and technist of the expedition; Mrs. John Tee-Van, wife of Professor John Tee-Van, assistant to Professor William Beebe, Curator of Ornithology at the Bronx Zoological Gardens, and Miss Isabel Cooper, the expedition's artist. Mrs. Tee-Van is a sister of Frank Damrosch. Professor Beebe was the head of the expedition, and Serge Chebyrkin, a refugee from Russia, was also a member. All returned here yesterday.

Miss Rose said that she and Mrs. Tee-Van and Miss Cooper were in a small camp alone, the men having gone in search of specimens. They were suddenly startled by the piercing screams of native women, who were running, panic-stricken. Investigation disclosed a rainbow boa among the luxuriant tropical foliage.

"We decided to capture it," Miss Rose said. "We knew that the boa was not poisonous and that if we could seize it by the neck and hold on it would be at our mercy. All three of us jumped upon it together, and the fight was on."

Were Nearing Exhaustion.

The big serpent possessed unexpected strength and the struggle was a fierce one. The three women never relaxed their grips, however, and just as they were nearing exhaustion the boa ceased writhing long enough for them to half lift and half tug it into a large box which had been prepared for such emergencies.

"I cannot see why people feel a horror of such boas as this, for its skin is beautiful," said Miss Rose. "It changes like watered silk in the sunlight and has all the colors of the rainbow."

Besides the boa, Professor Beebe and his party brought back some rare animals, which will be placed on exhibit at the Bronx Zoological Gardens. Among them are a pair of tree porcupines, never before seen in the United States. The animals are covered with shaggy, gray hair, beneath which are short, lemon-colored quills. Their claws are long and sharp, enabling them to climb trees. They were discovered by accident on the banks of the Kartabo River, when they wandered unsuspectingly into the camp kitchen in search of food.

The expedition also brought back a pair of aronti, or long-tailed rodents. There hitherto have been none at the Zoological Gardens. Miss Rose said the party killed several aronti and ate them. The flesh being most palable. A yellow-headed vulture was also brought here.

Bring Red Howler Monkeys.

Various varieties of monkeys were included in the menagerie on the Matura, among them a number of red howlers.

One monkey—a white faced cebus from Panama named Chirique—made the round trip from New York and will be taken on Prof. Beebe's next expedition. Chirique disliked the glare of the sun, so colored spectacles were adjusted to his nose to protect his eyes. Miss Rose said Chirique appreciated this attention greatly, and chatted amicably with her for hours at a time. He lacks concentration without his spectacles, she added.

The expedition left here in February. Along the Mazaruni River it frequently came across motor boats taking men to and from the diamond fields. Mbers presented to the women of the party a number of small stones in the rough.

Bathing in the Mazaruni has thrills unknown at Atlantic City, Miss Rose said, due to the presence in the water of electric eels that frequently sting bathers.

Romance and Adventure.

The New York Zoological Society has maintained for years a station in British Guiana at Kantabo, of which Professor Beebe is the director. It is elaborately fitted with scientific apparatus and is used by the society's expeditions as a base. President Roosevelt and Mrs. Roosevelt once paid it a visit.

"Our time was filled with romance and adventure," Professor Beebe said. "Most scientific men are dead and don't know it. They lack romance and merely bring back their specimens without seeing the wonderful things which daily develop all around them in the wilderness."

Man Accused of Robbery Set Free.

A charge of assault and robbery against Ed Ginter of the Mills Hotel was dismissed yesterday by Magistrate Charles A. Oberwager in Jefferson Market Court for lack of evidence. Joe Slavin of 788 Seventh Avenue alleged that Ginter struck him on the head with a milk bottle and robbed him of $75, which Slavin had displayed in paying a check in a restaurant at 127 West Thirty-third Street.

FINANCIAL MARKETS.

Practically all markets, with the single exception of the grains, were buoyantly strong yesterday, with substantial gains established in stocks and in the foreign exchanges. The main interest, however, centred in the cotton market, where gains of $10 a bale—the maximum allowed under present regulations—were established in quick response to a Government report on the condition of cotton, which, to say the least, left the trade very much bewildered and astonished. This report was the first of a series to be made semi-monthly by the Government, and the trade generally had anticipated a "condition" about the same as the 71.2 per cent. reported on June 25. The Government's figures, issued yesterday, placed the condition at 68.5, with indicated production of 11,364,000 bales. The official figure was so far out of line with the forecast which had been made by private agencies that a veritable scramble for cotton contracts occurred on both of the big cotton exchanges in New York and New Orleans.

With a probable total outturn of less than 12,000,000 bales and with cotton exports far ahead of this time last year, the cotton trade is inclined to examine the statistics on its "visible supply" with a great deal of interest and to take more seriously the Southern view, which has been held all year, that any measurable increase in mill operation ratios before the new crop comes to hand is likely to bring about a condition of actual shortage of "old-crop" cotton.

In the stock market the outstanding characteristic was an exhibition of the same steady but determined buying power which has been evident for several weeks. It could hardly be said that there was any very great change over Sunday in the tone of industrial news and, as a matter of fact, the market had before it two pieces of unsettling news, one further cuts in oil prices and the other the reduction of its dividend by half by one of the prominent Stock Exchange industrial issues. These developments went almost unnoticed while a great deal of attention was paid to reports of increased forward buying, even though on a moderate scale, in some of the basic industries, and the restarting of some steel mills on automobile materials which had been held up for a month. The market is putting the best "face" it can on news which may be given a constructive tinge.

At any rate, stocks as a whole advanced into new high ground for the year under a volume of turnover which considerably exceeded 1,000,000 shares for the day. The new high record brought the total advance which has occurred since the low of the year, on April 22, to 9.86 for the average of stocks. Railroad shares again were prominent in yesterday's market, but it shows a disposition at the moment to broaden out to include many groups of industrial issues which heretofore have lagged behind, notably the copper and the oil shares.

The strength of sterling, which carried it yesterday to 4.38½, is widely construed in our financial districts, at least, as a reflection of international optimism on the outcome of the London conference. Yesterday's highest price has not been equaled since April 28 and it is fractionally less than 1 cent below the year's best figure of $4.40 made on April 28. Since June 1 sterling has advanced approximately 10 cents to the pound and practically all of the other exchanges have moved up sympathetically with it. Not a great deal in the sterling market is being done from the New York end at the moment and there is a disposition to credit the upswing entirely to a "movement of discount" in anticipation of a favorable conclusion to the inter-allied conference and the announcement of terms for a German loan which will insure its success.

MONEY.

MONDAY, JULY 21, 1924.

There was nothing new about the trend of rates or the conditions governing the local market at its opening over that which prevailed all of last week. Call loans continued at 2 per cent., while outside business was reported at 1½ per cent. Fixed period accommodation ranged 1¾@1½ per cent., depending upon maturity, but here, as previously, borrowers are only interested in the more distant dates. Paper brokers found the prime name bill easy to move at 2¼ per cent., but less well-known discount at 2⅝@2¾ per cent. Acceptances were unchanged in dull market.

GOOD NEWS SENDS COPPER STOCKS UP

INQUIRIES FOR FUTURES

Copper stocks were particularly strong on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday. The volume of transactions was heavier than for many months and Utah Copper gained 2⅝ points, Kennecott 1½, Anaconda 2¼, American Smelting and Refining ⅝, Greene-Cananea 2⅜, United States Smelting and Refining 1⅝.

Developments in the day's news to account for this strength included a higher price for the metal, the prominence given to figures showing record-breaking consumption for the first half of 1923, the progress reported by the Allied Conference at London, the smaller surplus stocks and the larger number of inquiries coming into the market for copper to be delivered in the next few months.

Consumption of copper in the United States in the first six months of 1924 was 1,150,000,000 pounds, a new high record for any six months in the history of the industry. If this rate of consumption continues for the rest of the year it will be 10 per cent. greater than the peak wartime consumption and 50 per cent. greater than the pre-war peak of 2,225,000,000 pounds reported in 1913.

Copper for domestic delivery was quoted at 12⅝ cents a pound yesterday, an advance of ⅛ cent compared with Saturday's quotation. Producers reported a more active demand and a fair volume of sales. Consumers are also inquiring more actively for prices for the metal covering delivery over the next three months. This is the first time in several months that demand for future delivery has developed, recent buying being chiefly hand-to-mouth. Export prices jumped 30 points yesterday after the favorable advices concerning progress reported at the Inter-allied Conference. Sales were made at 12.70 to 12.75 cents a pound f.a.s., New York Harbor, and 12.95 to 13 cents c.i.f., London, Hamburg and Havre.

Accompanying the advance in the local market cables from abroad also reported a firmer tone at London. This was looked upon as an important development in local trade circles. It has been argued for some time past that speculative operators in the London market have been responsible for the low prices prevailing for copper metal during the first six months of 1924, in face of the record-breaking consumption.

The buying for export account is understood to be based upon the assumption that the Dawes reparation plan will soon become operative. This, according to opinion in trade circles, is the most important factor on which the copper industry is basing its hope for future demand of a substantial character. This is due to the belief that the Dawes plan will not only bring about stabilization in Germany but will also hasten general economic recovery in Europe as a whole.

QUARTERLY RATE CUT.

Stewart-Warner Halves Dividend—Shares Drop, Then Rally.

The Stewart-Warner Speedometer Corporation yesterday reduced the quarterly dividend from $2.50 to $1.25. The dividend declared is payable Aug. 15 to stockholders of record July 31. A reduction had been expected for some time in the financial district, and the recent sharp decline in the stock discounted the action taken yesterday.

Prior to the official announcement one of the Wall Street news tickers yesterday published a flash that the directors had declared a dividend of $1 a share, not mentioning that it was a quarterly payment. A break in the stock from 53⅝ to 53 between sales followed. When the official announcement was forthcoming, however, the stock immediately rallied. It closed at 56, a net gain of 4⅝ points for the day. Last week it sold down to 48½.

The company reported its earnings for the second quarter and the first half of 1924. For the second quarter there was a net profit of $512,850, after all expenses and reserves for depreciation, equal to $1.08 a share earned on the no par value stock. Earnings for the half year equalled $4.23 a share, against $8.30 a year ago.

Stockholders of the Arizona Power Company, which several months ago proposed a plan for the cancellation of back dividends or readjustment of finance will meet tomorrow to vote upon the plan.

It is proposed to authorize $1,000,000 of par value 8 per cent. cumulative first preferred stock, to be used only for the acquisition of properties or for extensions and improvements, and to authorize 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock issue to be used only to retire by exchange, par for par, the existing 6 per cent. preferred with its accumulated dividends.

Of the 10,000 shares of present preferred outstanding proxies for only 6,400 shares have been deposited. Of the 30,000 shares of common shares outstanding proxies for nearly 18,000 have been received. A much larger representation is desired.

TWO BIG STOCK OFFERINGS.

Two preferred stock offerings of $1,000,000 each are scheduled for today. Bonbright & Co. are offering $1,000,000 Tennessee Electric Power Company 7 per cent. cumulative first preferred stock, fully paid and non-assessable, and the First Securities Company and associates are offering an additional issue of $1,500,000 Pacific Southwest Realty Company 6½ per cent. cumulative preferred serial stock.

The utility company's stock is priced at $94 a share to yield in excess of 7.40 per cent. The company serves a territory with an estimated population of more than 400,000, including the cities of Nashville, Chattanooga and Knoxville. The stock of the Pacific Southwest Realty Company is priced at par to yield 6.50 per cent.

Road May Build New Warehouses.

New warehouses may be constructed at Morrison, near Newport, Va., for the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad, it was reported in the financial district yesterday. The company already owns twenty-four warehouses, used for export freight, which it purchased from the Government.

The Empire Trust Company has been appointed trustee for an issue of $400,000 par value Crafts Building Corporation first mortgage sinking fund 7 per cent. gold bonds dated July 15, 1924, and due July 15, 1935.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

London Buying Sends Sterling and Continentals Higher—Holland Strong.

Sterling led the European exchanges higher in a session of brisk trading yesterday. London checks advanced 1⅞ cents, to $4.89⅝, highest since April 30, the improvement in the Continentals running from one to more than six points. In the case of Holland guilders the advance carried this rate up to a new high for the year at 38.25 cents. Far Easterns and South Americans, however, ran counter to the forward swing in the major currencies, and fractional declines were registered in most of them.

Underlying the strength in the leaders was the fact that cables indicated the early clearing away of the difficulties which halted the smooth progress of the Dawes parley in London, and that the questions of the Ruhr railways and the flotation of the proposed loan will be amicably settled. It was London buying, dealers asserted, that sent rates higher, the undertone being firm throughout. Pressure from commercials is negligible. Dutch exchange has been benefited by reason of the transshipment of the immense purchases recently made by Russia, together with European trade financing arranged through Amsterdam.

FOREIGN STOCK MARKETS.

Prices Moderately Lower for Securities in London and Paris.

LONDON, July 21.—Gilt-edged securities were easier on the Stock Exchange today. Oil shares were steady and British industrials quiet. Old 2½ per cent. consols ¼ higher at 57⅛; British 5 per cent. war loan ⅛ lower at 101⅛; 4½ per cent. war loan unchanged at 97.

PARIS, July 21.—Prices were heavy on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes 85 centimes lower at 53 francs 95 centimes; 5 per cent. war loan 25 centimes higher at 66 francs 20 centimes.

Exchange on London declined 15 centimes to 84 francs 75 centimes per sovereign; the American dollar was quoted at 19 francs 34½ centimes, against 19 francs 47⅝ centimes last week.

British and French Conditions.

The Farmers' Loan & Trust Company has prepared a survey of industrial and business conditions in France and Great Britain illustrating the trend of pig iron and steel production, shipbuilding, shipping, freight traffic, foreign trade prices, cost of living, unemployment, imports and exports in those two countries since 1913.

ROBERT MORRIS was the financial backer of the American War of Independence. When the Continental Congress needed money to finance the Revolution, he offered it his personal fortune. He not only had the patriotism to do so; he had the money. He was reputed to be the richest man of his day, having built up a fortune through years of financial acumen and energetic conduct of his business. When this great opportunity presented itself, he was ready.

FEW PEOPLE realize how steadily and how quickly an investment fund grows at compound interest. It DOUBLES every ten years at 7%; every twelve years at 6%; every fourteen years at 5%; provided the fund is safely invested and the interest is steadily reinvested.

Think of the opportunity thus afforded for acquiring a competence.

For the average man, dependent upon his own effort, this is the surest way of building up a substantial surplus. And bonds are his most suitable investment. They are safe and they are negotiable. He can sell them if he wishes. He can borrow money on them. He can depend upon a fixed income. The interest comes due twice a year. To collect it he merely has to present the coupon for payment.

How to Select Safe Bonds

It is a simple matter to select desirable issues if you are the customer of a good bond house. It knows all about the issues it underwrites. If you frankly tell it about your own circumstances it can suggest bonds which fit into them and properly diversify your holdings. That makes security even more secure.

The banker and the experienced investor rely largely on the bond house recommending the issue. They know it is best equipped to ascertain the real values back of the bonds which it offers.

Protecting the Investor

The inexperienced investor can protect himself in the same way. He should select a house whose business is extensive, whose experience is wide, the quality of whose issues is well known.

May we send you a diversified list of our own issues? They have been underwritten and purchased by us after the most searching investigation an experienced staff can put them to. We are glad to help you invest $1,000 or $50,000. The amount makes no difference in our service. You can purchase our bonds on the partial payment plan if you wish.

Our booklet, "A SURE ROAD TO FINANCIAL INDEPENDENCE," deals in a practical way with the interesting subject of systematic investing—shows what can be accomplished on YOUR income. Write for booklet N T-7C.

Advisable Course of Action After Extended Advance

Investment securities, which have been purchased at favorable levels and held through an advancing market, present the problem of whether or not they should be sold, and, if sold, what should be purchased to replace them. This is a situation facing many investors today, in view of the extended advance in prices, and calls for intelligent counsel.

In reviewing lists of securities we endeavor to point out to inquiring investors what, in our opinion, is the proper course of action in such cases.

235,000 UNION OIL TO GO ON MARKET

Offering of the 235,000 shares of Union Oil Company of California, purchased recently from the Shell Union Oil Company by Dillon, Read & Co., will be made tomorrow. No announcement of the offering price was made by the bankers.

The stock will be offered in $100 par value certificates with the statement that within a few weeks each holder will receive in exchange four certificates of $25 par value for each present $100 share. The company recently authorized this change in par value and application will be made to list the stock on the New York Stock Exchange. The $100 stock is selling in the open market in California around $140 a share and on it the company is paying currently dividends at the rate of $7.20 a share. The offering price, presumably, will be around this figure.

This operation completes the last phase of the struggle waged by the Royal Dutch interests to acquire control of one of the major American oil companies in the California field. Royal Dutch had acquired about 26 per cent. of the total common stock of Union Oil when their plan for complete domination was blocked by California interests which formed the Union Oil Associates, in which 57 per cent. of the total shares of Union Oil was placed under a perpetuating trustee agreement in a successful effort to prevent domination by a foreign company. Decision to dispose of its holdings followed this checkmating of the ambitious project of Sir Henry Deterding.

The flotation is one of the most important oil stock transactions since the war, the amount on the basis of par value being $23,306,400, and will place in the New York market the capital securities of one of the oldest and largest California oil producers. The company has earned a net profit in each of the thirty-four years of its existence. In California the company has oil reserves of 200,000 barrels of crude, according to a survey by E. De Colyer, an oil engineer, and with the 194,000 acres in California fields from which production currently is being largely drawn, the company's holdings of land cover a total acreage of about 615,000 owned in fee and nearly 184,000 acres under lease. Its holdings are in California, Wyoming, Texas, Colorado, Utah, New Mexico, Mexico and Columbia.

The latest report of earnings covering the first six months of this year, showed earnings at the annual rate of $12,400,000 after depreciation charges of $5,200,000, or approximately $13 a share available for the common stock.

ANOTHER CUT IN OIL PRICES.

Gasoline Reduction Also Announced by Two Companies.

Further downward adjustments in crude and refined oil products were announced yesterday, bringing prices in line with the reductions announced by some of the larger companies last week. The Atlantic Refining Company reduced gasoline prices in its territory one cent a gallon to 21 cents. Sinclair Oil Company met the reduction.

The Standard Oil Company of Louisiana reduced all grades of crude oil 25 cents a barrel, except Smackover and Cotton Valley, which were reduced 10 cents a barrel. The Texas Company made similar reductions.

According to figures received in the financial district, crude oil production in the four large Southern California fields dropped 7,100 barrels in the daily average last week, but this drop was offset by an increase of 7,600 barrels reported in the output of the Domingues field.

SCHULTE STOCK DIVIDEND.

Payment of $2 on Common and Quarterly Preferred Announced.

Directors of the Schulte Retail Stores Corporation yesterday declared a stock dividend of 25 per cent. on the common, payable in common stock. This was expected in the financial district, as stockholders on July 14 approved an increase in the authorized common stock from 300,000 to 500,000 shares.

In addition the directors declared a cash dividend of $2 a share on the total common stock of 375,000 shares outstanding after distribution of the stock dividend, and $2 a share quarterly on the preferred stock. The stock dividend on the common is payable Sept. 1, to stockholders of record Aug. 15, and the $2 cash dividend on common Dec. 1, to stockholders of record Nov. 15. The cash dividend on the preferred stock also is payable Dec. 1.

TRUCKS IN FREIGHT SERVICE

Freight service on the Long Island Railroad has been supplemented with motor trucks for less-than-carload-lots, according to an announcement yesterday. The additional service is being used on the north side division to Port Washington, L. I.

According to the announcement none of the regular service will be discontinued. Shipments will be made in carload lots for certain zones, and will be distributed by truck from centres in each of these zones.

This method of handling freight is in line with developments on the Pennsylvania Railroad, which controls the Long Island, and also on the New York Central.

Banker Delegates Pay Visit Here.

Several hundred delegates, returning from the convention of the American Institute of Banking at Baltimore last week, were entertained yesterday by the New York Chapter of the Institute. During the day the visitors, from all parts of the country, called at different banks. Late in the afternoon they were gathered at the Chapter headquarters from where they were taken by bus to Coney Island.

Wrigley Company Earnings.

Total earnings of $8,471,185 are reported by the William Wrigley Jr., Company, for the six months ended June 30, 1924, and net income of $4,251,226, after all expenses, depreciation and tax reserves. The net income, which made a new high record for any half-year in the history of the company, was equal to $2.36 a share earned on the $1,800,000 shares of no par value capital stock outstanding.

FOR $2,500,000 GAS PLANT.

The Foundation Company announced yesterday that it had signed a contract with the Hudson Valley Coke and Products Corporation, a joint undertaking of the Burden Iron Company, the Oliver & Snyder Steel Company, the E. Arthur Tutein Company, and others, for the construction near Troy of a by-product coke plant which will be the basis of a new gas distribution system in Troy and vicinity. The cost will be about $2,500,000.

The plant will include an auxiliary water-gas plant for making blue water-gas for heating ovens and carburetor water-gas for the supply of six Hudson Valley cities—Troy, Albany, Cohoes, Rensselaer, Schenectady and Watervliet.

In connection with this contract, the Burden Iron Company's furnace near Troy is to be modernized at a cost of about $1,000,000, and the Foundation Company will build for the Adirondack Power and Light Corporation seventeen miles of 12-inch pipe line to carry gas under high pressure from the gas plant near Troy to Schenectady. The pipe contract involves about $350,000.

SECOND AV. EARNINGS UP.

Holders of Receiver's Certificates Ask Extension of Agreement.

Extension for one year of the terms of the five-year deposit agreement with holders of Second Avenue Railroad Company receiver's certificates has been requested of the holders by the Committee for Receiver's Certificates, it was learned yesterday. The agreement expired July 15 and the committee desires to extend it to July 15, 1925.

Plans for the reorganization of the Second Avenue Railroad Company and the termination of the long-standing receivership have virtually been completed, and it was said yesterday by a member of the committee that these plans probably would be effected in the late Summer or early Fall.

For the fiscal year ended June 30 the company, which operates more than twenty-seven miles of track in Manhattan, will report net earnings of approximately $75,000, or practically three times the income reported for the previous year.

$15,000,000 ISSUE BIDS WITH PINCHOT

Proposals for Pennsylvania Bonds Will Be Opened at Harrisburg Today.

PART OF $50,000,000 LOAN

Other Offerings on the Market Include Mortgage and School Securities.

Bids will be opened at noon today by the State of Pennsylvania, on a new issue of $15,000,000 of 4¼ per cent. Series E bonds, comprising the initial part of an authorized total of $50,000,000 of bonds to be issued for improvements. Sealed proposals are filed with Governor Pinchot at Harrisburg. It was said yesterday that several syndicates of New York bankers have entered bids.

The issue is receiving wide interest because it is one of the few large State and municipal offerings in sight. Current loans for this account are in most cases measured in terms of hundreds of thousands of dollars, although the market for tax-exempt bonds continues strong, even after absorbing in excess of half a billion dollars' worth of such bonds in the first six months of this year.

A new issue of Champion Coated Paper Company serial 6 per cent. gold notes will be offered tomorrow by the Fifty-third National Bank of Cincinnati. Proceeds with additional cash will be used to refund the company's treasury for the purchase of the majority stock of the Champion Fibre Company of Canton, N. C. The Champion Coated Paper Company was organized in Hamilton, Ohio, in 1891 and is said to do a business of about $12,000,000 annually.

Offering of $525,000 6½ per cent. first mortgage bonds is made by the American Bond and Mortgage Company on the Spruce, a bachelor apartment house to be erected at Spruce and Thirteenth Streets, Philadelphia. The bonds are callable at 102½ and will be amortized in two to twelve year periods semi-annually.

Sherwood & Merrifield, Inc., offer a new issue of $400,000 Towns of Cortlandt and Yorktown, N. Y., Union Free School District No. 2 coupon or registered 4.50 per cent. school bonds, due July 1, 1927-1963, at prices to yield 4.10 per cent.

Offering of $400,000 Lorch Building, 35-39 Maiden Lane, first mortgage leasehold 6½ per cent. sinking fund gold bonds due July 1, 1939, is made at 100 by Edmund Seymour & Co. and F. R. Sawyer & Co.

Lee, Higginson & Co. offer $1,494,000 Union Refrigerator Transit Company Series C and D equipment trust 5 per cent. serial gold certificates. The Series C certificates, amounting to $300,000, are dated June 1 last, and the Series D certificates, amounting to $804,000, are to be dated next Aug. 1. The Series C bonds will mature serially every six months from June 1, 1925, to June 1, 1934, and the Series D bonds will mature semi-annually from Feb. 1, 1925, to Aug. 1, 1934. Proceeds will be used in part to pay for 300 new cars costing $2,120,000 which will serve as security for the loan.

5-CENT FARE IS EXTENDED.

Public Service Railway Files Tariff Voluntarily.

The Public Service Railway Company has filed with the New Jersey Board of Public Utility Commissioners a tariff rezoning its lines in its central division. The step is voluntary and unless the tariff is suspended by the board, it will give New Brunswick, Perth Amboy, Rahway, Bound Brook, Somerville, Raritan and other municipalities in Central New Jersey the same five-cent fare within their limits as is now in effect in many other cities served by the company.

No transfers will be issued and zones have been shortened, so that on four of the company's principal lines twenty five-cent zones will take the place of sixteen former eight-cent zones. The company's action follows the request of several of the larger municipalities that the five-cent fare plan be extended.

OPERATING INCOME DROPS.

The report made public yesterday was the first railroad report for June.

It showed operating revenue of $1,611,106 for the month, against $1,847,939 last year. Gross revenues for the first half of the year were $10,370,396, compared with $11,048,471 last year, and total expenses for the same period were $7,548,540, against $8,079,586.

Pacific Mills Earnings.

The Pacific Mills for the first half of 1924 reports a net loss of $1,368,930 after all expenses and reserves for depreciation and absorption of costs incidental to curtailment of operations and shut-downs. Net sales for the six months aggregated $17,122,695.

BROOKLYN EAGLE STOCK OFFERED

PRICE ABOUT $180 A SHARE

Yields at That Figure About 5.55% —Pays Dividend of $10—Last Year's Profit $286,648.

Five hundred shares of the capital stock of The Brooklyn Daily Eagle will be placed on the market today by Lynch & McDermott of 7 Pine Street in settlement of an estate. The price is about $180 per share, the stock yielding at that figure 5.55 per cent., as it pays dividends of $10 a share annually. Philip Lynch of Lynch & McDermott explained yesterday that this block of stock did not represent a new offering, being stock that belonged to a holder who died recently. The name of the estate to be settled was not divulged, Mr. Lynch stating that for professional reasons he could not give that information.

Figures made public in connection with the offering show that The Brooklyn Eagle has an authorized and outstanding capital stock of $1,500,000. The balance sheet as of Dec. 31 last showed total assets of $3,294,917. Current assets were $1,200,000, against current liabilities of only $111,406, representing a ratio of better than ten to one. "A noteworthy feature of the balance sheet," according to the announcement, is that The Associated Press franchise, which has an estimated valuation of several hundred thousand dollars, is carried at only $1,000. Some authorities place the worth of this franchise to any paper in the metropolitan district as high as $1,000,000."

The Brooklyn Daily Eagle reported in 1923 a net profit of $286,648, equivalent to $19 a share. In 1922 net was $400,000, or $26 a share; in 1921, $268,857, or $17 a share, while for 1923, 1922 and 1921 the newspaper's gross earnings were $4,110,738, $3,866,905 and $3,528,609.

"Persons familiar with The Brooklyn Daily Eagle's operations state that the stock is a bargain at anything under $300 a share regardless of the fact that dividends of only $10 per annum are paid," the prospectus states. "They point out that dividends are being earned twice over, and it is believed that assets as shown in the balance sheet are undervalued and may be recapitalized at some future date. It is also declared that reserves of a most liberal nature are charged off annually."

According to Mr. Lynch, the management is of capable and progressive character and, in the description of the offering house, "The Eagle is universally recognized as one of the nation's foremost newspapers and has been called 'The Times' of the evening field in the metropolitan district."

Railroad Will Rebuild, Bridge Ohio and Put in New Beaver River Span.

Detailed plans for the expenditure of $9,000,000 in improvements in the Pittsburgh district were published yesterday by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. They include the rebuilding of the bridge carrying the Panhandle Division tracks across the Ohio River at Steubenville; the construction of a new bridge across the Beaver River from New Brighton to Beaver Falls, and the construction of 13.8 miles of line between Canton and Bayard which will complete a grade cutting and line shortening move.

Permission has been granted by the United States Government for the construction of the two bridges, and the Interstate Commerce Commission has been asked to pass on the 13.8 miles of new railroad construction, it was said yesterday. Included in the $9,000,000 for improvement are the $2,000,000 which will be expended by the company in building two new tracks around New Brighton in approaching the new Beaver River bridge.

At Steubenville, plans call for three new spans to take the place of five present spans over the river proper. Four new piers will replace six new there. The centre span will be 544 feet, flanked by spans each 340 feet long. There will be a uniform clearance above low water of 90 feet all the way under the new spans.

GREAT NORTHERN'S NET INCOME GAINS

GROSS REVENUE IS LOWER

Company Saves in Expenses, Leaving $1.04 a Share Instead of 37 Cents in 1923.

Net income of the Great Northern Railway Company available for dividends at the end of the first six months of 1924, according to an estimate which supplemented the 1923 report, published yesterday, was $2,600,000, or $1.04 a share. This compares with $923,122, or 37 cents a share earned in the same period of last year. The record shows that the gross revenue of the company during the first six months of this year was much under that of a year ago, but that the company made a material saving in expenses.

Net railway operating income	5,800,000	4,291,276
	5,800,000	4,291,276
Other income	5,700,000	5,068,584
Available for dividends	2,600,000	923,122

In making public the figures for the first half of the year Ralph Budd, President of the railway, said: "The amount of net earned during the first six months is not large compared to the gross revenue, but it must be borne in mind, in considering Great Northern operating statistics, that the net during the last half of the year always constitutes the major part of the net earnings of the entire year."

The figures for 1923, as printed in the report, correspond very closely to those of the preliminary report made public several months ago. Among the items in the income account were the following:

Operating expenses	86,750,523	79,626,088
Net income	18,067,047	10,885,673

In his remarks to stockholders President Budd called attention to the suspension of its own sleeping car service and a contract with the Pullman Company which resulted in improved passenger trains.

"There is a renewed interest in Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana and the States further west," he continues in summing up his view of the outlook in the Northwest, "and the prospects are for an increased immigration in the future. There is an extensive development in the diversified farming idea, and the benefits can already be seen in all of the States in our territory, and conditions for the future appear favorable."

He declares that 1,027 employes of the company have availed themselves of the offer made by the company to purchase shares in the company on the partial payment plan. These employes have taken out a total of 8,055 shares. This gives the Great Northern a total of 45,000 men and women and 1,800 organizations who own stock in the company.

NET INCOME SHOWS DROP.

The Chicago Pneumatic Tool Company for the three months to June 30 reports net income of $154,862, equal to $1.41 a share on the 109,766 shares of capital stock outstanding, against $1.45 a share earned in the first three months of the year and $1.79 in the second quarter of 1923.

For the six months to June 30 the company reports net income of $314,146, after all expenses and charges, equal to $2.86 a share on the capital stock for that period, against $426,717, or $3.66 a share, for the first half of 1923.

COTTON CROP REPORT SHOWS HEAVY SLUMP

DUE CHIEFLY TO STORMS

WASHINGTON, July 21.—A slump in the prospective production of cotton this year, due principally to excessive rains in the Carolinas during the three weeks between June 25 and July 16, was shown today in the semi-monthly cotton report of the Department of Agriculture.

A forecast of 11,934,000 500-pound bales, as compared with a crop of 10,126,478 bales last year, was made by the Crop Reporting Board. This is approximately 100,000,000 pounds less than forecast on July 2, and represents a hypothetical loss of probably $25,000,000 or more to Southern cotton growers.

North Carolina was hardest hit, its loss in prospective production amounting to about 50,000,000 pounds. In South Carolina and Louisiana the crop also suffered considerably. Washing rains and hail storms greatly damaged the plants in North Carolina and some abandonment took place there. Excessive rainfall harmed the South Carolina crop also. In Louisiana protracted drought in the northern and northwestern parts of the State was the cause of deterioration.

The late-planted crop in Texas is in the balance, and unless rain comes soon it will not amount to much. The cotton flea is doing more damage in the southern part of the State than the boll weevil, and grasshoppers are still damaging the crop, as they are in Oklahoma.

Georgia's cotton prospects are better than they have been for several years. The boll weevil, a department statement said, is losing its supremacy as the most destructive pest this year to the cotton "flea," which is working further north than last year.

Boll weevils are very numerous in most of the southern section and in parts of the central and southeastern sections, but elsewhere the hot, dry weather is holding them in check.

NEW ORLEANS, July 21.—Following announcement of the Government crop report on condition of the cotton crop, cotton futures soared 200 points on the local Exchange today, October advancing to 26.80 and December to 26.65, a gain of about $10 per bale. The condition of 68, with an estimated crop of 11,934,000 bales, proved lower than expected.

Condition of the cotton crop on July 16 by States, compared with that of June 25, follows, the percentages being of a normal:

State.	July 16.	June 25
North Carolina	56	73
South Carolina	59	69
Georgia	76	75
Alabama	70	77
Mississippi	70	74
Louisiana	66	78
Texas	69	70
Arkansas	70	83
Tennessee	63	67
Oklahoma	72	72
United States	66.5	71.2

LABOR NOW ENTERS INVESTMENT FIELD

Union labor will enter the field of investment banking through the organization of the New York Empire Company, Inc., which will have headquarters at 120 Broadway, according to an announcement yesterday. The new company, which will be supported by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, which has been remarkably successful in the banking field, will sell investment issues and enter into direct competition with some of the larger security companies in the financial district.

Financiers consider it especially significant that the new venture will be launched near the centre of the downtown financial district. According to the official announcement made yesterday, the new company "will work in conjunction with the Empire Trust Company and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Cooperative National Bank of Cleveland." The Empire Trust Company is controlled by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, which entered the banking field in New York City many months ago.

The new company will not only make its appeal to the general investment public, but make a direct appeal to the union employes in all parts of the country. As a security house it may, if it deems advisable, underwrite the securities of corporations.

The establishment of this firm, it was pointed out in the financial district yesterday, was in line with the policy of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers to play an ever-increasing part in the conduct of the banking business. To date the sentiment of the bankers has been to welcome the representatives of unions into the banking field on the theory that if the labor unions could be brought to more of a realization of the problems that capital is facing a closer relationship between capital and labor could be brought about.

Dividends on the Preferred Stock are payable every three months, $1.75 per share, $7 per year, by check, mailed to the stockholder's address.

Statistical circular containing complete information regarding the financial condition, earnings, etc., will be furnished on request.

ADVANCE IN COTTON IS HALTED AT LIMIT

ESTIMATE IS A SURPRISE

Guess of 78 Exchange Members Had Been 71.6 for Crop—Yield Lowered to 11,934,000 Bales.

The cotton trade was taken completely by surprise when the Department of Agriculture reported a condition of 68.5 and an indicated crop of 11,934,000 bales yesterday. This represented a loss of 2.7 per cent. for the twenty-one days from June 25 to July 16, or equal to the decline for the entire month from June 25 to July 25 last year. All private agencies, without exception, had indicated an increase in the estimated yield and the average guess of seventy-eight members of the Exchange was for a report of 71.6. When the figures appeared, it became virtually impossible to buy cotton and prices rose violently. In five minutes October contracts had risen the full 200 points permitted by rules of the Exchange for a single day's fluctuation and at 37.65 the gong sounded. Realizing on cotton bought last week carried prices back half a cent under the largest volume of business so far this year. Active demand developed on the reaction and the market closed within a few points of top prices and, at a net advance of 88 to 148 points on the day.

As reports from private sources had in some instances been as high as 73, the unexpectedly low bureau estimate caused a scramble for cotton. Profits taken by smaller interests and commission houses before the report, left little cotton available when the rush of buying developed and quotations were marked up 25 and 50 points at a time without meeting selling orders. A few lots of October were encountered at 27 cents and some December at 26 cents, but brokers were unable to obtain contracts necessary to fill orders until October had risen 2 cents a pound. In New Orleans nearly every month advanced the 2-cent limit when profit taking supplied a larger quantity of contracts. Heavy selling started a setback of 60 to 70 points, but trade and general buying set in on the reaction and a recovery in later trading brought quotations to within a few points of high levels reached immediately following the report.

Over-Sunday weather continued favorable in most sections east of the river, but failed to produce moisture in Texas. While a number of stations reported temperatures in excess of 100 degrees decreased from about 30 last week to only 7, official details indicated almost no rainfall throughout the State. Oklahoma, however, had showers over the greater part of the State, with several points reporting three-quarters of an inch to an inch and a half.

The Government report reflected a decline of 17 points in North Carolina, 10 points in South Carolina and 12 points in Louisiana. The Texas figure was lowered only 1 point up to the 16th inst. While several States showed an improvement over June 25, the average for the belt was lowered as a result of excessive rainfall in the Carolinas and absence of sufficient moisture in other States.

Cotton, middling uplands, jumped 90 points to 33.40 cents, in keeping with buoyant contract options, with Middle West lard 25 points higher at 13.35@13.45 cents. To Employ a Cost Expert.

The services of a cost and production engineer will soon be available for knit underwear manufacturers to facilitate the installation of the new cost system adopted by the Associated Knit Underwear Manufacturers of America, according to an announcement made yesterday after a meeting of the Executive Committee of the association had been held at the Yale Club. The engineer will visit mills and discuss with knitters the system as it is outlined in the association's new cost book, which is now being distributed to members. When he begins work, the announcement said, the knitters' cost and production service will be the most complete and effective in operation in any industry.

Gray Goods Prices Advance.

Little trading was done in the local gray goods market yesterday, following the bullish Government report on the condition of the cotton crop. Sellers refused to quote on goods for shipment other than spot, and for that delivery the new asking prices are at least a quarter of a cent above the last trading levels. For 39-inch 68-72 printcloths sellers are now asking 10¼ cents, with 9¾ and 10⅛ cents asked, respectively, for 39½-inch 64-60s and 64-56s. Some holders of the latter construction will not take less than 8 cents. Sales of 37-inch 48-square four-yard sheetings were reported at 10½ cents, but most of the other constructions were inactive. In the lightweight sheetings 5.50s are now held at 7¼ cents and 6.15s at 7⅞ cents. A good business in fine-yarn novelties, particularly voiles and warp sateens, was done, but the more staple cloths were quiet and without feature.

All Ready for Children's Show.

More than forty manufacturers and wholesalers will be among the exhibitors at the first fashion show of the United Infants', Children's and Junior Wear League of America, which will take place in the grand ballroom and adjoining rooms of the Hotel Astor tomorrow night. Prior to the show, dinner will be served at 7 P. M., and the affair will be concluded with dancing. Complete lines for little ones and for girls ranging up to 16 years of age will be displayed, all of the exhibitors being members of the league. They come from both branches of the organization, one of which is headed by Joseph Love, and the other by Myer Berlow. Advance seat sales indicate an attendance of more than 600. It is planned to make the show an annual affair.

Look for Real Activity Now.

From the merchandising standpoint, leading wholesalers in the cloak trade say that the labor disturbance, now ending through the return of the workers, has had very little, if any, effect on the market. Production was curtailed for several weeks, but this was counterbalanced by the inactive early buying of retailers. In fact, the stoppage has been considered more or less fortunate, as it tended to prevent too heavy early production. In the opinion of leading wholesalers the real Fall wholesale season may be figured as starting this week. They expect buying over the next few weeks to be considerably more active. The feeling is rather widely held, however, that the season will be long drawn out.

Tartan Plaids for Young Women.

Tartan plaid worsteds are selling well for Fall dresses for young women, according to an importer of foreign fabrics. The cloths which are of French make are also being used extensively for coatings and linings. The cutters-up, said this seller, are showing the most interest in the fabrics having blue, tan or gray grounds in which the plaids are worked out in color combinations of red, green, white and blue. In addition, some of the popular weaves have contrasting overchecks. Retailers have also been buying the plaids for sale as yard goods. The best selling ranges in the goods are from $2.57½ to $3.75 a yard, wholesale.

Increase List of Exhibitors.

The complete list of exhibitors at the Fall Style Show of the National Garment Retailers' Association, which will be held tonight at the Hotel Commodore, includes fifty-six firms, according to John W. Hahn, Secretary of the association. The number of exhibitors, most of whom are manufacturers, is larger than usual, due to the desire to permit buyers to see as many lines as possible. Because of this, Mr. Hahn said yesterday, each exhibitor will be permitted to show but three numbers, instead of the former procedure of four or five each. The lines to be shown comprise children's, juniors', misses' and women's coats, suits, dresses and furs. The last named are included in the association's show for the first time. A feature of the affair will be a bridal procession.

Select Sample Fair Dates.

Announcement was made yesterday that a Merchandise Sample Fair, under the joint auspices of the National Retail Dry Goods Association and the National Council of Traveling Salesmen's Associations, would be held from Feb. 7 to 14, 1925, at the Grand Central Palace. To the announcement Lew Hahn, Executive Director of the retailers' organization, added that association would hold its annual convention here from Feb. 10 to 13, inclusive. The simultaneous holding of these events, according to Mr. Hahn, will make for a larger attendance of buyers and further stimulate their interest. There will be no merchandise fair this year.

Has a Novel Worsted Fabric.

A novelty cloth in the form of an all-worsted fabric with a satin moire finish is now being offered here. The weave is the product of a French mill, and it is guaranteed to retain its finish against heat and water. The cloth weighs about 9½ ounces and has the conventional moire designs in it. It has been shown to several manufacturers of wrasper and capes, as well as dresses, and they have commented favorably regarding it. The colors in which the fabric is produced are brown, green, navy and black.

Cotton Rise May Help Sales.

Not only were fewer advance lines of wash goods shown in this market last week than is usual when the jobbers are here to attend their semi-annual meeting, but less business was taken by the mill representatives than had been the case for many seasons. Most of the fabrics contained the leading lines offered to buyers last week were priced lower than at the initial showing of Spring goods a year ago, but even that failed to stimulate purchasing. The jobbers' feeling apparently was that by holding off they could give a bearish tone to the entire market. The sharp rise in cotton that followed yesterday's Government report on the condition of the crop may change all this, however, and the inclination is to look for much more active buying in the next few weeks than appeared probable only a few days ago.

3 MEXICAN FREE PORTS OPENED FOR BUSINESS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PUERTO MEXICO, July 21.—A group of sixty officials, merchants and members of Chambers of Commerce in Mexico, the United States, France and Germany, headed by Modesto C. Rolland, President of the Free Port Commission at Salina Cruz, on the Pacific side, today formally declared certain free ports open for trade.

Leaving Mexico City, the party traveled on the Mexican Railway to Vera Cruz, where they met Federal officials, embarking on the steamship Tamaulipas, owned by the free ports, for Puerto Mexico. There they took the Tehuantepec Railway, now under the control of the Free Ports Commission, to Salina Cruz, where the official ceremony was held.

After an inspection of the port works the party returned to Puerto Mexico and boarded the ship for Vera Cruz.

The Mexican free ports consist of three seaports, with an additional port on the Tehuantepec Railway, Rincon Antonio, where the railway shops of the Isthmus of Tehuantepec Railway are located. These free ports are Puerto Mexico, on the Atlantic side, and Salina Cruz and Guaymas on the Pacific Ocean.

Each port is about 50 hectares in size. The commission has fourteen ships at its disposal and more than 300 kilometers of railway.

Modesto Rolland, head of the Commission of Free Ports, has already received a number of requests for storage space from American manufacturers. Representatives of several American companies were in the party today. One of the largest American manufacturing companies sent a special agent to plan the location of a plant.

Puerto Mexico is in fair shape. The channel, formed by a large river, permits heavy draught vessels to tie up at the wharf. The warehouses are in poor condition, but repair work is actively proceeding.

The railway to Salina Cruz is in very good shape, in spite of untrue reports that it had been completely abandoned. With the exception of one stretch of ten miles, the entire roadbed is in good condition, but the rolling stock is practically non-existent.

Salina Cruz is virtually deserted. A large American dredge is engaged in clearing the channel, which is almost closed to navigation. The warehouses are in good order and the cranes and bridges have stood the ravages of time in a surprising manner. A few coats of paint will again place the port of Salina Cruz in condition to handle a large amount of commerce. The drydock, capable of docking ships of thirty feet draught, is in good shape also.

The space designated for these free ports is carefully screened with barbed wire from the towns. A special police force and customs agents have been engaged for the ports, which are now open for trade.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 21.—Federal Judge Paul J. MacCormick, here today, set Oct. 20 as the date for the opening of the trial of the Federal Government's suit against the Pan American oil interists for cancellation of naval oil reserve leases in the Elk Hills district.

The date set was later than suggested by Atlee Pomerene, special Government counsel, but earlier than the time of trial asked for by attorneys for the defense.

In his plea for an early trial Mr. Pomerene declared that it had been the policy of the Government to preserve and conserve the naval oils, but to conserve them in the ground, and that this policy had been changed to exploitation.

Mr. Pomerene charged that the contracts and leases in the Elk Hills controversy were made without legal authority from the Government, and were prompted by fraud.

The defense counsel suggested that the trial date for the hearing of the case in Los Angeles be determined in the November session of the Federal Court at Fresno. He declared the civil action should be postponed until after the completion of the criminal action in District of Columbia courts against Edward L. Doheny, Edward L. Doheny Jr. and Albert B. Fall.

The Attorney charged that the testimony his clients would be forced to offer at the civil hearing here would be used against them by Mr. Pomerene in the criminal action in the Eastern Courts. He characterized it as "stripping the mantle of protection from the Dohenys and Fall that the law afforded them."

WHY RESERVIST LOST JOB.

Casualty Company Will Probably Explain the Case Today.

A statement explaining the dismissal of Frankes A. Brown, a Lieutenant in the Reserve Corps, who was dropped by the United States Casualty Company when he went to Plattsburg for training, probably will be made today, it was announced yesterday at the offices of the company, 80 Maiden Lane.

J. J. Meader, Secretary, said that in the absence of the President, Edson S. Lott, no comment would be made, but that Mr. Lott, who is on his farm in Rockland County, would return today and "a satisfactory" statement would be forthcoming.

Brown's dismissal became known as a result of a sermon preached on Sunday at Plattsburg by the Rev. William Carter, pastor of the Throop Avenue Presbyterian Church, who is acting chaplain of the 308th Infantry, Seventy-seventh Division. Brown, who was a claims examiner, lives at 451 Fourth Street, Brooklyn.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—War Department officials stated today that no report or complaint had yet reached the department regarding the discharge of Lieutenant F. A. Brown of Brooklyn, a reserve officer, from his civilian employment for obeying his call to attend the Plattsburg camp. It was stated that this was the first instance that could be recalled of a reservist losing his job for attending a Plattsburg camp.

Getting Away From the Calendar.

With a number of "August" retail furniture sales already under way and with at least one "August" fur sale now on, it is apparent that leading retailers are not trying to tie up with the calendar to the extent that the millinery and ready-to-wear wholesalers are. The cases are not exactly the same, of course, but it was the desire of the wholesalers to prevent the sale of Fall hats and apparel in late July or early August (and a similar thing in the Spring) that led to the movement for more distinction between the seasons. The August sales of furs and furniture were begun with the intention of stimulating business in departments that otherwise would be quiet during that month, but they appear to be losing their identity. Whether some future head of the retail business will result in their becoming August sales again is a question at the moment.

OPEN VIENNA POWER PLANT.

City's New Hydroelectric Station Eases Coal Problem.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, July 21.—With great ceremony, in the presence of leading statesmen and technical authorities, the Vienna water power and electric works at Opponitz, near here, were formally opened yesterday with the crashing of the new waterfall.

Since the peace treaty was signed Austria, which has been obliged to import practically all of its coal from abroad, has made strenuous efforts to replace coal by water power, and has now succeeded in utilizing the waterways for the production of electricity in most parts of Austria. The new power plant will provide Vienna with 80 per cent. of the electricity needed by the whole city.

The development of water-power stations throughout Austria is of the greatest importance to Austria's future trade. As the result of the country's efforts a considerable part of the railroad through the Tyrol Mountains has been electrified.

SHOW FARM AGENTS MARKET FACILITIES

CAREFUL GRADING IS URGED

Forty-six of the New York State county agricultural agents, together with farm organization officials, began a three-day trip yesterday to study market conditions around New York. The trip was arranged by the Department of Agricultural Relations of the New York Central Railroad.

The party gathered in the railroad office building at 466 Lexington Avenue. Its members were welcomed by F. E. Williamson, General Superintendent, New York terminal district. Mr. Williamson said:

"You are in the centre of a population of 7,000,000 people, and there is an accepted estimate that it requires a gross weight of ten pounds per day of foodstuff per person to sustain such a community. Therefore, to feed the population of the metropolitan district means moving in from the north, east, west and south the equivalent of 760,000 carloads per year, or about 10 per cent. of all the foodstuffs shipped in the United States.

"For example, during the year 1922 there was consumed in the city of New York 2,157,000,000 pounds of cereal, 1,947,000,000 pounds of dairy products, including milk, butter, eggs and cheese; 1,438,000,000 pounds of fruit, 1,162,000,000 pounds of vegetables and 770,000,000 pounds of miscellaneous foods, including tea, coffee, lard and vegetable oils, these constituting together the enormous total of 8,748,000,000 pounds."

Enos Lee, President of the New York State Farm Bureau Federation, replied on behalf of the visitors, stressing the value for the farmer in cooperating on the problems of shipping with the various carrier agencies.

After a dinner held at Gonfarone's Restaurant, Eighth and McDougal Street, G. M. Dallas and J. H. Murray of the Department of Public Relations of the American Railway Express, addressed the county agents and agriculturalists on improved marketing conditions.

G. M. Dallas said that New York State poultrymen in a great many instances used old cases and fillers and other second-hand shipping material, and were deficient in grading their eggs. He reminded them of the California shippers' care in packing and grading all their products and said the same practice extended to the Middle West.

Standard packages of any grade desired could be bought in these products shipped from the West, he said, and this worked to the disadvantage of New York shippers, who put everything they had, he said, into one package with little attention to grading or appearance. He also reminded his hearers that better packing would save them money in breakage.

J. H. Murray discussed the handling of perishable products. He advised the farmers to keep in close touch with market conditions through the daily broadcasting of market reports and to seek new markets which could be developed by high speed express shipment. He said that only by methods such as these could the great losses that come by shipment to glutted markets be avoided.

The first point visited was the kitchen and pantries of the Hotel Commodore. Here the methods of receiving, handling and preparing food in a modern hotel were observed. The party had lunch at the Café Boulevard, Broadway and Forty-first Street, and then visited the French Line steamer Paris at Pier 57, North River, foot of West Fifteenth Street.

The next visit was to the establishment of Nathan Schweitzer Company, Inc., 407 West Fourteenth Street, wholesale dealers in fancy poultry, game and meat. There was a special display of these products and experts discussed the demand of the market for quality goods. Again the points of packing, selection and grading were stressed.

From this place the visitors went to the Hotel Holley in Washington Square West, their headquarters, where assignment of rooms was made. At 11 o'clock last night the party was the guest of the Dairymen's League for a trip to inspect the methods of receiving and distributing New York's supply of milk. The points visited were the New York Central's milk platform at 130th Street, Borden's plant at 439 127th Street and the Dairymen's League plant, Nineteenth Street and Avenue B.

The plot for the project is 80 feet in the avenue and 119.3 in the street.

Work on the proposed structure will be started on Oct. 1, and it is planned to have it completed for the 1925 renting season.

The lease is for a term of twenty-one years at a rental of approximately $140,000 per year.

The H. H. Gibson Realty Company were the brokers in the transaction.

$160,000 Mortgage Loan.

Lawrence, Blake & Jewell have placed for the Sigley Realty Corporation a first mortgage of $150,000 at 5½ per cent. for five years on 206-208 West Ninety-second Street, an eight-story apartment house.

SUBURBAN LOT BUYERS.

Queens, Bronx and New Jersey vacant land was represented in the series of auction sales conducted last Saturday by Joseph P. Day, which netted the owners a total of $324,537.

The sale in the Bronx comprised the offering of the remaining lots belonging to the estate of Henry R. Hoyt, deceased, located on Eastchester Road and Gun Hill Road within a few blocks of the Gun Hill Road station of the New York, Boston & Westchester Railroad.

The plot on Eastchester Road, fifty feet from the corner of Adee Avenue, brought $4,200, while a similar plot on the same street adjoining the corner of Hammersley Avenue went for $3,625. The triangular corner plot on Gun Hill Road and Gunther Avenue sold for $780, the opposite plot bringing $1,040. Five hundred dollars was paid for inside lots on Hammersley Avenue, between Mickle and Kingsland Avenues.

The New Jersey offering comprised lots in Hasbrouck Heights, near Hackensack, on Terrace Avenue, Henry Street, Passaic Avenue and running to the tracks on the Erie Railroad. Wanamaker's Salesmen Sell Wanamaker Goods —Not "John Doe's"

To a real estate agent, floor space is merchandise. His first and best effort is given to his own goods—that is to space in buildings which he manages, rather than to occasional listings.

Owners who manage their own buildings and "list their vacancies with all the brokers" get the particular attention of none; for everybody's business is nobody's business.

The owner who gives us his property to manage places our entire organization under obligation to rent his space to the best advantage and secure for him a good and dependable income.

Firestone TRUCK PNEUMATIC

"We use Firestone Gum-Dipped Pneumatics because we can get more miles for our money and better service than from any other tire that we have ever used," writes J. H. Paston, of the Independent Touring Car Line, Asheville, North Carolina.

"We find that our pneumatics average 20,000 miles per tire, which we consider especially good in view of the fact that our 32 buses travel in a difficult mountain territory."

Bus service is hard on tires — fast schedules, continual stops and starts, heavy loads, cut-up roads—these offer the supreme test of a pneumatic. Let us tell you how Gum-Dipping makes possible a bus and truck cord tire that meets every demand of load and road.
